CHAMBERLAIN SAYS WAR AIMS ARE UNCHANGED; RUSSIA BACKS HITLER'S PLEA TO END CONFLICT

MOVE IN SENATE TO RECESS UNTIL BRITAIN, FRANCE REPLY TO HITLER

Johnson of Colorado Makes Surprise Motion to Halt Neutrality Debate After Urging Roosevelt to Act as Mediator.

ACTION DEFERRED UNTIL LATER IN DAY

Plan for Three-Day Halt Catches Administration Unprepared — Embargo Repeal Speaking Continues.

By MARQUIS W. CHILDS
Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—The Senate heard an urgent plea today that President Roosevelt act as mediator to end the European war, and to facilitate this move, Senator Johnson (Dem.), Colorado, author of the peace drive, moved that Congress recess for three days.

While Britain and France are framing their reply to Hitler, Johnson intimated, the Senate should be silent. At the start of the session he obtained the floor and moved the three-day recess.

This move took administration leaders completely by surprise and Majority Leader Barkley rose to point out that Johnson had obtained the floor only through the courtesy of Senator Downey (Dem.), California, and that it was doubtful if such a motion was in order.

Vice-President Garner ruled that the move was in order under the rules of the Senate and Barkley thereupon urged Johnson to withdraw his motion. Johnson agreed but announced that he would bring it up again later in the day.

Sentiment for Move Increasing.

Johnson's motion reflects a growing sentiment in the Senate that the President should make some move in response to intimations from Berlin that his mediation would be welcomed.

At the White House today doubt was expressed that the President would lend himself to any such move. It was intimated that this was nothing more than a trial balloon such as all politicians sent up occasionally to serve their own interests.

Secretary of State Hull told reporters at his press conference today that the American Government had not been approached by Germany, Britain or France with regard to interceding for peace in Europe.

Asked whether the United States were contemplating any peace move he said he had not yet discussed this matter with his associates.

Among many Senators, and particularly in the isolationist bloc, there is a mounting feeling, however, that an end of the European conflict is near. Off-the-record predictions are heard that the war will be ended in a few weeks and this comes in certain instances from high quarters.

An authoritative source at the State Department predicted that the President would not act in the present situation unless requested to do so by France and Britain.

Appeal by Johnson.

"There is no sure way to keep out of this war," Johnson told the Senate. "The only way to keep out is to stop that war. That is the only 100 per cent way."

"To my mind, this is the greatest opportunity that has ever faced any of our American Presidents," Johnson said of the suggestion that Roosevelt act as mediator.

"I believe that Germany will listen to an honorable peace proposal," Johnson asserted after he had pointed out that what he said were German overtures in the direction of Washington were made with full knowledge of the President's stand against aggressor nations and in sympathy with oppressed nations.

Johnson did not make very clear why he felt it was important that the Senate recess for the next three days other than his apparent fear that negotiations abroad might be harmed by talk in the Senate.

Neutrals all over the world are looking to the United States for leadership in bringing about peace, Johnson said. He compared the interest of neutral nations to the interests of the public in a strike situation when employer and employe rights are in conflict. Strikes are mediated and wars should be

FRISKY DOG IN CAR CAUSES THREE-WAY CRASH AND FIRE

Three Engine Companies Called Out—Master Accused of Careless Driving.

Three automobiles were damaged, a district fire chief, three engine companies and a hook and ladder truck were called to answer a 3 a. m. alarm, and Julius Emil Muckensturm, 23-year-old musician, faces a charge of careless driving—all because of the playfulness of his dog.

Muckensturm, who lives at 4474 Bingham avenue, told police he was driving carefully along the 2900 block of Gravois avenue this morning when the dog, riding in the front seat, jumped into his lap. Muckensturm's machine struck the parked automobile of Thomas Sullivan, 2905 Gravois, and stopped after crashing against the machine of Calvin Wheatley, 2907A Gravois. A fire alarm was turned in when Sullivan's machine caught fire.

After treatment at City Hospital for lacerations and abrasions, Muckensturm was taken to the Lynch Street Police Station where he was released on bond for appearance in Police Court. The dog was not hurt.

MATT DEVOE DENIED REVIEW IN KANSAS CITY VOTE FRAUD

Supreme Court Turns Down Petition; He Is Under Two-Year Federal Sentence.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9 (AP).—Matt Devoe, convicted of charges he and others conspired not to count votes of citizens who sought to cast ballots in 1936 for the Republican nominee for Congress in the Twelfth Ward of Kansas City, Mo., failed today to get a Supreme Court review.

Devoe, under sentence of two years in a Federal Penitentiary, appealed from the Eighth Federal Circuit Court at St. Louis. He contended certain evidence relating to the padding of the voting registration list and the stuffing of a ballot box was prejudicial because it tended to indicate the commission of offenses separate from the conspiracy charged in the indictment.

LOSES $12,500,000 SUIT AGAINST FORD

Gasifier Co. Action on Carburetion Patent Dismissed by U. S. Court.

Experts may point out that a cow and a mule both have two eyes, four legs and a tail, but to the layman there is a distinct dissimilarity, United States District Judge John Caskie Collet remarked today in holding a carburetion device used by the Ford Motor Co. did not infringe a patented device of the Gasifier Manufacturing Co. of Clayton.

Judge Collet sustained the Ford company's motion for a judgment for it in the Gasifier company's $12,500,000 infringement suit. At the same time he set a similar suit by the Gasifier company against the White Motor Co. for trial Oct. 23, pointing out that he did not have the devices in that case actually before him and that the question of similarity was up to a jury.

In the Ford case, Judge Collet said, a pre-trial conference and examination of pleadings by both sides showed essential facts admitted with nothing left but the legal question of whether the two devices were so alike that use of the Ford device constituted an infringement. He held they were not similar in design or operation.

In his discussion of similarities that expert witnesses might find in mules and cows, Judge Collet mused, "Of course a cow gives milk and a mule does not, but the point is a minor one and the experts undoubtedly would tell of many similarities. The illustration may be grotesque, but I think that to a layman there probably is a distinct dissimilarity."

The Gasifier company, formed by a group of St. Louis men who backed a mechanic 18 years ago in manufacture of the device, designed to reduce gasoline consumption, has filed infringement suits against the major automobile and harvester companies, seeking more than $37,000,000 in damages. The device was invented by Maurice O. Smith of Dallas, Tex.

Boat Goes 200 Miles to Treat Eye.

BOSTON, Oct. 9 (AP).—The Coast Guard cutter Tahoe steamed 200 miles to sea yesterday to remove a piece of rust from a seaman's eye. However, on pulling alongside, the cutter found a pharmacist's mate had treated the seaman's eye.

CHARLES M. HAY NAMED HEAD OF ELECTION BOARD

Stark Appoints Former City Counselor to Fill Vacancy Caused by Death of W. H. Woodward.

LAWYER NOT SURE HE WILL TAKE JOB

Dry Who Lost as Democratic Nominee for Senate in Hoover Landslide, Says He's "Surprised."

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 9. — Charles M. Hay was appointed today by Gov. Stark to the St. Louis Board of Election Commissioners, to succeed Chairman William H. Woodward, recently deceased. The Governor designated Hay as chairman of the Board.

The chairmanship of the Election Board and the three other places on the bipartisan board are part-time positions, and the salary of chairman and members alike is $3000 a year.

Hay Says He's Surprised, Doesn't Know If He'll Accept.

Hay told a Post-Dispatch reporter that the appointment had come as a complete surprise, and that he was not able to say immediately whether he would be able to accept.

"I'll have to look into the matter and see how much time the work would require, because I'm pretty well loaded down just now," he said. "However, I very much apreciate the honor, and if it's at all possible for me to accept I shall do so."

Hay added that he probably would reach a decision at a conference with the Governor within the next few days.

Hay, 59 years old, is a native of Wayne County, Missouri, and a graduate of Central College, Fayette, Mo., and Washington University Law School. He was elected to the Legislature from Callaway County, and became a leader in the fight for state and national prohibition. He removed to St. Louis in 1913, and in 1928 was Democratic nominee for United States Senator, being defeated by Roscoe C. Patterson, Republican. He sought the Democratic senatorial nomination in 1932, but was beaten in the primary by Bennett C. Clark.

He was City Counselor in Mayor Dickmann's first administration, and resigned that post to accept a place as special assistant to the Attorney-General at Washington, in connection with the railroad workers' pension law. He is known as an effective speaker.

SOVIETS ACCUSE ALLIES OF RETURN TO MIDDLE AGES

Government Newspaper Points Out It Is "Impossible to Exterminate Any Idea or Any Opinion by Fire and Sword."

DECLARES POLAND CAN'T BE RESTORED

Therefore, It Is Argued, Continuation of Fight Can't Be Justified and Will Only Lead to "Senseless Slaughter."

MOSCOW, Oct. 9 (AP).—Soviet Russia threw its weight behind Adolf Hitler's peace gestures today. An editorial in the Government newspaper Izvestia accused Great Britain and France of "returning to the middle ages" for waging war to "exterminate Hitlerism."

Also, it was announced Premier-Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov had reached a quick decision last night with leaders of a German trade delegation.

The delegation arrived only yesterday to expedite stimulated trade between Russia and Germany under the recent formal trade and credit agreement of the Nazi-Communist partners. It was not specified what goods were involved.

Besides the German delegation, Russia was host to the Foreign Ministers of Turkey and Lithuania and expected a third diplomat, former Premier Juhu Kusti Paasiviki, of Finland, tonight or tomorrow as it pushed forward its bargain-driving campaign on Russian frontiers from the Gulf of Finland to the Black Sea.

Recalls Religious Wars.

Izvestia asserted British-French arguments that the war must be prolonged to crush Hitlerism "makes us return to the gloomy middle ages when devastating religious wars were carried on for the purpose of the extermination of heretics and people of different religions."

"It is impossible," the newspaper declared, "to exterminate any idea or any opinion by fire and sword.

"One may respect or hate Hitlerism or any other system of political opinions. This is a matter of taste. But to begin a war for the 'extermination of Hitlerism' means to admit to criminal silliness in policy."

Izvestia said the rapid "disintegration" of Poland was "irrefutable proof that its lack of vital power removes the causes for continuation of the war in Western Europe."

It continued:

"Even the blind can now see that the Polish state cannot be restored to its former shape and on its former territory. Still the war by Great Britain and France against Germany is being waged under the slogan of restoration of Poland.

"Therefore, continuation of the war cannot be justified by anything and constitutes a senseless slaughter. Termination of this war would meet the interests of the peoples of all countries."

"Real Practical basis."

Hitler's proposals were called a "real, practical basis for negotiations for an early conclusion of peace."

Izvestia asserted, however, British and French newspapers "demand that Hitler's peace proposals be given no consideration, and that war be continued until the aims which Great Britain and France set for themselves when entering the war be fully accomplished."

The ruling classes of Great Britain and France, it said, "have never displayed too great readiness to shed blood or, which is the main thing, bear the expenses for any ideological purpose.

"Declarations of lofty principles and ideas usually served to camouflage mundane and material aspirations. Naturally the question suggests itself . . . Whether the slogan of a struggle against 'Hitlerian spirit' and 'Hitlerian ideology' does not camouflage different aims suggested by the aspiration of ruling circles . . . for consolidation of their world domination."

The editorial quoted an article by George Bernard Shaw (published in last Friday's Post-Dispatch) as

GERMANS ASK FRENCH NOT TO FIRE; SEND OUT HITLER SPEECH ON RADIO

PARIS, Oct. 9.

FRENCH military sources said today principal passages of Adolf Hitler's Reichstag speech had been broadcast from Nazi front line trenches in French and German.

They described it as an effort to bolster the morale of German troops and influence the French soldiers for peace, but said the French advance guard was "highly amused."

French outposts reported the broadcasters concentrated on portions of Hitler's speech which stressed friendship for France.

"The Germans erected loud speakers alongside machine guns and anti-tank cannon," French reports asserted.

Heavy German guns stopped firing when the broadcasts in German and French began.

French troops reported also that Germans raised a huge sign over blockhouses on the Rhine near the town of Neue Breisach which read: "French comrades, don't fire on your German friends."

The report added that the "sign suffered greatly from French bullets."

IMPORTANT DALADIER RADIO TALK TOMORROW

French Premier to Speak to Nation as Result of Hitler Peace Move.

PARIS, Oct. 9 (AP).—The War Ministry announced today Premier Daladier had decided to broadcast an important speech to the nation tomorrow as the result of Adolf Hitler's peace speech last Friday.

Daladier's address will be broadcast on a nation-wide French hookup at 8 p. m. (1 p. m. St. Louis time).

Before announcement of the speech, Daladier conferred with Generalissimo Maurice Gustave Gamelin, Chief of the British-French land forces.

No formal peace proposals have been presented to France and Nazis in Berlin said after Hitler's speech that his peace proposals would be given no more formal character.

NAZIS BEGIN DRAFTING DOGS

Owners of Eligible Breeds Ordered to Report Them.

Owners of such breeds as shepherds, airdales, terriers and boxers were ordered to report them, starting tomorrow.

NAZI SQUADRON GETS AWAY FROM BRITISH PATROL

Darkness Lets Warships Escape—Repeated Fights Between German Planes and British Vessels.

LONDON, Oct. 9 (AP).—Repeated encounters between British warships and German planes in the northeast areas of the North Sea were reported by the admiralty to have occurred today.

The admiralty announcement declared that the British had suffered no casualties, but that they did not know how the Germans had fared.

The admiralty also disclosed a German naval squadron had escaped from the British naval patrol off the south coast of Norway yesterday.

Darkness Let Ships Escape.

"Our forces endeavored to engage it, but darkness enabled the enemy to escape," said an admiralty communique.

"During today repeated actions have taken place over the northeast areas of the North Sea between German bombing planes and British cruisers and destroyers.

"No British ships were damaged. Casualties to the enemy are not known."

At the same time, "Eyewitness," the official correspondent with British forces in France, reported four British planes had made successful daylight scouting flights along the German frontier from France to the North Sea.

Planes Escape Barrages.

One pair of planes was said to have flown safely through two anti-aircraft barrages.

"Eye-Witness" said the planes over Germany had investigated "reports received by headquarters" concerning "the evacuation of important cities, big troop movements near Aix-la-Chapelle (Aachen), significant concentrations of aircraft, and intensive building of fortifications near the Luxembourg frontier."

The correspondent did not disclose what were the findings of the flight, but said the scouting planes had landed in England with photographs taken.

An Air Ministry communique last night reported British planes had shot down one of two German flying boats in a fight over the North Sea. The British flyers summoned a ship which rescued the Nazi airmen.

British Have No Casualties.

The Ministry said the Royal Air Force flyers escaped without casualties, although one of the four patrol planes which took part in the fight was struck by German bullets.

ALLIES WOULD CONSULT ON ANY MORE SPECIFIC DECLARATION

Prime Minister Tells Questioner British and French Purpose Has Been Made Clear Frequently in London and Paris.

HE MAY ANSWER HITLER WEDNESDAY

London Press Still Rejects Nazi Plea, Points to Need of Policy That Will Obtain American Sympathy and Help.

LONDON, Oct. 9 (AP). — Prime Minister Chamberlain told the House of Commons today that Britain and France were "in complete accord" as to the purposes of their participation in the European war, which they frequently expressed, and that any more specific statement of their war aims would be evolved through consultation of the two Powers.

Chamberlain's statement was in reply to a question by Laborite Arthur Henderson, who asked "whether it is the policy of His Majesty's Government to publish in due course of time and jointly with the French Government a specific statement of war aims based on principles already enunciated."

"His Majesty's Government and the French Government are in complete accord as to the purposes for which they entered the war," Chamberlain replied.

"These purposes have more than once been stated by both Governments," he added. "No doubt as time goes on both Governments will consider whether their war aims should be stated in more specific form."

Two Powers Would Agree.

Chamberlain said that Henderson "may take it that any such statement will only be made by agreement between the two Governments."

The British Government has said repeatedly that the principal aims of the war are to "crush Hitlerism" and to "free Europe from the menace of aggression." The restoration of Poland and Czecho-Slovakia also has been mentioned.

Eleanor Rathbone, Independent, interposed in the discussion to inquire whether "the Prime Minister is aware there is a strong and growing demand in the country for a more specific statement on the Government's war aims?"

There were several cries of "No." Chamberlain gave no answer.

While the nation waited for the Cabinet to frame a formal reply to Adolf Hitler's peace gestures, Britain kept her war preparations geared to a high pitch.

Detailed Answer Wednesday.

It was expected Chamberlain would give his answer to Hitler's Reichstag address of last Friday when he makes his weekly war report to the House Wednesday.

The British press continued to assail Hitler's proposals as "nebulous" and urge a policy barring peace "at the price of Poland."

Widely separated spheres of thought emphasized reported United States reaction as a strong argument against embracing the Fuehrer's "peace overtures."

U. S. Attitude Emphasized.

The liberal Manchester Guardian declared editorially, "A false step now giving the impression we are either weak or insincere in our defense of the liberties of Europe may make it exceedingly difficult to win sympathy and help of the United States today or tomorrow."

Diplomatic circles, speculating as the probable content of Chamberlain's speech, predicted the Prime Minister would assert that Britain's announced purpose of freeing Europe "from the fear of Nazi aggression" had not been changed by recent developments.

Some observers thought his reply

BERLIN AND BALTIC STATES WORK TO GET GERMANS OUT

Nazi Officials Seek Quick Action in Repatriating 115,000 Persons in Three Northern Areas.

MANY IN GERMANY HOPEFUL OF PEACE

Roosevelt Looked to as Mediator — Press Says Hitler Speech Made Favorable Impression.

BERLIN, Oct. 9 (AP).—In line with one of Adolf Hitler's declarations in his Reichstag speech of last Friday, Germany today worked on plans for negotiation with the smaller Baltic states for immediate transfer of German-blood residents to some section of the Reich.

The chief difficulty appeared to be the question of how to recompense these Germans for property, especially real estate, that they would leave behind and how to effect the transfer of their capital assets without embarrassing the economy and finance of the Baltic states on the one hand and Germany on the other.

Work on this problem went on as authorized sources said they had nothing new to add to the question of peace or war. They said that Hitler had made his statement and that now it was up to neutrals and the belligerents on the other side to make the next move.

Many Look for Peace.

Many of Germany's millions believed peace was just around the corner.

In his Reichstag speech Hitler said Germany's most important task in Poland was establishment of "a new order of ethnographic (racial) conditions, that is to say, resettlement of nationalities." The problem, however was not restricted to Poland, he added, in declaring that "the east and south of Europe is to a large extent filled with splinters of the German nationality, whose existence they cannot maintain."

Reich officials estimated there were 60,000 Germans in Latvia, 15,000 to 20,000 in Estonia and 40,000 in Lithuania, the countries under immediate consideration for repatriation negotiations. Some German families were said to have moved to the Reich without waiting for official settlement of the problems involved.

Latvia, it was understood, estimated the value of possessions in German hands there at 1,500,000,000 reichsmarks (about $600,000,000).

Some Opposed to Moving.

Another question to be settled was that of German families claiming to have lived in the same place for centuries and not desiring to migrate. There was no clear answer to the question whether Germany would abandon interest in such persons or whether possible injury to them would still excite the wrath of Hitler as protector of all Germans.

All signs pointed to the fact that Germany and the Baltic states would act quickly and decisively on the matter of transfer of Germans and not wait for details which would retard operations. Some form of option would be granted these Germans, however, it was said.

The question of transferring Germans in Soviet Russia would be taken up considerably later, it was intimated.

Authorized sources meanwhile said that Finland's relations with Russia were no German concern. Questions raised by Russian Premier-Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov's invitation to the Finnish Government to send a plenipotentiary for negotiations were said to be solely "problems of neighborly relations which really do not concern Germany."

Nazis cited two reasons for their optimism that the end of Polish resistance in the east forecast an end to European hostilities.

First, they said, Hitler's hand was open to anyone who would clasp it in peace.

Second, they looked toward President Roosevelt for mediation.

Nazi reports have emphasized that proponents and opponents of revision of the United States Neutrality Act have expressed favor of Mr. Roosevelt in the role of peacemaker for Europe.

Nazi officials have stressed Hitler's readiness to accept a peace initiative from the United States President, and the press has been filled with accounts of "the deep and favorable impression" left throughout the world by the Fuehrer's address to the Reichstag Friday.

A good deal of attention is being given in Berlin these days to what goes on in Washington.

One result has been the adoption of an English term—"cash and carry"—into German speech. The Germans have learned to use it while studying congressional debate on the neutrality proposals.

Long newspaper articles have appeared explaining that "cash and carry" means supplies bought in the United States would have to be paid for with cash and be transported in non-American ships.

Hitler Remains in Berlin.

With no official answer yet from Great Britain or France, however, and army communiques still reporting only minor activity on the Western front, German officialdom enjoyed its first week end of leisure in five weeks.

The Fuehrer, who has spent much time in travel, particularly on the Eastern front, since German forces invaded Poland Sept. 1, still was in Berlin.

The army command's communique on yesterday's activities indicated a lull in the West, but said German forces in the East were continuing to march toward the new German-Russian border in conquered Poland.

It reported only "local scouting and troop activity," "minor artillery fire on both sides" and "only little scouting plane activity" in the West.

It was announced yesterday that two Polish division commanders, 1555 officers and 15,600 non-commissioned officers and men surrendered at Kock.

MAN-MADE QUAKES MAY HELP SPOT ENEMY'S BIG GUNS

New Type of Slanting Earth Waves Discovered in Tests at Harvard.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 9 AP).—Discovery that certain explosions create a hitherto unknown type of "slanting earthquake" was reported today by a Harvard scientist, who said the finding might prove important in enabling army artilleries to spot the location of heavy enemy guns.

Dr. L. Don Leet, director of Harvard's seismograph station, declared 10 years of experimenting with man-made dynamite 'quakes had disclosed an entirely new form of earthquake wave which he said also would vitally affect general seismological theories and problems of building reinforcement against temblors.

Explaining that for certain types of explosions the newly found wave registers strongly on instruments while four other known wave forms, recognized for 40 years, are scarcely recorded, Leet said:

"Because of its importance in tremors arising from explosions, the new wave is expected to play a considerable part in proposed uses of the seismograph (earthquake recorder) in army artillery observation, for the location of heavy enemy guns, and also for computation by a gun crew of their accuracy of fire."

SUPREME COURT TO REVIEW J. L. JOHNSON TAX APPEAL

Agrees to Consider $35,488 Assessment for 1932, Growing Out of Stock Sale to Family Firm.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—The Supreme Court consented today to review a ruling o fthe Eighth United States Circuit Court of Appeals that James Lee Johnson of St. Louis is not liable for a deficiency Federal income tax assessment of $35,488 for 1932, growing out of a loss of $380,000 he set up in sale of 10,000 International Shoe Co. shares to a family corporation.

Both the Federal Board of Tax Appeals and the Appellate Court had rejected to Government's contention that the Eleanor Investment Co., to which Johnson sold the shares, was "organized and controlled by the taxpayer for tax-avoidance purposes" and that hence the deficiency assessment should be sustained.

The Government said he bought the stock in 1929 for $620,000, transferred it in 1932 to the Eleanor company for $240,000 and deducted the difference in his tax return as a $380,000 loss. The Board of Tax Appeals, in a majority ruling, held that the fact that he set up the corporation to minimize his taxes was immaterial.

Johnson is a department advertising manager for the shoe firm and son of the late Oscar Johnson, a founder of the company. He lives in Huntleigh Village.

NAZIS SEEK TO MOVE BALKAN MINORITIES

Offer to Pay for Transportation of 2,000,000 Germans to Poland and Bohemia.

BUDAPEST, Oct. 9 (AP).—Widely published Bucharest dispatches said today the German Government has been conducting secret discussions for several weeks with Balkan nations about transplanting Southeastern European minorities to Germany.

These dispatches said a plan had been advanced whereby Germany would pay expenses for transporting as many of the 2,000,000 Germans now residing in Rumania, Yugoslavia and Hungary as desire to settle in what were Western Poland and Czecho-Slovakia.

Soviet Russia was said to have informed Germany confidentially that to make room for repatriated Germans in these areas, it would admit Czechs and Slovaks who were willing to emigrate to Russian farms or industrial areas.

Latest census figures place the number of Germans in Rumania at nearly 800,000, of whom 225,000 reside in Transylvania, 280,000 in Banat, 80,000 in Bukovina and 100,000 in Bessarabia.

Hungary's German population is placed at 500,000 to 600,000 and Yugoslavia's 600,000 to 700,000.

Italy's Friendly Offer.

Sharing attention with the Bucharest dispatches were reports that Italy had offered new friendship pacts to Hungary and Yugoslavia. These reports were confirmed semi-officially in Belgrade, while similar rumors were headed in Bucharest. Italian radio broadcasts heard here also said neogtiations were under way.

Diplomatic circles said that Adolf Hitler's Reichstag speech last Friday declaring Germany and Russia would settle jointly all problems of Southeastern Europe had speeded Italian action to protect its own Balkan and Danubian interests.

Usually reliable Yugoslav sources said the Italian negotiations were "only the beginning of something much bigger than a mere treaty."

With Italian diplomacy thus far aimed at preserving neutrality, the small southeastern nations saw their chances of staying out of the war enhanced by possibility of some sort of pact with Italy.

Yugoslav-Bulgarian Accord.

Yugoslavia and Bulgaria agreed last summer to pursue a common foreign policy. Yugoslavia and Rumania are old Balkan allies and neither so far has assumed foreign obligations without consulting the other.

Thus with Hungary and Yugoslavia as a starter, an Italian-led Balkan front might expand quickly.

Moreover, Italy in recent weeks has taken steps to win the confidence of Turkey and Greece, withdrawing troops from the Greek frontier in Albania.

There has been a decrease of armed forces by Rumania and Hungary along their common frontier. It was disclosed last night this action was taken on the suggestion of Yugoslavia.

Rumanian newspapers published dispatches from Moscow that the Soviet intended to make no demands upon Rumania in the negotiations with the Turkish Foreign Minister.

The Turkish press commented in strong anti-German terms, giving the impression that if Turkish-Soviet policies are further co-ordinated they may not be as favorable to Germany as Berlin may expect.

GERMAN TROOPS ON OFFENSIVE IN LIMITED AREAS

Seek to Take French Prisoners Near Saarbruecken to Learn of Allies' Plans and Strength

PARIS, Oct. 9 (AP).—French military sources said today German forces had taken the offensive in limited areas along the Western front.

The action, these sources said, apparently was designed to take prisoners to question for information as to French military strength and plans. German attacks were reported near Saarlouis, Saarbruecken and along the Nied River.

Units of the French tank corps were given credit for turning back German attempts to retake captured positions inside Germany.

The French high command's comunique issued tonight said:

"Very great activity of enemy patrols between the Moselle and Saar.

"Artillery action on both sides from the Moselle to the Rhine.

"At sea, one of our patrol boats attacked an enemy submarine with success."

The army communique issued this morning said:

"At the end of the day of the eighth (Oct. 8), and during the night, there was activity by elements in contact in the lower valley of the Nied and to the south of Saarbruecken."

Nazi Activity Oncreasing.

Increasing German activity led Ollied military observers to say the Nazis possibly were preparing to launch a limited offensive to recapture German territory now held by the French before winter starts.

For the first time, the French said, Germany began counter-battery fire, which came to be expected during the Dorld War as a preliminary to an attack.

In Paris, meanwhile, the War Council announced the arrest yesterday of 26 of 72 former Communist Deputies on charges of violating the decree dissolving the Communist party and forbidding Communist propaganda.

The arrests, it was said, were based on a letter sent to Edouard Herriot, president of the Chamber of Deputies, urging convocation of Parliament for debate of "immediate peace."

Sixteen of the Deputies were arrested in Paris. The others, taken into custody in the provinces, are being sent to the capital.

The arrest of two Alsatian deputies who long have advocated autonomy for the frontier province facing Geermany was disclosed today. The deputies are Joseph Rosse and Marcel Steumel, both members of the independent popular action party.

Observers said their predictions of an early Nazi offensive were strengthened by the let-up of heavy rains in the fighting zone and reports that German veterans of the Polish invasion were being stationed in great numbers in the Saarland facing the French line.

The French communique showed that fighting was concentrated south of Saarbruecken and about six miles west of Saarbruecken in the lower Nied River valley.

The French earlier had asserted their troops repulsed a series of German "surprise attacks" east of the Moselle River.

Most of the German artillery fire was south and southwest of Saarlouis, between Saarbruecken and Luxembourg. The French replied steadily to the Nazi shelling.

With the clearing weather, French planes were said to have made observation trips over the Western German cities of Cologne and Bonn, which are on the Rhine opposite Germany's Belgian and Netherlands frontiers.

One French scouting plane failed to return to its base, it was announced.

French newspapers continued to reject Adolf Hitler's peace offer.

"Only One Reply to Hitler."

"There is only one reply to Hitler, and that is with cannon," declared Le Figaro.

Russia's move into Baltic affairs and reports that the Soviet army planned to build a "Maginot" line facing Germany along the frontier laid down in conquered Poland by the two countries were held up as examples of distrust underlying the German-Russian agreement.

It was estimated the Allied blockade had brought about seizure of 400,000 tons of commodities meant for Germany. A large part of this was said to have been oil, and French sources said Germany had only a six months' fuel reserve.

BRITISH SAY PILOTS TOOK PHOTOS LOW OVER SIEGFRIED LINE

Three Planes Fired On Only Once, Patrol States, in 20-Mile Stretch.

LONDON, Oct. 9 (AP).—A story of three British planes flying over more than 20 miles of the Siegfried line and taking pictures "at a height rarely exceeding 100 feet," was told last night by the official "eyewitness" correspondent in France.

The planes were fired at only once, with an ordinary machine gun, the "eyewitness" said, quoting the leader, a young flight Lieutenant.

He gave the following story in the flyer's words:

"I was impressed by the obviously unfinished state of the Siegfried line. It was absurdly easy to pick out, because the grass has not had time to grow again over the scarred earth.

"In many places we saw mounds of freshly thrown-up earth and white patches where they had been burrowing in the chalky soil.

"In one place we flew right over a huge gun which a group of men were camouflaging. I could distinctly see them gaping up at us with their paint pots in their hands —apparently unable to move.

"We passed many villages but I did not see a single civilian inhabitant. Nearly always the streets were quite deserted, though sometimes soldiers were strolling about looking up at us."

The flyer told of seeing "what might have been complete dummy villages" and gun emplacements showing on the fringe of a dense forest.

REFUGEE PASSENGERS SCARCE, U. S. LINER DELAYED AT COBH

Acadia Equipped to Carry 678, But Only 197 Were Aboard When It Left Southampton.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9 (AP).—The American liner Acadia which was sent to Europe to return war refugees has been delayed at Cobh, Ireland, because of a scarcity of passengers, the United States lines said today.

Line officers said the vessel was equipped to carry 678 passengers and only 197 were aboard when it left Southampton Oct. 6. The Acadia will sail today or tomorrow depending on the number of passengers booked, the line said. It will not be convoyed.

The U. S. Lines chartered five vessels to help return Americans from war zones and thus far none of these ships has been filled to capacity. The Acadia, a 6185-ton vessel, was chartered from the Eastern Steamship Lines. It normally is engaged in the east coast trade.

NAZI SQUADRON GETS AWAY FROM BRITISH PATROL

reconnaissance plane clashed with a German flying boat, the communique said. While the fight was in progress, a second German flying boat appeared and a free-for-all was on.

"Shortly afterwards two more British reconnaissance aircraft came on the scene," the communique said. "The British aircraft quickly gained the upper hand.

"The first enemy flying boat slipped out of the fight and fell into the sea. Its companion made off.

"After the combat the pilot of one of the Royal Air Force aircraft saw the German crew in the sea clinging to the wreckage of their flying boat. A ship in the vicinity was directed to the rescue and our aircraft resumed its patrol."

SUBMARINE SEEN 200 MILES OFF ROUTE OF THE IROQUOIS

Navy and Coast Guard Reported Searching for Craft Siighted Near Portland, Me.—Officials Silent.

PORTLAND, Me., Oct. 9 (AP).—Persistent reports that Navy and Coast Guard craft are searching by sea and air for a strange submarine sighted off this coast yesterday—approximately 200 miles off the normal course of the refugee ship Iroquois—were met with silence today by all official sources.

Arthur R. Greenleaf, Maine's Commissioner of Sea and Shore Fisheries, announced he saw the submarine clearly, moving at high speed on a course that would take the craft in the general direction of the European ship lanes.

Navy and Coast Guard officials both in this State and in Boston declined to confirm or deny reports that a wide search was being made for the undersea craft.

While five miles off Portland Lightship on coastal patrol early yesterday morning, Greenleaf said, he and two subordinates saw the submersible come within 50 yards of their motor cruiser, start to circle the patrol boat, then speed off to the Southeast.

Portsmouth (N. H.) Navy Yard officials said no American undersea craft was near the position given, which is 13 miles south of Portland.

Twice before since the war began fishermen have reported unidentified submarines off the Maine coast.

White House Reports Foreign Submarine Near Key West.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9 (AP).—The White House said today that Navy patrols had observed a non-American submarine yesterday about 20 miles west of Key West, Fla.

Stephen Early, a presidential secretary, said it possibly was the same boat which was reported Saturday 15 miles off Miami, Fla.

The submarine, Early added, was comparatively small. Also seen in the same vicinity, he said, were two non-American tankers. He declined to say, however, whether the submarine and the tankers were of the same nationality.

"This information is still in the process of being checked," Early asserted when asked whether other Governments and American shipping had been notified of the presence of the undersea craft.

If the submarine sighted off Key West was not the one seen near Miami, it was the fourth foreign submersible noted in waters adjacent to the United States since war began in Europe.

The President announced last month the presence of a foreign submarine near Southern Alaska and another off Boston.

IROQUOIS, WITH ESCORT OF NAVY SHIPS, DUE IN NEW YORK WEDNESDAY

NEW YORK, Oct. 9 (AP).

CHARLES H. C. PEARSALL, vice-president of the A. G. W. I. Line which owns the liner Iroquois, said today he saw no reason "why the Iroquois should not dock safely in New York City by Wednesday or Thursday."

Pearsall said his company was not being kept fully informed of the ship's movements at sea and declared "we have no commitments for the Iroquois to make another trip to Europe."

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9 (AP).—Navy vessels have reached the American steamer Iroquois, returning from Ireland with 584 passegers and are escorting it home.

This was disclosed yesterday by the navy, which declined further information. The German Admiralty notified the White House last Thursday that the Iroquois, due in New York Wednesday, would be sunk "through a repetition of circumstances which marked the loss of the steamship Athenia."

German officials have denied that a Nazi submarine torpedoed the Athenia, a British ship, on the first day of the war. They declare that the British had it sunk and then tried to blame the Reich for propaganda reasons.

METEOR SHOWER EXPECTED TONIGHT IN NORTHERN SKIES

Giacobind Galaxy, Usually Too Sparce to Attract Notice, Likely to Be Abundant This Year.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9 (AP).—The Giacobind Meteors are expected to be visible tonight and tomorrow night in the northwestern sky. They should be seen in the vicinity of the bright star, Vega.

Usually these meteors are so few they attract no notice, but astronomers think there may be a shower of them this year. They fly around the sun in the same orbit as the Giacobina-Zinner Comet and are believed to be scattered thickest in the region close to the comet.

In 1933, the last time the earth was close to this comet, there was a bright shower of the Giacobind shooting stars, and during the next two nights the earth again will be near the comet. The comet is not visible to the naked eye.

The best time to see the Giacobind Meteors, if they are bright enough to be visible, will be after midnight tonight and tomorrow night.

ROOSEVELT SAYS CONSUMERS NEED FOOD PRICE PROTECTION

Tells Association Guard Must Be Against Runaway Rates Caused by Marginal Increases.

CHICAGO, Oct. 9 (AP).—President Roosevelt in a letter to the National Association of Food Chains today said restoration of farm prices would add support to our national prosperity and general welfare, but added:

"At the same time, consumers of food must be protected against runaway prices caused not by increases at the farm but by increases in margins between the farmer and the kitchen table."

The letter was read at the opening of the association's sixth annual meeting by John A. Logan of Washington, president of the association and member of the Federal Government's newly appointed Agricultural Advisory Council.

MARSHAL BALBO'S PAPER CALLS REDS 'FRAUDS, CLOWNS'

Fascists Born Anti-Communist and Are Determined So to Remain, His Publication Asserts.

ROME, Oct. 9 (AP).—The newspaper Il Corriere Padano, owned by Air Marshal Italo Balbo, Governor of Libya, declared today in an editorial that the Fascists were "born anti-Communist and are determined so to remain."

While Balbo owns the paper, he takes no part in its active direction.

The editorial, signed by Nello Guilici, director of the newspaper, was interpreted as a rebuke to some Italian papers which printed favorable articles about Soviet Russian after the development of the new German-Russian partnership.

Il Corriere demanded "not a gram of esteem, not an ounce of sympathy for the Bolsheviks."

"For us," the editorial said, "they are and always will be tragic clowns, professional frauds, models of coarse bestiality and living monsters in the service of the most lunatic, infamous degradation that universal history records."

Il Corriere said it objected especially to a sympathetic sketch of Marshal Klementi E. Voroshilov, Soviet War Commissar, published by a Rome magazine.

Labeling Voroshilov "a sinister personage," the newspaper accused him of complicity in "felonious massacres, executions and horrible, wholesale carnage in accordance with his own whims or those of his master.

"Naturally, Voroshilov and his comrades, like all Russian Bolshevik carrion, don't mean anything to us. Whether they glorify or slaughter one another is their business.

"At most, it would mean a few less criminals abroad in the world.

"But that in Italy a Voroshilov legend should be allowed which competes with the legend of Garibaldi—this positively cannot be." (Guiseppe Garibaldi was a famous Italian patriot of the nineteenth century).

Italy is reported to be working actively to protect its Balkan and Danubian interests against any extension of German and Russian influence in that area.

The Hungarian-Rumania agreement to reduce their frontier forces, and conversations between Yugoslavia and Hungary were regarded here as signs of progress.

In some quarters it was believed Italy was seeking to eliminate differences which have divided the Balkan countries preparatory to formation of a bloc under Italian leadership.

While striving to cement peace in the Balkans, the Fascist press urged Britain and France to accept Adolf Hitler's offer of peace in Europe.

BUYER ABANDONS STRAW DEAL WITH DICKMANN FIRM

Nat Glick to Drop Suit for Property of Closed Bank Which Reverts to State for Depositors.

FEARED LOSS FROM DECLINE IN VALUE

He Was to Pay $58,750 for 20 Parcels, for Which Another Dealer Says He Offered $62,000.

Nat Glick, real estate dealer who recently won the right to be heard in his suit to set aside a Circuit Court order invalidating the straw party sale to him by the Joseph Dickmann Real Estate Co. of pieces of real estate of two closed State banks, has changed his mind about the deal and plans to withdraw from the litigation, the Post-Dispatch learned today.

His withdrawal will leave title to the properties, which he contracted to buy for $58,750, in the State Finance Department for sale to the highest bidder for benefit of depositors of the two closed banks—the Savings Trust Co. and the West St. Louis Trust Co.

A hearing of his suit would bring up the issue raised by the State Finance Department in its original action to set aside the sale, whether the order of sale was procured by fraud.

Secret Agreement Alleged.

In its original action, filed Aug. 11, 1938, the State Finance Department alleged there was a secret agreement between Glick and the Dickmann company, which was the department's selling agent for the properties and that the company failed to submit all offers to Special Deputy Finance Commissioner J. S. Lockett, then in charge of liquidation of the two banks. Both Glick and the Dickmann firm have denied these allegations.

Another real estate dealer, Samuel Michelson, had sought to set aside the sale to Glick through a straw party, Margaret Skain, stating he had submitted an offer of $62,000 to the Dickmann firm, accompanied by checks for $1000 in earnest money.

Former Circuit Judge Harry B. Hamilton, representing Glick, told the Post-Dispatch his client was abandoning the purchase because he believed he would suffer a loss if he were able to keep the properties, due to a decline in real estate values.

He said his client planned to file in Circuit Court an agreement that the sale be set aside and that the agreement would be in a stipulation in which both sides release all claims on each other.

Appeal Tied Up Property.

Former Circuit Judge J. West McAfee, representing State Finance Commissioner R. W. Holt, said he would confer today on the stipulation with Holt's representative in St. Louis, William H. Biggs. A statulation of mutual release would be necessary to prevent possibility of a cloud on title of the properties.

Although Holt obtained title to the properties when Circuit Judge Robert J. Kirkwood set aside the sale to Glick in August, 1938, he was unable to sell them to another because Glick's appeal to the State Supreme Court tied up the properties.

Judge Kirkwood set aside the sale on his own motion, without hearing. Glick asked him to set aside his ruling, but he refused, stating he had taken "judicial notice of the ugly rumors that have been going around about this matter" and that he would not be doing his duty if he did not see that depositors of the bank got all they could.

Supreme Court Orders Hearing.

Glick appealed from that decision and last Sept. 5 the Supreme Court overruled Judge Kirkwood, holding that Glick or his straw party was entitled to a hearing. The court did not rule on the merits of the litigation.

Disclosure of the straw party deals in this case began the long investigation of the Dickman company's straw party deals in real estate of a group of closed banks for which it was selling agent. The State Finance Commissioner canceled the Dickmann company's exclusive selling contracts and filed suits for recovery of about $14,000 in profits and commissions alleged to have been made by the Dickmann firm in straw party deals.

DENIES STATE TRUCK FEES ARE TOO HIGH

J. D. James Says They Pay but Half of Just Share of Road Upkeep.

Truck fees collected by Missouri are but half the estimated cost chargeable to trucks for maintenance of highways and streets used by them, J. D. James, chairman of the Missouri Public Service Commission, said today in a speech at the annual meeting of the Truckmen of Missouri at Hotel York.

James said his figures were obtained from a survey of highway costs made by the Missouri State Highway Department. He added that he had no intention of implying that rates should be increased, but contended that complaints by truckers that fees were prohibitive were "not justified."

Trying to Enforce Fee Law.

He said the commission had been attempting to enforce the law for collection of fees in municipal areas since its enactment in 1931, but that the commission had been restrained by numerous suits, most of which were filed by truck owners operating in and out of St. Louis. Enforcement, he said, would proceed as rapidly as the law is clarified through the pending litigation.

James ponted out that since the enforcement campaign in St. Louis began several months ago, the commission has received about 400 new applications for common carrier and contract hauler permits. He said the applications, when granted, would place more than 2500 trucks operating within the St. Louis commercial district under P. S. C. regulations.

$700,000 in Fees for 1939.

During 1939 the commission will collect about $700,000 in truck and bus fees, part of which is distributed to cities for the maintenance of streets used by the carriers, he said. He explained that the law contemplated that all fees paid by trucks operating solely within St. Louis should be allocated to the city. It has been estimated that if all truckers subject to the law would comply with it, the City of St. Louis would annually receive about $150,000 in fees.

Bills to revise truck regulation, including a new provision for reciprocity with states which agree not to tax Missouri trucks, were defeated at the last session of the Legislature after it was learned that a $15,000 fund to promote the legislation had been raised and officers of the truckers' organization offered no satisfactory explanation of its use.

The Truckmen of Missouri is an association of about 200 representatives of all branches of the trucking industry.

TRIAL IN SUIT TO BREAK WILL OF GEORGE BAPTISTE BEGINS

3 Relatives Charge Awning Firm Head, Who Once Was Wrestler, Was Influenced by Others.

Trial of the suit to break the will of George Baptiste, former professional wrestler and head of an awning company, began today before a jury in Circuit Judge Charles B. Williams' court.

The suit was brought by John and William Baptiste, half-brothers of George, and William A. Baptiste, a nephew. They charge that he was ill when he made the will and under undue influence of other persons. They were left nothing.

The will set up a trust fund from which Miss Lillian Slingwein, identified as a "lifelong friend," and a niece, Mrs. Alexia L. H. Palmer, are to receive $50 a month. Miss Slingwein married Baptiste four days before he died last Dec. 1. She has renounced the will and elected to take a widow's share of the esttae, which has been valued at $180,000.

USED-CAR-DEALER GETS TWO YEARS FOR FRAUD

Walter Plough Obtained Titles, Sold Autos Without Paying for Them.

Walter Plough, used car dealer, was sentenced to a Federal penitentiary for two years by United States District Judge Charles B. Davis today on his plea of guilty of using the mails to defraud.

Postoffice inspectors estimated he had obtained $6000 fraudulently from persons who sold him used cars and then failed to collect for them. As owner of the Wade Motor Co., 4411 Easton avenue, he offered in newspaper advertisements to pay top prices for late model used cars. Before buying cars, however, he required the sellers to assign their titles to his firm, saying the deal would be consummated after the titles had been examined, a process requiring 10 days to two weeks.

In exchange for the titles, postal inspectors related, he gave promissory notes. In some instances he resold cars the same day he bought them for prices less than he had given. When sellers asked for their money after 10 days or two weeks, they were told to wait another two weeks. Then Plough closed his business and left. In 12 counts he was charged with defrauding 12 sellers of used cars.

Default Decree Granted Against Vice-President of St. Louis County Gas Co.

Mrs. Lewis testified that she and Lewis occupied separate apartments in their home, 459 West Swon avenue, Webster Groves, for several years; that he was cold and indifferent and suggested a divorce. They were married Sept. 23, 1926, and have no children.

By stipulation Mrs. Lewis received gross alimony of $11,650, and she agreed to vacate the Swon avenue residence. Lewis filed an answer and denial. The hearing was before Circuit Judge Peter T. Barrett.

MAN SUMMONED TO COURT TRIES TO HANG HIMSELF

Daughter Saves Samuel Wheeler, Accused by Wife of Peace Disturbance, by Cutting Rope.

Samuel Wheeler, who was supposed to appear in Police Court this morning to answer a peace disturbance charge preferred by his wife last Saturday, tried to end his life by hanging shortly after 9 a. m. in the basement of his flat at 1524 North Vandeventer avenue.

Mrs. Bertha Taylor, a resident of the same building, saw him go into the basement and notified his daughter, Miss Mildred Wheeler, who was visiting friends near by. Going to the flat, Miss Wheeler found him hanging from a rafter by the clothesline. She cut the rope with a kitchen knife and called police.

Wheeler was taken to City Hospital, where his condition was said to be serious. He is 49 years old and unemployed.

TWO ESCAPED CONVICTS CAUGHT AFTER 20 YEARS

Stark Signs Papers for Return of One From New York, the Other From California.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 9 (AP).—Requisition papers for two fugitives who escaped from the Missouri Penitentiary system 20 years ago were issued today by Gov. Stark.

The two are James W. Riley, alias William Harding, held in Buffalo, N. Y., on a fugitive warrant charging he escaped from a Callaway County prison farm in 1919, and J. D. Bennett, in custody at Sacramento, Cal., on a misdemeandr charge.

Bennett was reported to have escaped from a Callaway County prison camp in 1918.

Bennett was serving a two-year term on a grand larceny charge and Riley was serving a similar sentence on a second-degree forgery charge. Both were sentenced from Jackson County.

Buffalo police quoted Riley as saying he would waive extradition. Riley, arrested Sept. 25, has served three terms in New York, one for parole violation, and has been convicted of five felonies, police said.

WOMAN ARRESTED HERE LINKED WITH KILLING IN TEXAS

Escaped Reformatory Inmate, Who Says She Shot Man, Resembles Description of Suspect.

Isabelle Messmere, escaped reformatory inmate arrested in St. Louis last week, answers the description of a woman sought for the murder of a man in a tourist cabin at Odessa, Tex., last March 30, Sheriff Reeder Webb of Odessa told the Post-Dispatch today.

She had told police of having killed a man in the tourist cabin, but police placed little credence in her story after learning from authorities at the New Jersey Reformatory for Women, from which she escaped last Jan. 20, that she was in the habit of creating fanciful situations with herself as the central figure.

Sheriff Webb, when told by the Post-Dispatch of the woman's story and description, immediately telephoned St. Louis police, asking that she be held for him. He was told a decision would depend on a ruling by the Circuit Attorney's office as to whether to send her back to New Jersey, prosecute her on a charge of carrying concealed weapons—growing out of the presence of a revolver in her purse when she was arrested here—or return her to Texas.

Her Story of Killing.

In her account to police she said she had been registered at the cabin as Dolores Martin. She said she killed Buford Armstrong, pitcher for the Odessa semi-professional baseball team, and fled immediately afterward. She refused to give further details, other than that she was wanted by Texas authorities.

Sheriff Webb told the Post-Dispatch she had been registered at two tourist camps — at one as Dolores Martin, at the other as Dolores Martina. Armstrong's body, with a bullet wound in the right side, was not found until 24 hours after the shooting. By this time the woman had disappeared, leaving her belongings at one of the cabins. It was later learned she had departed in a taxicab.

She was reported seen at Colorado Springs, Colo., the night after her disappearance, but no trace of her had been found since, the Sheriff said. She was indicted on a murder charge in July.

Pistol Used in Previous Killing.

Detective Sergeant Kenneth P. McGuire, who with another officer arrested the woman in a downtown hotel on information she had a pistol in her purse, quoted her as saying she obtained the revolver used in killing Armstrong—another weapon—from two Mexicans who told her they had used it to kill two California women.

She refused to give further details along this line. Police recalled the murder of Mrs. Weston G. Frome of Berkeley, Cal., and her daughter, Nancy, who were tortured and clubbed to death in the desert near Van Horn, Tex., in April, 1938. The younger woman had been shot with a .32-caliber pistol, the same caliber as the weapon used in killing Armstrong.

McGuire said he questioned the Messmere woman also about the disappearance of the George M. Lorius party of Illinois tourists in New Mexico in 1935, but that she replied she knew nothing of this case.

At the time of her escape from the New Jersey institution she said she had served 11 months of a seven-year term growing out of an assault on a New Jersey policeman. She is 24 years old.

When arrested here she said at first that she was a Mexican, a former night club hostess in Laredo, Tex., and that she was carrying the pistol with a view of ending her life. She admitted her identity when police confronted her with information from the New Jersey reformatory, which had learned she was in St. Louis.

She was taken to City Hospital Saturday when she became hysterical and started tearing her clothes off after detectives started to place her in the police showup.

Clarence T. Sevem, 35 years old, ended his life today by shooting himself in the chest in the living room of his home, 6519 Minnesota avenue.

His father, Otto Sevem, said he had been out of work for five years and had been suffering from a nervous condition. He was a clerk. The elder Sevem, a night watchman, awoke at 11:25 o'clock this morning, went into the living room and found his son on the floor, a shotgun beside him.

MISSING U.S. ARMY PILOT FOUND DEAD IN WRECKED SHIP

Maj. D. D. Watson of Randolph Field, Tex., Killed in Crash Near Caruthersville, Mo.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CARUTHERSVILLE, Mo., Oct. 9.—The body of Maj. Dayton D. Watson, United States Army pilot of Randolph Field, Tex., was found in his wrecked plane in a field 15 miles north of Caruthersville today by two amateur pilots, who spotted the overturned plane from the air.

Maj. Watson, 42 years old, had been missing since Friday, when he took off from Nashville, Tenn., bound for Memphis.

Reginald Gearhart and Ben Funk saw the plane wreckage from the air. They landed some distance away and drove to the scene in an automobile.

"The pilot apparently tried to land in a field of standing corn and his plane flipped over on its back on striking the corn," Funk said. "The plane skidded some distance in the overturned position and the pilot's body was in the cockpit. Gasoline was still leaking from the tanks."

Residents of a farm house near by said they had not witnessed or heard the crash, and were not aware the plane was in the field. The number on the wrecked ship corresponded with that on Maj. Watson's plane.

Search for the missing pilot had been made in Tennessee and Arkansas. Seven army planes from Barksdale Field, La., left Memphis this morning to search along the Hatchie River bottoms. Hundreds of CCC youths and volunteers had conducted a ground search.

INDUSTRIAL PLACEMENTS UP

254,000 Obtained Jobs Through Public Agencies in August.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9 (AP).—The Social Security Board reported today that public employment offices placed 20 per cent more workers in jobs in private industry during August than in July. Placements reached an all-time monthly high of 254,000, a figure 34 per cent above August, 1938.

Aubrey Williams reported that 500,000 students would receive employment under the National Youth Administration's aid program during the present school year. This figure, the administrator said, was the highest for any school year since the establishment of NYA.

FINNISH SHIP HITS MINE AND SINKS; DUTCH CRAFT LOST

Former Vessel Goes Down Off Terschelling Island —Crew Said to Have Been Rescued.

EXPLOSION OCCURS ON OTHER FREIGHTER

Fire Breaks Out After Blast—41 Men Aboard Saved by British Boat in the English Channel.

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 9 (AP). — Rescue boats from the Netherlands reported the Finnish freighter Indra, 2026 tons, sank today after striying a mine off the Island of Terschelling.

Only wreckage of the sunken freighter was found but the entire crew of the Indra was believed to have been rescued by nearby Finnish ships which proceeded on their way.

LONDON, Oct. 9 (AP). — The Holland-Amerika freighter Binnendijk, which sailed from New York for Amsterdam Sept. 26, sank in flames in the English Channel early yesterday after an explosion.

The crew of 41 was rescued by a British examination ship which answered rocket signals sent up by the 6873-ton vessel as she went down about two hours after an explosion.)

Capt. W. Moree of Rotterdam said he was on the bridge when a "terrific explosion" put the engines and wireless out of commission. He said he was unable to determine immediately whether the ship was sunk by a mine or torpedo. Authorities said there were no British mines in that area.

(The Holland-Amerika Line announced in Rotterdam it had been informed by the Binnendijk's captain that his vessel struck a mine. His message said the vessel went down about midnight last night, two hours after an explosion.)

"The ship began to sink very slowly," Capt. Moree said. "We fired rocket signals, which were answered. Later an examination vessel came alongside and, making fast to our ship, took us all off—the 41 officers and crew. We had no passengers.

"We were holed on the port side forward. There was an awful smoke all over the ship."

He said that until then the passage from New York had been uneventful and "we saw nothing nearing the English coast" for an inspection of the ship's general cargo.

The explosion occurred as most of the men were asleep in their bunks, one member of the crew said. The freighter went down soon after the last man was taken off, he added.

Seaman Aart Winkelkoff said:

"We felt two shocks or bumps and then there was an explosion. We got into our lifeboats ready to cast off, but an English war vessel took us off. While we were being taken ashore we saw our ship go down in flames."

Two members of the crew suffered leg fractures.

The sinking of the Binnendijk was the first reported since the loss of the 876-ton British freighter Glen Farg, which the British Admiralty said Friday had been sunk by a submarine. The Glen Farg's crew was saved, but one seaman died later.

The Binnendijk operated between Eastern United States coast ports and Rotterdam and Antwerp. The 400-foot craft was built in 1921.

STARK DIRECTS M'KITTRICK TO AID KANSAS CITY JURY

Calls on Him to Give All Legal Assistance Possible in Inquiry Into Gambling and Corruption.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 9.—Gov. Lloyd C. Stark sent a letter today to Attorney-General Roy McKittrick, directing him to go to Kansas City and give all legal aid within his power to the new Circuit Court grand jury there.

Circuit Judge Paul A. Buzard of Kansas City, who impaneled the grand jury recently, asked the Governor for McKittrick's aid yesterday. Judge Buzard instructed the jury, which was to begin its work today, to investigate crime, gambling and political corruption and "any matters pertaining to the recall." This was a reference to petitions for recall of Mayor Smith and four members of the City Council.

McKittrick is in Washington, due back in his office here on Wednesday. It will be recalled that, at the direction of the Governor, he aided the preceding grand jury impaneled by Circuit Judge Allen C. Southern. Judge Buzard also instructed the new grand jury to inquire into reports some of the pay-off money in the notorious fire insurance rate compromise changed hands in Jackson County.

Move in Senate for Recess During Peace Overtures

Downey Resumes His Speech.

After the flurry caused by Johnson's move the debate over revision of the neutrality laws began again. Downey resumed the speech he had broken off as the Senate recessed Friday, indicating he would talk at least three hours and probably through most of the afternoon.

Downey is one of those most strongly opposed to repeal of the embargo. He talked for two and a half hours last week with frequent interruptions from Senator Pittman, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee.

Senator Byrnes (Dem.), South Carolina, who is managing the neutrality bill behind the scenes, predicted that the Johnson resolution to recess would not get a dozen votes when it is called up.

Senator Clark (Dem.), Missouri, originally was scheduled to go on today for the anti-repeal bloc but when it was learned that Downey was to speak so long, Clark's talk was deferred. He probably will speak tomorrow. Clark has been working intensively on his speech for the last few days.

For Extending Monroe Doctrine.

Downey proposed today that the Monroe Doctrine be extended to Australia and New Zealand, arguing that such a policy would make not only those countries but the United States impregnable against attack. He said, however, that he was not in favor of protecting British colonial possessions generally.

He denounced the pending bill's strict provision against American ships carrying goods to any belligerent nation, saying this would destroy in 24 hours a great commerce from West Coast ports out into the Pacific, where, he said, military experts agreed there was no possibility of military action.

Asserting that the world crisis growing out of the European war should not divert America's attention from a "domestic crisis" and the "misery of great groups of people here," Downey called for slow action on the neutrality problem.

"This question involves serious implications and far-reaching consequences and no group of men should hurry us into precipitate action on something that could be foreseen years ago—a general war involving our commerce," Downey said.

He contended that the proposed neutrality act would do immeasurable harm to Pacific Coast shipping and asserted that Pacific Coast shipping had no bearing on possible involvement in the European war.

Wagner May Speak Today.

Senator Danaher (Rep.), Connecticut, a newcomer, was expected to speak briefly against repeal today and Senator Wagner (Dem.), New York, was expected to reply. Consideration of the Johnson resolution may interfere with these plans, however.

For the second week of the neutrality debate galleries were packed with many standees and long files waiting in Senate corridors.

Still another amendment was thrown in today, by Senator Davis (Rep.), Pennsylvania, calling for the creation of a neutrality commission of four Senators and four Representatives, equally divided between Republicans and Democrats. The President would not act, according to the Davis amendment, under any of the discretionary powers contained in the neutrality legislation until he had consulted with this committee. This and the numerous other neutrality proposals thrown into the special session have little chance of consideration.

Senate Vote on Tobey Proposal Set for Tomorrow.

By the Associated Press.

An agreement was reached today in the Senate between Democratic Leader Barkley and Senator Tobey (Rep.), New Hamshire, to vote tomorrow on Tobey's proposal to defer action on repeal of the arms embargo until a cash-and-carry system of wartime trade is adopted.

Both sides predicted defeat of the proposal. Opponents of the administration's neutrality bill asserted that the vote would not be an accurate test of strength on the repeal issue.

Administration forces expressed certainty of ultimate victory for repeal by a sizeable margin and predicted that debate would not last much more than another week.

This was challenged by Senator Nye (Rep.), North Dakota, one of the anti-repeal leaders, who said that at least 20 more Senators intended to speak against the measure.

Meanwhile, Representative Woodrum (Dem.), Virginia, proposed a congressional investigation of the "purposes and activities" of an unofficial "national committee to keep America out of foreign wars," headed by Representative Fish (Rep.), New York.

In a resolution offered in the House, Woodrum proposed appointment of a special seven-man committee to investigate the group which he said had been soliciting contributions in a "propaganda campaign that makes the utilities and Doc Townsend look like pikers."

He made public what he said were duplicate copies of letters written on Fish's congressional stationery soliciting funds for the committee. The addressee was asked to send contributions to Walter L. Reynolds, treasurer, and funds would be used for "printing and distributing literature, publishing in newspapers throughout the country full pages explaining foreign relations problems as they come up, nation-wide broadcasting hookups, a large scale public speaking program, and a national keep out of war convention to be held in Washington, D. C."

Fish had proposed a short time before that the House agree to a minimum of 20 hours' debate on the neutrality legislation when the resolution reaches it from the Senate.

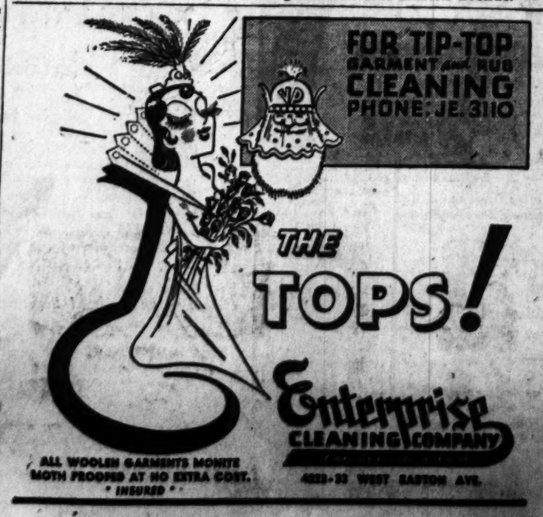
Saloon Proprietors Arrested After Police Find 17 Customers in One Place Drinking Beer.

Eight men were arrested for alleged violation of the Sunday closing law in raids on five taverns yesterday.

Thomas Church and Clifford Williams, proprietors of a saloon at 3604 Cozens avenue, in Carpenters' Hall, were arrested at 2 p. m. after police, entering the place through the building lobby, found 17 customers drinking beer.

Other arrests were of Milton Trefz, bartender at 3023 North Grand boulevard; Nathan Muchnick, confectionery proprietor at 1700 Goode avenue; Frank Barcal, 1328 Allen avenue, and Joe Cusumano, proprietor, and Paul Sottile and Walter Minardi, waiters, of a garden at 3223 Easton avenue.



HONEYMOON PAIR SAVED AS YACHT BURNS AND SINKS

All of Crew Rescued Except One Man—$200,000 Loss—Craft Owned By Anthony Fokker.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9 (AP).—Searchers gave up hope today of finding alive a crew member lost when the $200,000 ultra-modern yacht Q. E. D. planned and owned by the airplane designer, Anthony Fokker, burned and sank in the Hudson River off Yonkers early yesterday.

Nine crew members and Mr. and Mrs. Richard G. Vance of Westfield, N. J., to whom Fokker had lent the boat for a honeymoon cruise to Niagara Falls, leaped into the river as flames swept the 110-foot streamlined vessel.

The missing seaman, John Wanamaker, 42 years old, father of two children, disappeared after calling for help. The other crew members were picked up quickly by river craft.

Clad only in night clothes, Vance and his bride of six hours, the former Paula Borchard, paddled to shore in a rubber boat tossed from the blazing yacht by a seaman.

The rescued crew members, who suffered minor burns, said the fire apparently started from a fireplace in the suite occupied by the Vances.

The yacht was built last year by Fokker in an attempt to apply airplane design principles to shipbuilding. It was insured.

ALLIES IN ACCORD ON THEIR PURPOSE IN WAR, CHAMBERLAIN SAYS

to Hitler would be framed to offset what was considered here as a Nazi attempt to place the blame for continuance of hostilities on Britain and France.

Dispatches from Berlin hinting that Hitler might welcome the intervention of President Roosevelt as a peace mediator were characterized by the press as a "Nazi trap for the United States."

Remarking that heads of neutral European nations are making no move to intervene, the Times' editorial said:

"President Roosevelt, who has made more than one vigorous attempt to substitute reason for force in the relations of the Nazi Government, is certainly not the man to abandon his efforts because of the discourtesy with which Hitler refused them.

"But he has made no response to the present move, and the American press, irrespective of divisions of opinion on the neutrality bill, shows by its unanimous condemnation of Hitler's speech that it finds no opportunity for his mediation."

Meanwhile, the nation's armed forces heard King George assert that, though "your task may be long and arduous, I have every confidence in your ultimate success."

Troop Movement Continues.

Movement of British troops from England toward the front in France continued unabated.

There were no brass bands playing as the troops, loaded down with full war kit, proceeded toward secret destinations. In nearly every village, however, railroad stations resounded with the singing of war songs as uniformed young Britons said good-by to families and sweethearts.

Some of the songs—such as the ditty, "We'll hang our washing on the Siegfried line"—were new, but more popular were the tunes to which another generation marched off to war 25 years ago.

Girls' voices were raised with those of the soldiers in "Tipperary" and sentimental songs like "Keep the Home Fires Burning" and "Irish Eyes Are Smiling."

One truckload of troops, riding through an English village in a long column of artillery, lustily roared out the American Civil War song, "John Brown's Body."

GOV. CHANDLER RESIGNS, IS NAMED TO U. S. SENATE

Immediately Appointed by Lieut.-Gov. Johnson Who Becomes Kentucky's Chief Executive.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Oct. 9 (AP).—Gov. A. B. (Happy) Chandler resigned today and was succeeded by Lieutenant-Governor Keen Johnson, who immediately appointed Chandler to the United States Senate, succeeding the late M. M. Logan.

In brief ceremonies in the Governor's private office, Chandler, whose gubernatorial term would have expired Dec. 12, signed his resignation.

A few minutes later Johnson, the Democratic nominee for Governor in the November general election, was sworn in as Governor by Chief Justice Alex Ratliff of the Kentucky Court of Appeals.

Chandler was appointed to the Senate vacancy caused by the death of Senator Logan last Tuesday.

The new junior Senator from Kentucky plans to leave Frankfort tonight for Washington, and probably will present himself to the Senate tomorrow.

Just before he resigned as Governor, Chandler commissioned approximately 60 new Kentucky Colonels.

HIGH SCHOOL BOY, ILL, SHOOTS SELF TO DEATH IN CAR

Leland Cannings, 17, Found in Auto in Park by Father After He Notifies Police of Absence.

Leland Cannings, 17 years old, senior student at Roosevelt High School, shot and killed himself in his father's automobile in Tower Grove Park early yesterday. He had been receiving treatment for an intestinal ailment for six months, and had been despondent.

The body was found in the parked automobile, near the Kingshighway entrance of the park, by the father, Fred Cannings, a Western Union telegrapher.

Cannings, who had gone to the Magnolia Avenue Police Station in a relative's automobile to report his son's failure to return home, drove through the park and saw his own car parked in the west circle drive and the boy slumped against the window. There was a bullet wound in the right temple and a .38-caliber revolver belonging to a roomer at the Cannings' home was clutched in the right hand. The father hurried back to the police station and notified officers.

The youth attended the horse show Saturday night with a young woman. He took her home about midnight and, when he failed to return home at 1:30 o'clock, his father telephoned his companion. The search followed.

Cannings said his son, an only child, had been despondent because of his long illness, but had never threatened suicide. He underwent an examination at St. Anthony's Hospital Saturday and was to have returned for further examination today. He was manager of the Roosevelt High School basketball team, and would have been graduated next June.

Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon from the Kriegshauser mortuary, 4228 South Kingshighway, with burial in Sunset Burial Park.

CHRYSLER SHUTS PLANT; CHARGES UNION SLOW-DOWN

10,000 Workers in Dodge Division, Detroit, Idle in Dispute Over Reinstating 64 CIO Men.

DETROIT, Oct. 9 (AP).—The Chrysler Corporation closed its Dodge division 20 minutes after the start of operations today and sent 10,000 workers home.

Herman L. Weckler, vice-president in charge of Chrysler operations, said union employes had started a "slow-down" strike after the management had refused to reinstate 64 employes dismissed last week.

The Dodge management said the 3:30 p. m. shift would go to work as usual and that operations on later shifts would be continued if there were no slow-downs. Weckler said both the dismissals Friday and the closing today were brought about by employes allowing automobiles on the final assembly line to go past untouched, disrupting production.

CIO United Automobile Workers officers refused to recognize the dismissals and ordered the men to report for work as usual this morning. When the management refused to reinstate them, a corporation spokesman said, unionists began a 50 per cent slow-down.

Today's halt in operations followed an exchange of accusations over the week end between the company and the union.

The union charged the company with production speedup and unsatisfactory wage scales, while Weckler, in a statement, accused the union of resorting to "a new form of sit-down" which he said was "obviously a demonstration of power to compel concessions in the 30 ECONOMISTS GIVE THEIR VIEWS OF WAR AND U. S.

Although All Predict Upturn, 21 Say Early Peace Means a Temporary Business Recession.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9 (AP).—The United States is entering a period of good business recovery, leading economists said today.

This upturn is due to domestic economic conditions and the European war, most of them said.

Early peace in Europe probably agreed. would bring a temporary recession to American business, most also

The Associated Press questioned 50 leading economists on the causes and probable duration of the upturn. The list was selected with a view to obtaining a fair cross-section, with due regard to differences of political opinion, geography and applied and theoretical practice.

Analysis of 30 Replies.

Thirty full replies received were analyzed and classified as follows with respect to four leading questions:

1. What is the primary cause of the present business upturn?
   - War—8.
   - Domestic business conditions—6.
   - Both—16.
2. How long will the upturn last?
   - As long as the European war—9.
   - Through 1940-5.
   - For some time to come—5.
   - Until the end of 1939-40.
   - Until spring—3.
   - No opinion—2.
   - Until summer—1.
   - Depends on domestic politics—1.
3. How would early peace in Europe affect United States business?
   - Hurt business temporarily —21.
   - Other factors more important—9.
4. Will we have a "boom"?
   - At least a good business recovery—16.
   - Possiby—4.
   - No—4.
   - Probably—2.
   - Yes, if United States enters the war—2.
   - No opinion—2.

A number of the economists warned that accumulation of inventories had been largely in expectation that European war orders would bring higher prices and slower deliveries, and that protracted delay of European buying might bring about an entirely different domestic business picture.

Some of Their Opinions.

Some opinions expressed by the economists follow (opinions were personal, and not necessarily those of the economists' business or educational connections):

James Washington Bell of Northwestern University:

"The recent upturn in business is not wholly due to war influences, and the prospects are good for a continued recovery, regardless of the fortunes of war or peace."

M. R. Benedict of the University of California:

"It is an open question whether mechanisms for control of speculative booms will prove effective, if one really gets under way. Whether boom psychology takes hold will depend considerably on whether Europe moves into major war, or backs away."

Stuart Chase of Georgetown, Conn., recently consultant to the Temporary National Economic Committee:

"The boomlet would collapse with early peace. With cash-and-carry law enacted, a massive upturn is unlikely. Even with embargo repeal, munitions sales are likely to be moderate. The Allies will give preference to their own empires' raw materials."

E. J. Eberling of Vanderbilt University:

"Sharply increased foreign buying has not yet materialized. Buying in some commodities has already reached a speculative stage, hence a real possibility exists of a sharp contraction in prices and production, if peace should be declared suddenly."

"Conditions Are Different."

J. Anderson Fitzgerald of the University of Texas:

"If war continues, the pattern of 1914 and after need not be repeated. Conditions now are different. Developments may take unlike paths. Government-administration and Congress—have power to influence trends."

Robert G. Rodkey of the University of Michigan:

"Fundamentals still indicate modest business improvement for 1940 without war. With war continuing, prospects are good that 1940 will be the best year since 1930."

T. W. Schultz of Iowa State College:

"Stronger demand for most farm products, especially for meat, is more likely to come as the result of improvement in business activity and larger payrolls within United States, rather than from expanded foreign buying of food stuffs."

Ray A. Westerfield of Yale:

"The basis being broader than merely war orders, it may reasonably be expected that the coming year will be one of real activity, whether the war continues or not."

Dale Yoder of the University of Minnesota:

"If war continues expect further expansion with serious recession when peace forces readjustment. If war ends shortly, some recession, but future will depend largely on nature of peace settlement and political prospects in this country."

KING DECORATES FLYERS FOR RECENT NORTH SEA 'TRIUMPH'

Pays Two-Day Visit to Home Fleet and Inspects Naval Airdrome.

LONDON, Oct. 9 (AP). — King George, an Admiralty announcement said yesterday, has paid a two-day visit to the home fleet and inspected a naval airdrome, where he decorated flyers reported to have "recently achieved a certain northern sea triumph." The nature of the "triumph" was not specified.

The Admiralty quoted the King as telling the fleet he had been "much impressed by the keen and cheerful spirit which unites you in the determination to bring the war to a successful conclusion."

20 REPORTED KILLED, NUMBER HURT, IN BERLIN TRAIN WRECK

Passengers Perish When Express Crashes Into Coach Ahead and Fire Breaks Out.

BERLIN, Oct. 9 (AP).—Twenty passengers were reported to have been killed and a number injured last night when the Berlin-Sassnitz express crashed into another passenger train at the Gesundbrunnen station in Berlin.

The rear coach of the second train was telescoped and caught fire. The cause of the accident was not determined immediately.

GAME MANAGEMENT PROJECT PLANNED IN BOONE COUNTY

Hunting to Be Restricted in 25,000-Acre Area Under State Program.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Oct. 9.—A 25,000-acre game management area will be established in Southern Boone County with landowners and tenant farmers co-operating with the Missouri Conservation Commission in a program to restore wildlife. Owners of 5000 acres have signed five-year agreements to co-operate in the program, and other agreements are being signed as land is posted.

The co-operative program provides for controlled hunting on the farms except on 5 per cent or less of the area which will become game refuges. Landowners or farmers may grant permission to hunt or trap on the rest of the area, except that the bag is limited and may be halted altogether if game population reaches a minimum. The owners will plant cover and food crops where farming activities will not be interfered with, and will give permission to improve old ponds and build new ones for use in rearing fish.

The area is in Cedar Township around Ashland, halfway between Columbia and Jefferson City.

OIL LINES REPORTED DAMAGED IN U. S. FLAGSHIP SABOTAGE

Newspaper Says Arizona's Engines Could Have Been Ruined on Concentration Cruise.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 9 (AP).—The Examiner said yesterday oil lines aboard the Arizona, flagship of Rear Admiral Russell Willson, commander of the United States fleet's battleship division 1, had been damaged in a manner which, undiscovered, would have ruined the vessel's engines. It added that certain machinists were under constant surveillance.

The newspaper said the lines were tampered with late in September during a naval concentration.

J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, said in San Francisco that an inquiry was under way.

Shipping Line Organizer Dies.

OSLO, Oct. 9 (AP).—Gustav Henriksen, 67 years old, chief manager of the Norwegian-American Steamship Line, died today. Henriksen organized the line in 1913 and had been a director since that time.

ROME HEARS DAVIS MADE OIL DEAL ON HIS TRIP TO BERLIN

American Who Trades in Mexican Petroleum Travels to Lisbon After Visit to Germany.

By JOHN T. WHITAKER.
The Chicago Daily News-Post-Dispatch Special Cable. Copyright, 1939.

ROME, Oct. 9. — W. R. Davis, American oil trader, who has dissolved in the past of Mexican oil purchased from the expropriated wells of the Standard Oil and Dutch Shell companies, returned here last week from Berlin and left for Lisbon" on Wednesday. It was assumed he was returning to America by Clipper immediately.

Niles Hansel, another American operator who is believed to be working here for Davis, left for Lisbon on Saturday. Perhaps Davis merely managed to throw off his Brazil agents who were checking his contraband plans.

Wherever Davis may be, informed quarters here understand that he consummated a deal in Berlin. If that be so, the Germans must provide not only gold or something equally valuable to the Mexican Government, such as ships or machinery, but also a system of indirect consignments and transshipments. Oil consigned directly to Germany could be halted and taken into prize court by any British or French warship.

Balkans Best Route.

Germany's best bet lies in shipments to the Balkan countries, which, whether they like it or not, can scarcely refuse to carry out the orders of the German war machine.

In Trieste, for instance, this correspondent recently found the Germans using Hungarian rolling stock. The Italians want o conserve their own railway equipment and, like Yugoslavia, which is still waiting for the return of freight cars now incorporated in the German railway system, are declining to send their own rolling stock across the frontier. Consequently, the Germans undoubtedly ordered Hungary to make available for German use stock and other cars I saw carrying produce for Germany from Trieste.

The British and French cannot reproach the Italians for permitting shipment through Trieste of these goods consigned to Germany which I saw moving—about 200 oil tankers were moved in a fortnight. Twenty-seven German vessels had gone to Trieste during the opening days of the war. They had the right to be there and the right to unload their goods. But while permitting this, the Italian authorities had to let Trieste commercial agents know that the Government feels that at this time trade with the gold countries would improve Italy's adverse balance.

Trieste was a free port for Austria and Czecho-Slovakia, and its trade with that area is more important than its trade as an Italian port. The British and French, who are negotiating with the Italians, understand that and they are making every friendly effort not only to keep Italy from suffering unduly as a result of the war, but also to improve her trade position.

Allies as Purchasers.

Thus the British and French are willing to make large scale purchases of processed goods. For that kind of trade Italy needs new materials, however, pig iron, cotton, wool and the like. The British and French are willing to help Italy get these materials, which can be bought in the United States, but naturally will only help if they are assured that the raw materials and processed goods are not going on to their enemy.

It is safe to assume that the British-French can find a modus vivendi to keep Trieste from being destroyed as a port and yet prevent that their own purchases of raw materials should reach the enemy.

Some quarters here, speculate that Davis may not be taking a Clipper but may be stopping in Spain to try to find a company there in which he could sell oil. If a Spanish company, or a company in Spain is willing to pay cash for Mexican oil, Davis or anybody else dealing for the Mexicans need not worry about its ultimate destination.

President-General Lazaro Cardenas told this correspondent in Mexico last spring that his sympathies were entirely with the British and French. Standard Oil and Dutch Shell, through their ramifications, have made it impossible for the Mexicans to sell oil except in Germany and Italy. Mexico must sell oil to live.

10 RARE OLD SILVER COINS STOLEN JUNE 3 RECOVERED

CHICAGO, Oct. 9 (AP).—Rare silver coins stolen four months ago from the Philadelphia Academy of Fine Arts have been recovered here, it was announced yesterday.

The coins, dekadrachms minted about 500 B. C. in Syracuse on the isle of Sicily, were traced to two men who bought them from a Chicago pawnshop keeper. Of the 23 coins stolen June 3, 10 others were found in New York City. Three are still missing.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 9 (AP).—Ancient Greek coins recovered yesterday in a Chicago pawnshop were part of a $50,000 collection given the Academy of the Fine Arts in Philadelphia several years ago by George H. Earle Jr., father of former Gov. George H. Earle. It was never explained how the coins were stolen.

DIPHTHERIA DEATHS DECLINE 86 PER CENT IN FIVE YEARS

Health Officer Reports 91,000 Children in City Have Been Protected With Toxoid.

Since the city began its campaign against diphtheria by toxoid in 1935, about 91,000 St. Louis children younger than 10 years old have been protected against the disease, Dr. A. A. Denk of the Parochial Schools staff, City Health Division, said yesterday in a radio address.

During eight months of 1934, before the campaign started, there were 384 resident cases of diphtheria and 22 resident deaths, and during the first eight months of 1939 there were 49 resident cases and three resident deaths from diphtheria, the speaker said, a decrease of 92 per cent in cases and 86 per cent in deaths.

12-STATE TRUCKING SYSTEM SIGNS CONTRACT WITH UNION

2000 Firms, 350,000 Workers Affected; Strikes and Lockouts Barred Pending Arbitration.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Oct. 9 (AP).—John Bridge, vice-president and general manager of the Inter-State Motor Freight System, announced today the signing of a union agreement covering more than 2000 motor carriers in 12 states.

The agreement, he said, was signed with the International Brotherhood of Teamsters (A. F. of L.) and will run two years, starting Nov. 1.

John Holmes, district manager of the Inter-State system, said that "both union employes and the employers have agreed that there shall be no strike or lockout or tie up except upon the failure of the Joint Area Committees to agree upon adjustments of any dispute" during a 90-day arbitration period.

The agreement, which affects 350,000 union workers, sets new minimum rates of pay for various classifications.

The states in which the agreement is effective are Michigan, Missouri, Illinois, Ohio, Indiana, Wisconsin, Iowa, Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Nebraska and Kansas.

12,000 VISITORS AT ZOO

Pandas Still Draw More Attention Than Lions or Chimpansees.

Summery weather attracted about 12,000 persons yesterday to the Zoo, where the chief attraction continued to be the antics of the two pandas. The outdoor lion, elephant and chimpanzee shows were also well attended.

About 2100 persons viewed the display of autumn flowers at the Jewel Box and there were 2061 visitors at Shaw's Garden.

GENERAL MOTORS ANTI-TRUST SUIT UP IN U. S. COURT

Trial at South Bend, Ind., Is Test of Sales Finance Methods of Big Auto Manufacturers.

CASE AGAINST TWO OF 19 MEN DROPPED

Ford and Chrysler Firms, Which Filed Consent Decrees After Indictment, Watching Outcome.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 9 (AP).—Dismissal of two individual defendants marked the opening today of the Government's anti-trust trial of General Motors Corporation, a legal test of sales finance methods used by automobile manufacturers.

The names of E. W. Berger of Cleveland, zone manager for the corporation's Chevrolet division, and Arthur B. Purvis were dismissed as defendants.

Action against Berger was dropped because he testified before a Federal grand jury in Milwaukee in 1937 in a similar investigation. Purvis' name was stricken because of confusion over his identity. The corporation asserted there was no such person in its organization. The Government agreed to the dismissal.

Selection of a jury started after General Motors, its affiliated finance companies and the 17 remaining individual defendants, including Chairman Alfred P. Sloan Jr. and President William S. Knudsen, entered please of innocence.

Interested onlookers were others of the Detroit automotive "big three"—the Ford Motor Co. and the Chrysler Corporation. The extent of their freedom to promote their own finance companies hinged on outcome of the trial.

A grand jury in session indicted the three companies, eight affiliates and 50 individuals here May 27, 1938.

Three almost identical indictments charged that they plotted to set up a monopoly, by forcing dealers to finance sales through the manufacturers' credit firms. This action, the indictments held, did "irreparable damage" to small finance companies.

Later the Ford and Chrysler defendants entered consent decrees admitting the practices charged and agreeing to stop them in return for a suspension of the prosecution.

Thomas W. Slick of South Bend, Judge of the Northern Indiana District, accepted these decrees last Nov. 15 but pointed out that should General Motors be acquitted, they would not be binding.

Walter C. Lindley of Danville, Judge of the Eastern Illinois District, is to sit on the trial. Judge Slick was disqualified himself.

Russia Supports Peace Move; Declares War Is Senseless

saying, "The war in Poland is over. As Poland's cause is lost, we have no further excuse for continuing the war."

"One must admit that Bernard Shaw is right in many respects," it commented.

"But for whose benefit is this war being waged for domination of the world?

"In any case, it is not for the benefit of the working class. The working class can only suffer in such a war."

The editorial charged the British and French "ruling classes" with attempting "to protect their colonies against German claims and enjoy unshared control over the exploitation of hundreds of millions of colonial slaves."

It said "attempts to neglect the peaceful proposals of Germany" meant "to assume responsibility for further development of the war, and in consequence, for the tremendous number of victims and the destruction connected with war."

Russian newspapers printed dispatches from Tallinn, Estonia, asserting Lithuania was eager for the agreement it is negotiating with Russia and for "Soviet protection against imperialist countries."

Helsinki dispatches saying Finland was taking "extraordinary" defense measures also were given prominence.

Diplomatic observers said Russia, partner with Germany in Eastern Europe, apparently was striving to strengthen its position in all possible directions while Europe's other major Powers were occupied with war.

Interest centered on the impending Finnish negotiations. Like Estonia and Latvia, which already have granted Russia important concessions in non-aggression agreements, Finland is dwarfed by its huge neighbor.

But the Finns were expected in diplomatic quarters to put up more of an argument than their neighbors in Northern Europe.

Foreign circles said Finland was seeking the diplomatic backing of Sweden and Germany and probably would be supported by Sweden.

Informed Moscow sources foresaw Finnish acceptance of any "reasonable" Soviet proposals, but predicted Finland would balk at paying too high a price for an agreement.

Finnish dispatches said the selection of Paasiviki, Finland's Minister to Sweden and managing director of the state bank 20 years, indicated the negotiations would be largely commercial.

Belief was expressed here that Russia might seek the unfortified islands of Lanvansaari and Seiskar, which control the approaches to Leningrad through the Gulf of Finland.

If, however, Russia should ask for control of the Aaland Islands, it was believed Sweden would back Finnish objections and solicit German support. The islands, lying between Finland and Sweden, are unfortified, but their possession would give Russia power over Finnish and Swedish shipping and might threaten Stockholm.

Germany's interest would be in its heavy imports of Swedish iron, timber and other products.

A Finnish-Russian non-aggression agreement already exists, and economic issues between the nations have been discussed previously through normal diplomatic channels.

A communique issued yesterday after a conference of Molotov with the German delegation, headed by Karl Ritter, former German Ambassador to Brazil, said the Nazi-Communist partners had agreed to realize their program of economic collaboration "at rapid pace and on a large scale."

The announcement by Tass, official Soviet news agency, said, "in particular, agreement was reached that the U. S. S. R. should immediately begin supplying Germany materials and Germany filling orders for the U. S. S. R.

"It was agreed in the course of conversation that the economic program concerning which an understanding had been reached during the last visit of the (German) Minister of Foreign Affairs, Joachim von Ribbentrop, to Moscow would be realized by both parties at rapid pace and on a large scale."

Mystery still enveloped the talks, or lack of talks, between Russia and Turkey.

The Turks were believed to be moving carefully between Great Britain, on one hand, and Russia and Germany on the other, trying to offend neither side.

The Turks, courted by both sides, are in a different position from the smaller nations which have been summoned to Moscow.

A quick agreement with Lithuanian Foreign Minister Jouzas Urbsys was foreseen, and Russia was expected to gain military and naval concessions and rights of transit such as Latvia and Estonia yielded.

Thus, Lithuania, which borders Germany, would become a virtual Russian protectorate, as have the other northern states through the new treaties.

Finnish Minister to U. S. Says His Country Will Stand Firm.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9 (AP).—Minister Hjalmar Procope said today Finland "will stand firm behind its policy of neutrality, will refuse to join any bloc of large nations, but is willing to negotiate with Russia."

The envoy made this statement to reporters after conferring with R. Walton Moore, counselor of the State Department.

Asked what Finland would do if requested to make the same kind of military concessions to Russia as those made by Latvia and Estonia, Procope replied: "In that case, Finland would stand firm."

He added that there was no reason why Finland should not negotiate with Russia, since it had always sought to remain on good terms with the Soviet Government.

CALIFORNIA CONSULATE RAIDED FOR GAMBLING

Luxembourg Representative Sought for Questioning—200 Persons Found in Mansion.

CULVER CITY, Cal., Oct. 9 (AP).—Sheriff Eugene Biscailuz sought Prosper Reiter, Luxembourg Consul, for questioning yesterday after an anti-gambling raid on the hilltop mansion which houses the Duchy's consulate.

Reiter was reported to have been out of town when a Sheriff's squad seized two men guarding a steel gate to the 77-acre wooded estate and paid a surprise Sunday-afternoon call at the pretentious dwelling.

The officers ordered 200 persons, most of them women, to leave, and arrested four men described as card dealers on charges of violating a county gambling ordinance. They later were released on $250 bail each.

Capt. George Contreras, who headed the raid, said he had ordered John F. Garrison, chancellor of the consulate, to appear Friday with Reiter for questioning. It was said Secretary of State Hull had inofrmed Biscailuz the United States had no diplomatic treaty regarding consulates with Luxembourg, and that therefore the consulate was not entitled to diplomatic immunity.

EFFORT TO SETTLE BREWERY UNION'S, TEAMSTERS ROW

Move Under Way at A. F. of L. Convention to End Jurisdictional Dispute Through Conciliation.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 9 (AP).—Effort were reported under way today at the American Federation of Labor convention to settle through a conciliation committee to be named by President William Green the jurisdictional dispute between the Teamsters and Brewery Workers Union which has involved the A. F. of L.'s basic powers in a United States District Court injunction suit.

A District of Columbia Federal Court ruled last week that the Federation had no power to transfer organizing jurisdiction from the Brewery Workers' to the Teamsters' Union and granted the Brewery Union an injunction to halt the A. F. of L. and teamsters from enforcing a 1933 convention decision providing for the transfer.

The 1933 decree gave to the teamsters the right to organize beer truck drivers claimed by the Brewery Workers. Denial of the B. W. U.'s injunction plea, the Court said, would "amount to judicial recognition of authority acquired by usurpation."

Willing to Negotiate.

Joseph Obergfell, B. W. U. secretary, said he had heard of the conciliation plan and would be willing to enter into conferenses, but would not surrender the jurisdiction the Federal Court ruled belonged to the B. W. U.

Union officers said they hoped to settle the conflict before it reached the convention floor for action on an executive council recommendation that the B. W. U. be suspended for initiating the injunction suit.

As an alternative, it was suggested the convention might approve a plan to defer action on the suspension recommendation until the court decision is tested on appeal to the higher courts. The A. F. of L. is expected to file an appeal within a few days in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

Obergfell voiced the opinion that it would be "crazy", for the A. F. of L. to go ahead with the suspension of the B. W. U. in the face of the Federal court finding.

"Peace With Honor."

"If there is to be an effort to conciliate this situation," Obergfell said, "we want a peace with honor. We'll never surrender the beer truck drivers. And we won't submit to arbitration."

The Teamsters-Brewery Workers case was only one of several jurisdictional problems that faced the convention leadership at the opening of its final week of policy making.

The convention revoked today the charter issued in 1904 to the International Brotherhood of Foundry Employes. Its 3500 members will become affiliated with the International Molders' Union. Changing conditions had brought the unions' jurisdictions into conflict.

Two New Affiliates.

The convention welcomed two affiliates, the United Textile Workers and the United Cement, Lime and Gypsum Workers' International Union. The cement workers were chartered at St. Louis Sept. 11. The textile workers, once in the A. F. of L., were rechartered last January after a group led by Francis J. Gorman broke away from the CIO.

The Masters, Mates and Pilots organization from the unionized maritime field was back in the convention renewing its demand that Joseph Ryan and his International Longshoremen's Association cease invading the Masters, Mates and Pilots jurisdiction.

It is a four-year-old jurisdictional fight in which the executive council and Green have requested the I. L. A. several times to terminate its effort to take masters and pilots into its organization.

St. Louis, Seattle and New Orleans were reported getting chief consideration for next year's convention city.

WEEK'S DEMONSTRATION OF TELEVISION IS BEGUN

C. of C. Head First to Appear Before Camera in Famous-Barr Auditorium.

Thomas N. Dysart, president of the Chamber of Commerce, was the first person televised at the official opening this morning of a week-long public demonstration of television in the ninth floor auditorium of Famous-Barr. His appearance was followed by performances by entertainers from the St. Louis radio stations, a fashion show conducted by Carol Gay and interviews with civic leaders.

The television studio is on the stage of the auditorium, with three banks of powerful lights, whose rays are filtered to reduce the heat focused on persons to be televised; a special television camera, microphones, and a portable television transmitter. Those in the audience watch the entertainers and others before the television camera, and then go to another room and there see pictures of the persons being televised on the screens of six television sets, seeing their lips moving and their facial expressions changing and hearing them speaking or singing. The pictures are clear and distinct.

There will be continuous demonstrations from 10:30 a. m. to 5 p. m. each day through Friday and from 9:30 a. m. to 5 p. m. Saturday. There is no charge for admission. The television camera and transmitters are operated by engineers of the R. C. A.-Victor company.

DR. CARVER, NEGRO CHEMIST, TO RECEIVE ROOSEVELT MEDAL

Major-General Frank R. McCoy and Carl Sandburg, Poet, Also Named for Memorial Awards.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9 (AP).—The Roosevelt Medals for 1939, awarded annually in certain fields associated with Theodore Roosevelt's career, will be bestowed Oct. 27 on George Washington Carver, agricultural chemist; Major-General Frank R. McCoy, United States Army, retired, and Carl Sandburg, poet and biographer of Lincoln. The awards were established by the Roosevelt Memorial Association in 1922.

Dr. Carver, a Negro who was a slave in boyhood was bartered for a racehorse, won recognition as "one of the foremost agricultural chemists in the country and a vital factor in the economic and social progress of the South," in the announcement by James A. Garfield, president of the association.

Gen. McCoy, who had a distinguished army career, was honored for his work "in the administration of public office," and Sandburg specifically for his biography of Lincoln. The awards will be made on the eighty-first anniversary of Roosevelt's birth.

AIR PLANS TO SAIL JUNK ON TO EUROPE

Captain and Wife Undiscouraged by Difficult 6-Month Pacific Crossing.

QUATSINO, British Columbia, Oct. 9 (AP).—Undiscouraged by a six-month fight with the Pacific, Capt. John Anderson, former officer of a trans-Pacific liner, is laying plans to sail his small Chinese junk to Europe.

While Capt. Anderson awaited a tow to Seattle for his storm-battered 50-foot craft, the Tai Ping, which weathered the typhoon-swept Pacific, a pirate attack and starvation, he disclosed that his wife, four Norwegian crew members and he would sail south to San Francisco, through the Panama Canal to New York and thence to Norway and Finland—war permitting.

The voyage came near disaster when the food supply dwindled to a bowl of rice a day per person. The crew's praise went to Mrs. Anderson. "Being one of the weaker sex," she said, "one must put up a brave front at all times; but I admit that there were times when I closed myself in some corner and gave way to my feelings, thinking of my folks at home and despairing of ever seeing them again. However, I intend to stick with the ship wherever it goes."

FISHERMAN LOST AT SEA ROWS DORY 50 MILES TO LAND

Reaches Lighthouse After Two Days With Pint of Water, No Food.

MATINICUS, Me., Oct. 9 (AP).—Percy Davis, 58-year-old Portland fisherman, rowed his 15-foot dory 50 miles without food and only a pint of water, to land at Matinicus Rock Light yesterday after a two-day pull.

Davis told how he dozed off near dawn Saturday and awoke to see "a big steamer bearing down on me, so I waved and hollered at the top of my lungs. The boat passed so close that the wake slopped water into my dory but they didn't see me."

Not until he sighted the light, he said, did he take his first drink of water in 36 hours.

Using his knowledge of the sea when he lost sight of the schooner Eleanor in a fog off Cashe's Ledge Friday night, Davis plotted a course toward land by using the wind direction. A rainstorm buffeted him Friday night and he was forced to throw overboard a quantity of haddock to make navigating easier.

SUPREME COURT TO PASS ON THREE A.F.L.-C.I.O. CASES

Agrees to Hear Arguments in Controversies Over Interpretation of Labor Relations Act.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9 (AP).—The Supreme Court agreed today to pass on three controversies between the A. F. of L. and the C. I. O. over interpretation of the National Labor Relations Act.

Acting on approximately 300 petitions filed during the summer recess, the court consented:

To review a decision by the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia leaving in effect a certification by the Labor Board of a CIO union as the exclusive bargaining agency for Pacific Coast longshoremen. The Court of Appeals said it did not have jurisdiction to pass on the controversy.

To pass on a ruling by the Sixth Federal Circuit Court denying the Labor Board the right to place the name of only one labor organization (a CIO affiliate) on the ballot for a run-off election to determine collective bargaining representation for employes of the Consumers Power Co. at Jackson, Mich. The Federation argued that its affiliate should be placed on the ballot.

To review a decision by the Fifth Federal Circuit Court setting aside a Labor Board order directing the Waterman Steamship Corporation of Mobile, Ala., to reinstate a group of employes with back pay; they were dismissed after changing their membership from a Federation affiliate to a CIO unit. The Circuit Court held the dismissals were for economy.

These were among the scores of petitions filed during the court's summer recess.

Review Refused Missouri Firm

In addition, the court refused to review lower court decisions sustaining orders by the Labor Board that:

The Cudahy Packing Co. must cease recognition of the Packing House Workers' Union of St. Paul, an independent union, at its Newport (Minn.) plant.

The Louisville Refining Co. must bargain collectively with the International Association of Oil Field, Gas Well and Refinery Workers of America.

The Crowe Coal Co. of Henry County, Missouri, is under the jurisdiction of the Labor Board and must reinstate discharged employes.

The court agreed to review a lower court decision sustaining an order by the Labor Board that the National Licorice Co. of Brooklyn must cease dominating an employes' collective bargaining committee and cancel a wage contract with it.

Mail Fraud Conviction Stands

Among other actions, the court:

Refused to reconsider its refusal to review the conviction of William J. Graham and James C. May of Reno, Nev., in the Southern New York Federal District Court on indictments charging use of the mails to defraud.

Declined to pass on an attack on constitutionality of a provision in the constitution of the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers of America permitting workmen employed by a non-resident contractor to charge the wage scale prevailing either in the place where the work is done or in the place where the contractor lives, whichever is higher. The provision was upheld by the Federal Circuit Court of New York.

Refused to review a decision by the Court of Claims dismissing an attack on constitutionality of the Federal capital stock tax imposed by the National Industrial Recovery Act and the 1934 and 1935 Revenue Acts. The tax was on the value of capital stock as declared by corporations.

Declined to interfere with a ruling by the Seventh Federal Circuit Court that the salary of Judge Gilbert E. Bland of the United States Court of Customs and Patent Appeals was subject to a Federal income tax.

Trade Board Loses Plea.

Refused to review a decision of the Sixth Federal Circuit Court setting aside a Federal Trade Commission order requiring the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. to cease selling tires to Sears, Roebuck & Co., at "discriminatory" prices. The action was taken under the 1936 Robinson-Patman Anti-Price Discrimination Act.

Refused to pass on a decision of the Seventh Federal Circuit Court holding a group of stockholders of Chicago's Central Republic Trust Co., now in receivership, liable on a reconstruction Finance Corporation loan made to the bank while Charles G. Dawes was chairman of the bank's board of directors and not after he had retired as president of the RFC. The amount involved when suit was started was $3,830,748.

Denial of a review by the Supreme Court means that the decision of the lower court remains in effect. Oral arguments will be heard later in cases on which the court agrees to pass.

FINE FURNISHINGS OF NORMANDIE ARE PUT IN MOTH BALLS

This Is Latest Indication Liner Will Stay in New York for Rest of War.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9 (AP).—The luxurious furnishings of the Normandie, largest and costliest liner afloat, were packed in moth balls today, a further indication that France intends to keep the vessel tied up here for the duration of the war.

Fourteen barrels of moth balls were used in crating the furnishings. Other equipment had been dismantled.

About 700 of the Normandie's crew returned to France after the 83,423-ton, $50,000,000 liner arrived here on its last crossing Aug. 28. Unlike the vessels still being used by the belligerent nations, the Normandie bears its peacetime colorings and has not been painted a battleship gray.

BELGIAN TRADE PACT HEARINGS ARE OPENED

State Department Also Working on Treaties With Five Western Hemisphere Nations.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9 (AP).—Public hearings were opened today for a new reciprocal trade treaty with Belgium, and negotiators are preparing for hearings next week for a pact with Argentina and next month for one with Chile.

Negotiations also are continuing with Venezuela and Cuba, for a second agreement in the case of the latter. Preliminary discussions are well under way with Uruguay.

Secretary of State Hull, in effect, has assumed this attitude since the outbreak of war in Europe: Keep up the largest amount of trade possible under existing circumstances. When the war is over, some channels of trade must still be open so that the world can get back to economic stability.

The problems that now face Hull and his assistants include these:

1. Trade with Germany and Poland is virtually shut off.

2. Trade with Great Britain and France, and probably the British dominions, will continue and may increase, but there will be radical shifts in the demands of those customers. They must concentrate on imports of raw materials for their war needs and abandon their demand for luxuries.

3. Exchange controls have been set up by the belligerents, including Britain, this country's best customer, and Canada, second best, and the belligerent governments make foreign currency available only for the purchase of such commodities as they deem necessary.

4. Neutral nations which have considerable trade with the United States, such as the Scandinavian countries, also have had to impose controls on trade.

5. The currency of belligerents has declined in value with reference to the dollar, which means that their goods can be sold here more cheaply in competition with American goods.

6. Neutral nations which previously sold goods of a non-essential nature to the belligerents will now try to sell them here.

Trade treaties in force with Great Britain, France and Canada provide that if currency fluctuations make operation of the agreements difficult, they may be denounced with 30 days' advance notice. However, there is no present intention on the part of Secretary Hull to invoke this provision.

At the same time, every effort will be made to link all the Western Hemisphere commercially to the United States through trade agreements. Half of the 20 American republics already have signed such treaties.

FOUR TOBACCO FIRMS CHARGED WITH PRICE DISCRIMINATION

Trade Commission Name Lorillard, Brown and Williamson, Reynolds and Larus Concerns.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9 (AP).—Four tobacco manufacturing companies were charged with discrimination in prices and services in complaints announced yesterday by the Federal Trade Commission.

Alleging violations of the Robinson-Patman Act, the complaints named P. Lorillard Co., New York; Brown & Williamson Tobacco Corporation, Louisville, Ky.; R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., Winston-Salem, N. C., and Larus & Brother, Inc., Richmond, Va.

The commission alleged that the companies discriminated in prices among purchasers, paid compensation for services and facilities to some customers and not to others, and supplied certain services to some but not to others.

NATIONAL LEAGUE LEADERS HAVE NO PLAN TO STOP YANKEES

BREADON, FRICK WONDER HOW IT COULD BE DONE

President of Cardinals Feels Birds Will Be in Fight in 1940 if Infield Is Bolstered a Bit.

By W. J. McGoogan

Sam Breadon, president of the Cardinals, along with other National League men, was not in a very happy frame of mind today, upon his return fro mthe world series in which the Yankees of the American League, "took" the Cincinnati Reds, National League champions, in four straight games.

"That last game was the worst I ever saw," he said, "up to then the Reds played errorless ball but what burned me up was they had the game won, then kicked it away."

"Do you think the Cardinals could have done better against the Yankees, than the Reds?" he was asked.

Pure Speculation.

"Oh, that's pure speculation," Sam said, "the series now should be 2 and 2. But Ithink we'll have a good ball club next year and will be in there all the way. We need strengthening in a couple of spots."

"What are the spots in which the Cardinals need bolstering?" he was asked.

"Well, they're in the infiled but I don't care to say anything about that now because next season is a long way off."

Did Breadon think that the continued success of the Yankees would take the interest out of baseball and particularly out of the worlds series?

"No, they're a great ball club, hustling and fighting all the way. And they're entitled to everything they get. They're just more enterprising than the rest of us. They've got a great scouting organization and it simply means that the rest of us will have to work harder and look farther for good ball players.

"Still there have been other great ball clubs in the past which finallp folded up and they'll probably do the same."

With the Yankees continually strengthening their team with young ball players, Breadon was reminded, it didn't seem likely that the Yankees would slip in the near future. Didn't they have a catcher ready to step in and take Dickey's place, according to reports?

"They may think they've got a catcher ready to take Dickey's place," Sam laughed, "but Bill's quite a character."

Was there any possibility of the National League attempting to strengthen one member of the organization with a view to giving the Yankees a battle in the 1940 series?

Would Like to Know.

"How could that be done," Breadon asked in reply. "Really, it's more of an American League problem than ours. They run away with the American League pennant every year. And we'll have a team in there giving them a battle in the next series."

Breadon doesn't plan to leave the city on a vacation this fall. He has recovered completely from the recent accident in which he was badly injured when thrown by his horse near his farm in the country.

Breadon was not the only National League man to express disappointment at the showing of the Reds. Ford Frick, president of the league said in New York that he couldn't personally get out and pitch for National League clubs and he knows of no steps to take to build a team to oppose the Yanks.

"Each manager of the National League clubs, will have to speak for himself," Frick said.

Meanwhile the Yankees received a nice welcome home from their followers as the players detraind, somewhat tired from an all night celebration.

The Yankee office, it was reported, prepared to refund the money for tickets purchased for the sixth game. The branches of a bank are to handle the refunds and none is to be made at the Yankee office.

It was estimated that $160,000 would be returned to customers.

Also the Yankees are showing no signs of abating their efforts to keep the club at the top.

Yanks Seek McQuinn.

It is reported they are after George McQuinn, Browns' first baseman, regarded as the best in the league, to help them gain their fifth successive American League pennant and possibly their fifth world series.

Not many expressions of opinion were heard that the club should be broken up.

"It's one of the greatset clubs of all time and it would be a shame to dismember it," seems to be the prevailing view.

American League leaders, however, are worried at the failure of the outstanding team of baseball to draw better during the season and because of the large number of empty seats at the Yankee Stadium during the first two world series games.

O'Brien Shoots Ace.

Ed O'Brien scored a hole-in-one on the 225-yard par-three third hole at Meadow Brook Country Club yesterday while playing in a foursome with Dick O'Brien, Jones Scovern and Roy Pohl.

DiMaggio Slides Home With Final Run of Series —Associated Press Wirephoto.

Joe DiMaggio, center fielder of the four-time world champion Yankees, slides across the plate with the third and final run of the tenth inning, with Ernie Lombardi, Reds' catcher, flat on the ground. Babe Pinelli is the umpire, while Bucky Walters, losing pitcher, is standing at the right.

Reds' Collapse Gives Yanks Their Fourth Championship in Row

By J. Roy Stockton
Of the Post-Dispatch Sports Staff.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 9.—The New York Yankees are champions of the world for the fourth consecutive year. Joe McCarthy's powerful team scored its fourth straight victory over the Cincinnati Reds yesterday afternoon, riding to the triumph on a faltering National League defense that included four costly errors in the ninth and tenth innings, helping the Yankees to five of their seven runs. The score was 7 to 4.

Billy Myers, captain and shortstop of the National League pennant winners, was head goat in the final contest of the series as the Yankees came from behind before a shouting, for a time, happy crowd of 32,794 cash customers. Billy dropped a double-play throw that enabled the Yankees to score the tying run in the ninth and in the tenth he fumbled a grounder that gave momentum to a three-run rally that gave the American Leaguers their margin of victory.

Myers was not alone, however, in the business of booting the Reds' last chance of staying in the fight. Ival Goodman let a bounding single get away from him and huge Ernie Lombardi, after dropping a throw to the plate, took so much time getting up and picking up the ball, a few feet from the plate, that the third run of the inning crossed the plate.

Ninth Straight Triumph.

In adding the triumph to the two at New York by scores of 2 to 1 and 4 to 0, and the one Saturday here, by a 7-3 score, the Yankees registered their ninth straight world series triumph. It also was their twenty-eighth triumph in their last 31 October games with National League pennant winners.

Until the final collapse of their defense, the Reds were making a game fight of the fourth game, and it seemed certain that the competition would be carried into the fifth game, for Cincinnati had a 4-to-2 lead as the Yankees went to bat in the ninth and Bucky Walters, top winner for the Reds during the league season, was on the hill, with a hitless inning behind him.

Paul Derringer started for the Reds and hurled six brilliant innings, a double by George Selkirk being the only Yankee hit during that part of the game. In the seventh, however, the swishing Yankee bats caught up with a wearying Derringer, and Charley Keller and Bill Dickey hit into the right-field bleacher seats to put New York in front, 2 to 0.

Cincinnati Rallies.

Quickly the Reds showed their courage by rallying for three runs in their half. Frank McCormick started with a hot smash to Red Rolfe. The bounder took a bad hop and hit Rolfe on the left shoulder and a rather strict trio of official scorers called it an error. Lombardi struck out, but Al Simmons sent into the outfield when Harry Craft developed a stomach ache, doubled to left center to move McCormick to third. While Berger was grounding out to Crosetti, McCormick scored and after Myers walked, Willard Hershberger batted for Derringer and singled to center, scoring Simmons from second with the tying run. Myers took third on the hit and scored when Bill Werber singled to right.

This knocked Steve Sundra out of the box and Johnny Murphy struck out Lonnie Frey to end that inning, but Goodman singled to start the eighth and after McCormick sacrificed, Lombardi singled through a drawn-in infield to send Goodman home, making the score Cincinnati 4, New York 2.

Even then there was an ominous silence in the stands. The spectators felt that there was danger ahead, with Keller, DiMaggio and other slugging Yankees still to be reckoned with. Walters, however, would have handled them all had his support been good. Keller opened the frame with a clean single to center. DiMaggio singled to left, where Simmons helped Keller to reach third on the hit by making a throw to second instead.

Dickey followed with a double

YANKS REALLY CELEBRATE 4TH SERIES VICTORY

CINCINNATI, Oct. 9 (AP).—Joseph Vincent McCarthy, kindly 51-year-old leader of the New York Yankees, was the happiest man in the baseball world last night. Deacon Bill McKechnie, boss of his vanquished Royal Reds, was the saddest.

McCarthy joined with the Yankees in the noisiest clubhouse victory celebration they have ever staged. He was supremely happy because his players had just presented him with a fourth world's championship and their ninth consecutive world series victory.

After yelling out a few piercing "yippees" and "hurrahs," the real celebration started.

In walked William Harridge, president of the American League, extending his hand in congratulation. McCarthy, rinsing a big chew of tobacco from his mouth, beamed.

"Just think, Mr. Harridge," he said, "this is our ninth straight world series victory. It's our fourth world's championship. No other team had even won three until we did it last year."

Asked if the series came out as he expected, McCarthy just grinned.

"Any time you beat a couple of pitchers like Derringer and Walters," he said, "you have a helluva tough job on your hands. We beat a helluva of a ball club."

Warren Giles, general manager of the Reds, shouldered his way through the packed room to congratulate McCarthy. Charlie Keller, the rookie home-run clouting right fielder, grabbed McCarthy by the hand.

McCarthy looked up and blurted: "What the hell is the matter with you? This is the nineteenth time you've congratulated me."

Up in the Reds' clubhouse was a team that knew it was whipped. Scarcely a word was said as the beaten players filed up. Even their spikes made muted sounds on the metal steps.

Manager McKechnie went into his office and sat in the swivel chair with his feet on the window sill. He stared out the window for some minutes. Once he muttered a short string of bitter words but it was hard to tell if he was thinking of the Yankees, the Reds or the luck that curdled.

McKechnie went the rounds, shaking hands with the boys who had brought Cincinnati its first National League pennant in two decades but couldn't bring down the greater prize.

Finally, amid the heavy quiet, someone said, "We'll be back next year." And that summed it up.

A. A. U. PRESIDENT IS SERIOUSLY INJURED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

NEW YORK, Oct. 9 (AP).—Samuel E. Hoyt Sr., 64 years old, State's Attorney of New Haven, Conn., and national president of the Amateur Athletic Union, was seriously injured yesterday when his automobile collided with another near the New York World's Fair.

Dr. J. S. Combes said Hoyt suffered a fracture of the skull and brain concussion. His wife, Mrs. Grace Hoyt, was injured slightly.

Hoyt was elected A. A. U. president two years ago in Boston and re-elected unanimously last year at the organization's fiftieth anniversary convention in Washington, D. C.

WRAY'S COLUMN

New Low in the National.

THE National League has hit a new low, spiritually at least. Not in the memory of man have officials of the senior major league suffered the mortification following the 1939 defeat of its pennant club at the hands of the New York Yankees, in four straight games.

It was the fifth time in eight seasons the Yanks have flattened National League opponents, the eighth time in 13 campaigns. In the last seven series in which the Yanks have figured, opposing National League clubs have suffered 28 defeats and won only three games. Five times the Yanks have needed only four games to smear the enemy.

FRICK.

When the Yanks put on the pressure and broke the heart of the Cincinnati opposition in the tenth inning of the fourth game yesterday, it was the fourth consecutive time the Yanks had humiliated the National pennant winners and on the last two occasions, the Nationals failed to win even one game.

And as for McKechnie, is his face red today. The Miracle Manager for the second time saw a National League club managed by himself, shut out without scoring a single world series victory.

President Frick and his associates are worried and wondering what can be done about the Yanks. The problem is not merely an American League affair, it's worrying all Organized baseball.

The National League, seeking help, ought to turn its eyes on the Cardinals and build up the Redbirds. The reason is that the Cards have furnished the only competition able to stop the American League champions in recent years.

The Cards' farm system really found itself in 1926, when Hornsby's team beat the Yanks in a fighting finish. Since that time the National League flag winners have defeated the American League world series finalists only twice—and both times the Cardinals did it. They broke through Connie Mack's strong team of Athletics in 1931 and walloped the Detroit Tigers in 1934. In the last 18 seasons no National League club but the Cards has succeeded against the American Leaguers!

Next season the Redbirds will again be in the picture. And, with reinforcements resulting from trades or the Redbirds' great farm system, it's reasonable to expect that they may give the Yanks a battle next fall.

Late this season betting commissioners were hoping the Cards would beat out the Reds. They figured the Birds would make a better fight against the Powerhouse Gang than the Reds.

The Greatest Club.

LOOKING OVER the world series figures of the Yanks under Joe McCarthy, you may join the chorus now shouting that the Yankee team of 1939 is probably the greatest baseball club of all time.

Well, considering that it has come through four years of world series competition losing only three games, that seems reasonable.

For one thing, no other team ever approached that record. They boast a winning percentage in the last four world series of .869.

Since 1926 their world series winning percentage reveals the amazing figures .906.

Even including the defeat by the Cards of 1926, they still have a games record of 31-7, a percentage of .816. That's a heavy blow to National League pride.

But claiming all-time superiority for the club is something else, considering the famous clubs of the past. Many will contend that the Yanks of Babe Ruth's heydey were a still stronger team; that several National League clubs under John McGraw had stronger players, especially the club with Mathewson and McGinnity in their prime. The Athletics have had at least two outstanding teams; and the Cubs, from 1906 to 1910, displayed real powerhouse quality, with great pitching as well.

But defensively and offensively there probably has never been a more dependable baseball club than the four-time pennant winning Yanks.

His Turn to Smile.

NOW AND THEN Manager Joe McCarthy, when he harks back to the days when Wrigley the elder eased him out of the Cubs management in favor of Hornsby, undoubtedly indulges in a broad smile. Probably no baseball man was kicked upstairs with more success.

The Cubs have remained stationary or have slipped, since then; but the Yanks under McCarthy have grown stronger and stronger. Twice his club has beaten the Cubs in world series without the Chicagoans winnnig a game.

Not only this, but McCarthy gained in salary and prestige by the swap and is now handling a team that is so strong the baseball world is wondering what to do about it. And there is every prospect that the McCarthy machine will grow stronger rather than weaker.

HERE REGISTER another laugh. While yelps from all rival owners about the strength of the Yanks continue, Ed Barrow is planning moves to strengthen the club.

One of these plans is the purchase of McQuinn, outstanding first sacker of the Browns. We doubt that this will happen. But it shows the spirit of that Yankee organization which never lets up in its building plans merely because other owners can't build as well or as fast.

The spirit of the late Jake Ruppert evidently carries on. Jake believed in getting the best, playing the hardest and winning a pennant and a world title as quickly as it was possible. It may seem bad business for the league, but Jake paid the price.

By making runaway race of the American League marathon, he cut down gate receipts tremendously. His standout team did not draw a million at home, last year, great as it was, although the third place Brooklyn Dodgers just across the river, did.

Also, if a world series lasts only four games, club owners make virtually nothing out of it. Yet Ruppert, insisting that his men get through with the business of busting the foe as quickly as possible, has had five teams end matters in four straight. In all that time he has received real world series money from only THREE games.

That's the right spirit; but whether baseball affords a luxury of this kind, is a question not yet answered.

GUNNER ELEVEN BEATS KENOSHA BY 14-0 SCORE

special to the Post-Dispatch.

KENOSHA, Wis., Oct. 9.—Having gained their third victory in four starts in league play, the St. Louis Gunners are now ready to turn their attention to the complex problem of handling the Green Bay Packers when they open the professional football season at St. Louis next Sunday afternoon.

In defeating Kenosha here yesterday, 14 to 0, the Gunners reached their highest peak of the season. The experimental lineup used by Coach Choppy Rhodes was highly satisfactory and showed a surprising punch.

Gunner Offense Clicks.

Herstofore, the Gunners have been weak offensively, but in running up 17 first downs against the Cardinals, both by rushing plays and spectacular oberhead shot, the St. Louis pros hit their stride. They scored two touchdowns, but that hardly tells the story. On one occasion, Ray Johnson fumbled after driving over the goal line; on another Mike Sebastian sprinted over the line, only to be called back for having stepped out of bounds en route. Still again Sebastian wiggled loose for 40 yards, but slipped and fell after he had eluded the last tackler.

On ground plays, power house drives by Ray Johnson and Denny Cochran combined with quick thrusts by Peterson yielded some 200 or more yards. Taking to the air, the Gunners completed seven tosses for 88 yards. One of these passes produced the first score. Another set up a fine place-kick opportunity.

Thompson Hits Bullseye.

Rhodes changed his lineup and did not use Thompson, Peterson or his first string linemen until late in the second quarter. When Thompson went in the ball was on the 49-yard mark. Tommy then threw seven consecutive times. Four hit the bullseye and the score was 7 to 0 with Peterson getting credit for the score and the conversion.

The fourth period touchdown was the result of line pounding by Johnson, Sebastian and Peterson, with Sebastian slipping through for the count. This time Elder booted the goal.

The veteran Sebastian enjoyed a field day. He gained 85 yards and but for an unfortunate slip when in the clear would have had a 70-yard broken field run to his credit.

The Gunners emerged from the game in good condition for the test with the Packers.

BELLEVILLE CATHEDRAL BEATS HANNIBAL TEAM

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

HANNIBAL, Mo., Oct. 9.—Coming from behind twice, Belleville Cathedral High School's football team defeated McCooey High, 13 to 12, in a game played on a wet field here yesterday.

After McCooey counted on a 68-yard drive in the first period, Belleville tied the score in the second when Lantner caught a touchdown pass. Ken Meyer's 45-yard touchdown run gave McCooey the lead again in the second period, then in the third Belleville marched 58 yards on five plays to score, Beyer running the last 35 yards for the touchdown and plunging for the extra point.

FRANKIE FRISCH, HERE, IS STRONG FOR 1940 BIRDS

Frankie Frisch, newly-appointed manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates and former manager of the Cardinals, is visiting friends in St. Louis following his attendance at the World Series finale at Cincinnati.

Freisch visited with Branch Rickey, general manager of the Redbirds but no business was being done. Said Rickey "I've seen Frank a couple of times and I'll be glad to see him a couple of more. But, we haven't been talking trades. Maybe later, Frank will bring up the subject but he hasn't thus far.

The new Pirate pilot thinks the Cardinals have a fine chance to oppose the Yankees in the 1940 World Series.

"I was one of the few who thought the Cards had a great chance this year and I broadcast that during my announcing period in Boston," said Frisch. "I think more of the club now than I did then.

"I am not one of those who believes the Yankees should be broken up because they are too strong. It is a great club and should be preserved instead of wrecked. The National League will have its day and in time develop a team to match the Yanks.

"I believe the Reds made a better fight than the result shows. If they could have stopped a couple as they will do next time, they would have given the Yanks real trouble.

"The Pirates? Well now I don't know much about them at this time and I'm not making any predictions. I'll have to get my material together before I say anything. No, I am not going to break up the club—there are too many good men on the list. except to have a fighting team.

INTERCITY GOLF MATCH PAIRINGS ARE ANNOUNCED

Joe Switzer today announced the pairings for the friendly golf match at Bellerive Country Club Sunday between a group of St. Louis players and a group from Chicago.

The first match off the tee pits Elliott Whitbread and Bob Cochran against George Dawson and Art Doering.

Chester O'Brien and Dick Bockenkamp oppose James Frisinia and Don Armstrong in the second contest; in the third Jim Kearney and Bob Richardson are to play George Victor and Pick Wagner. Ned Paul Jaimeson and Joe Switzer meet Walter Burkemo and Hal Bowbeer and last Jim Manion and Sid Salomon oppose Chick Evans and Johnny Lehman.

It will take a comptometer to figure out the winners. The pairings who oppose each other in the morning will, in addition to the best ball doubles play, oppose each other in the sigles matches. In the afternoon the same schedule will be followed except the members of the foursomes will switch individual opponents.

Ky Laffoon, nationally prominent professional golfer who is a guest of Sidney Salomon will play along with the Salomon foursome just for the fun of it. Naturally his score won't count in the contest.

75-YARD RUN ON SLEEPER PLAY IN JOHNSON LEAGUE

In other games the Bombers defeated Harmony De Molay, 6-0, in Cleveland; Hesselberg won from Century, 9-0, and the Russell Rams blers beat the Internationals, 6-0, at Roosevelt Field. The International protested their game, charging the Ramblers with using an ineligible player.

BEARS' BILLIKENS FACE WICHITA ELEVEN IN NEXT BATTLE

Washington Reserves Fared Better Against Washburn Last Saturday Than the Regulars.

By James M. Gould

Football prospects for the Washington U. Bears and the St. Louis U. Billikens this week end are decidedly different. All the Bears have to do is battle the Tigers from the University of Missouri. The Billikens, with a victory and a scoreless tie to show for their work, play Wichita Friday night and although the teams tied, 0-0, a year ago, there is nothing in Wichita's 1939 record to cause Coach Muellerlielle any real uneasiness.

In view of the patent inability of Washington's team to prevent the other fellow from making and completing passes and taking into consideration that Missouri depends largely on a passing attack, it appears as though Coach Conzelman and his eleven would have to accept a third successive defeat. This despite the fact that the Tigers, last Saturday, were able to make little headway against the Ohio State Buckeyes.

Expected to Be Ready.

Several of the Billikens players were jarred around a bit in the hard scrap with Bradley Tech, but it is not believed that any of the injuries are serious enough to keep the men out of action against Wichita. St. Louis U., still in the chrysalis stage, so far as a summing-up of strength and weakness is concerned, should gain a decision over Wichita. The Billikens are much stronger than usual in the ball-carrying, kicking and passing departments and, in the games thus far, the line, after slow starts, has looked good.

Coach Muellerielle's running attack was good for 157 yards against a mighty sturdy Bradley defense. True, the passing failed to click, the scoreless tie, but it was the fault of the receivers rather than of the passer for, several times, Dick Weber practically put the ball in the arms of his eligible mates.

Puzzling Situation.

The situation at Washington is puzzling one. In practice last week, pass-defense was stressed and it seemed as though the Bears would be effective against an aerial offense. But, practice failed to make perfect or even fair and Washburn's passes netted 269 of the 362 yards the Ichabods gained. On the other hand, Washington, on the ground gained nearly three times as much as did Washburn and made five more first downs than the victorious team.

Time after time, Washburn receivers were wide open and huge gains resulted from wobbly, "soft" passes which seemed simple to break up.

Coach Conzelman used nearly three teams, Saturday, and the reserves did a lot better than the so-called regulars. Chances are that wholesale changes in the Bears' first-string personnel will be made, but it is extremely doubtful that any possible combination will be formidable enough to cope with the Tigers.

BERKELEY, Cal., Oct. 9 (AP)—Jaak Bromwich and Adrian Quist, world champion doubles team from Australia, had little trouble defeating their fellow countrymen, Harry Hopman, non-playing captain of the Australian Davis Cup team, and Jack Crawford, 6-0, 6-0, 6-4, in the final of the men's doubles at the fiftieth Pacific Coast tennis championship yesterday.

The women's doubles champion ship was won by the English Wightman cup team of Nina Brown and Freda James Hammersley, who defeated Pauline Bets, national indoor woman's singles champion, and Jane Stanton, both of Los Angeles, 4-6, 6-0, 6-2.

Edmund Serrano, St. Louis, Mo., annexed the veterans' singles title, winning over Herbert Vind, San Francisco, 7-5, 6-0.

In the men's singles, Robert Riggs, Chicago, advanced to the final round when he defeated Bromwich, 7-5, 6-3, 6-3, while Frank Kovacs, Oakland, reached the same round, winning over Franjo Punda, Yugoslavia, 12-10, 6-3, 8-6.

Sarah P. Fabyan, Boston, advanced to the women's singles final by defeating Mary Hardwick, England, 8-6, 6-2. She will be pitted against Virginia Wolfenden, San Francisco.

In a semifinal mixed doubles match, Helen Wills Moody, San Francisco, and Harry Hopman defeated Valerie Scott, England, and Kelby Van Horn, Los Angeles, 4-6, 6-3, 9-7.

"Sooners' Victory Over Big 10 Team Real Surprise"-Conzelman

However, Two Other Western Conference Coaches in Addition to Waldorf, Have Headaches Today.

By Jimmy Conzelman
Head Coach, Washington U.

There are a score of headaches in the coaches' quarters around the country today but it is difficult to pick the one that is most severe. Certainly that game between Northwestern and Oklahoma that resulted in the Purple dropping the game by a margin of 23 points, De Correvont and all, would qualify in the upper brackets of even migraine headaches. Northwestern appeared headed for the Big Ten title.

Of course, it is possible that Coach Waldorf may still bring his squad over the line in first position. Nevertheless the defeat by such a score was unlooked for even in those circles where persons are supposed to be experts. De Correvont showed that he has lots of that ability in several dashes he made against the Sooners and it would not be too optimistic to say that he may be one of the country's leading backs by the time November rolls around.

Up at Lincoln, Nebraska, a spirited Cornhusker eleven stunned Minnesota with a 6-0 defeat. Coach Bierman was reputed to have another powerhouse under wraps and Nebraska wasn't given a look-in. Wisconsin, strong contender for Big Ten honors in 1938, lost to Texas, so the picture at the Badger camp doesn't appear as rosy as it was last season.

Big Day for the South.

All in all it was a big day for the Southern teams. Besides the Oklahoma victory, Louisiana State, defeated convincingly by Mississippi, smothered a strong Holy Cross outfit. L. S. U. cracked Holy Cross wide open and the Massachusetts eleven hasn't been cracking easily these past few years. Missouri Valley favorite, Creighton, lost a 21-14 game to Tulsa at a time when the conference championship seemed headed for Omaha. Georgia Tech threw a scare into Notre Dame, but lost a thriller via the field goal route.

Missouri University dropped the game with Ohio State, but reports indicate that Coach Schmidt has a far better eleven than those which have represented the school in several years. Coming back into Big Six competition should enable the Tigers to hit the stride predicted for them before the season.

The battle between Kansas and Iowa State gave the Jayhawk rooters some relief after the defeat by Drake the previous week. It was Coach Gwinn Henry's first conference victory. Kansas State showed power in beating Marquette.

Nothing of an upset occurred out East although Army was pushed to beat Centre and had to do it in the last quarter, 9-6. The Praying Colonels held a six-point margin at the three-quarter mark. Yale stopped Columbia although the tears shed before the season at New Haven indicated simply nothing in the way of players on Coach Ducky Pond's squad.

About St. Louis Elevens.

Bradley held St. Louis University to a tie but Coach Muellerielle can be satisfied with the performance of his team. Those Peoria boys did the very same thing to Coach Zuppke last week. The Blue and White had several chances to score but bad breaks stopped what seemed to be certain victory.

Washington University dropped its second successive game, this time to Washburn, reputed Missouri Valley "darkhorse." After the first quarter the Bears' running attack functioned well but inability to stop the Ichabod aerials lost the game. After a rousing comeback in the second half, Washington bogged down on defense against a pass play late in the fourth quarter that pulled the game out of the fire for Washburn.

CHICAGO TEAMS PLAY TONIGHT IN SIXTH GAME

CHICAGO, Oct. 9 (AP).—The Chicago Cubs, needing only one victory to win their first city baseball title since 1930, play the White Sox tonight in the sixth game of their series.

Manager Gabby Hartnett planned to send the veteran Charley Root to the mound against the Sox southpaw, Thornton Lee. Both pitchers failed to win in previous appearances in this series.

The White Sox spotted the Cubs five runs at Wrigley Field yesterday, then rallied to tie the score in the eighth and take an 8 to 5 victory in the tenth inning, second overtime game of the five played.

The winning runs came home on Norman Schleuter's double in the tenth, Schleuter later scoring the final run himself. Bill Lee, who relieved Claude Passeau in the eighth inning, was the losing pitcher and Bill Dietrich, who succeeded John Rigney for the Sox in the fifth, was the winning hurler.

The five games have drawn 87,077 spectators, almost half of whom attended the series opener last Wednesday under Comiskey Field lights, where they play tonight. If a seventh game is necessary it will be played tomorrow afternoon at the Sox park.

BAKEWELL'S RIP WINS RETRIEVER ALL-AGE STAKE

Rip, golden retriever owned by Paul Bakewell III of St. Louis, became the first of that breed in the world ever to win an open all-age stake at the Mississippi Valley Retriever trials at Peruque, Mo., yesterday.

The dog was judged by J. Gould Remick of New York as "one of the outstanding dogs of all time."

The golden is a comparative newcomer among sporting dogs which inciude the Labradors, Chesapeakes, Yellow Labradors and Curly Coats; it was bred from a Russian tracker and a bloodhound in England in 1860.

Bakewell had the honor of being the first amateur trainer to handle an all-age winner in this country, no mean accomplishment against professional experts.

In the field were two of the game's finest handlers, Jasper Briggs and David Elliot of New York.

Warm weather kept the general work of the dogs a little below average.

Only one retriever reaching the water trial committed the unpardonable sin of retrieving a block of wood. That was Jill of Symington, a dog that otherwise did everything according to Hoyle.

Results of the open all-age stakes:

First, Rip, owned and handled by Paul Bakewell III. (Golden).

Second, Brass of Arden, ownedbyW. A. Harriman, Arden, N. Y., and handled by Jasper Briggs. (Labrador.)

Third, Golden Beauty of Roedare, owned and handled by Richard Ryan of Milwaukee. (Golden.)

Fourth, Michael of Glenmere, owned and handled by Jerry Angle of York, Nebraska. (Labrador.)

Fifth, Ch. Bingo of Yelme, owned and handled by John K. Wallace, St. Louis (Golden.)

Certificates of working award: King Midas of Woodend, owned by E. N. Dodge, Wayzata, Minn., handled by Dave Elliott (Golden); Grouse of Arden, owned and handled by Edgar M. Queeny, St. Louis (Labrador); Meadow Farm Night, owned by Charles Lawrence, New York, and handled by Dave Elliott (Labrador), and Jill of Cymington, owned by A. Mc G. Schlesinger, Milwaukee, Wis., and handled by Orin Benson (Labrador).

MERCER PRESIDENT OF BASEBALL WRITERS

CINCINNATI, Oct. 9 (AP).—Sid Mercer, veteran New York Journal-American writer, was elected president of the Baseball Writers' Association of America at the organization's annual world series meeting.

Tom Swope, Cincinnati Post, was named vice-president, and Ken Smith of the New York Daily Mirror, secretary-treasurer.

Elected to the board of governors were: Ed Burns, Chicago Tribune; Al Horwits, Philadelphia Ledger; Shirley Povich, Washington Post, and Jim Gould, St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

The association voted a $200 gift to Henry P. Edwards, retiring secretary-treasurer.

Kellers Defeat Kansas City, 3-1

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 9.—The St. Louis Municipal League champion Keller baseball team defeated the Milgrams, winners of the Kansas City Ban Johnson League title, 3 to 1, in an inter-city game here yesterday.

Alan Strange for a return engagement and the Giants took a chance on Paul Dean still having something up his sleeve besides his elbow.

Weather Notes.

In speaking of the shorn lamb and the wind
When Sept. is hot can Oct. be far behind?

An exceptionally warm September followed by a practically frostless first week in October indicates that autumn has turned over a new leaf.

Johnny Blood resigned as coach of the Pittsburgh Pirates pro football team. No reason has been given as yet but they do say that Blood will tell.

Frankie Frisch has officially signed to manage the Pirates for the next two years. So the old craft will now go into the drydock for a general overhauling and have all the barnacles scraped off in readiness for the launching under her new commander next spring.

Amos Alonzo Stagg and Glenn (Pop) Warner, the gold dust twins of the gridiron, have been burning up the Pacific Coast like nobody's business. After a 50-yard dash for a touchdown, Amos carrying the ball and "Pop" running interference, old Pappy Time broke his hour glass against the goal post, chucked his scythe in the ashcan and muttered "What's the use?"

CHURCHES AS PEACE FACTOR

John R. Mott Says Only Christian Conferences Can Help Europe.

CHICAGO, Oct. 9 (AP).—John R. Mott, international secretary of the Y. M. C. A., said last night a permanent solution to "European anarchy" can be found only through international conferences of the Christian churches.

Speaking before the Sunday Evening Club, Mott praised four recent world church conferences at Oxford and Cambridge, England, Madras, India, and Amsterdam, as examples for building peace.

REDS' COLLAPSE GIVES YANKEES THEIR FOURTH STRAIGHT CHAMPIONSHIP

play grounder to Frey, who did his part of the job, but Myers, in his eagerness to make a quick relay to first, dropped the ball and both runners were safe and Keller crossed the plate, to reduce the Reds' lead to a single run.

Selkirk sent a long fly to Goodman, and DiMaggio moved to third after the catch, and when Gordon followed with a hot grounder down the third-base line, Werber made a lunging stop, but was in a poor position to throw. He probably had no chance to get Gordon at first. He threw, of course, to the plate, but the hurried throw was not too good and before the slow Lombardi could catch the ball and do the necessary tagging, DiMaggio had touched a spiked shoe against the plate and the score was tied at 4 to 4.

Walters retired Dahlgren on a pop fly to McCormick and put over a called strike on Murphy to end the inning, but in the tenth disaster and his teammates' jittery nerves overtook him. Bucky started his own downfall by walking Crosetti, one of the weaker Yankee hitters, and Rolfe moved Frankie to second with a sacrifice. The dangerous Keller, who already had hit three home runs in the series, all of them at Crosley Field, skipped a grounder to short, but Myers' nerves were on edge and his fingers were of butter and he fumbled, Crosetti reaching third and Keller first.

DiMaggio then singled to right and the Reds' world fell down around them. Goodman fumbled the ball and, of course, Crosetti scored. Goodman retrieved the ball and McCormick, taking the throw-in, seemed to have a chance to nip Keller at the plate. But Lombardi was in front of the plate and had to lunge for Keller after taking the throw, and, as he lunged, the ball fell to the ground and Keller was safe. That was bad enough, but all this time DiMaggio was racing hell bent for the winners' share in the series, around the bases. And, as he ran, Lombardi, as though a figure in a slow movie, was untangling himself not more than a yard from the ball.

The Nimble DiMaggio.

He finally awoke to the fact that the DiMaggio was coming, but, as he picked up the ball and reached to tag Joe, the Yankee center fielder nimbly slid past the outstretched arm and touched the plate.

Goodman was charged with an error and so was Lombardi. Three errors in the inning, only one hit and yet the Yankees were three runs ahead and the victory, so recently well in hand, was now gone forever. A disconsolate and slightly surly Walters retired Dickey and Selkirk to end the disastrous inning, and Goodman and McCormick drew a few brief cheers when they opened the Cincinnai tenth with singles. But a down-hearted Lombardi fouled to Dickey, Simmons flied to Keller and, when Crosetti leaped and caught Berger's line drive, the thing was over.

The Yankees took the victory in stride. Except for a bit of extra spring to their steps as they trotted off the field and wide grins on their faces, you would have thought it was just another game for the powerful team. And that's the way they played yesterday and through every contest of the series.

Oral Hildebrand started on the hill for the Yankees, but developed a pain in his side and retired in favor of Sundra after four innings. Murphy, who relieved Sundra in the seventh, was the winning pitcher, his first world series triumph.

Even when the Reds were ahead in the late innings, hope that they might pull the series out of the fire was not at all strong. With Derringer and Walters both used up in the game, nobody could even suggest what Manager Bill McKechnie's pitching plans might be. And everybody knew that instead of a Hildebrand, Sundra or Murphy, the Reds in the next game would have to face a Red Ruffing or a Monte Pearson.

WAR NEWS AND COMMENT--SPECIAL TO THE POST-DISPATCH

INDIA DEMANDS NEW RIGHTS FROM BRITAIN AS PRICE OF AID IN WAR AGAINST HITLERISM

600 Delegates Meeting Today Await Clear Reply From Chamberlain — Dominion Status Is Minimum Sought — England Called on to Apply Democracy.

By LELAND STOWE
The Chicago Daily News—Post-Dispatch Special Cable. Copyright, 1939.

LONDON, Oct. 9.

THE British Government is confronted today with an imperative problem which will have the profoundest influence upon British-French prosecution of the war and may prove a vital factor in winning eventual allies for the Western Powers or, alternatively, may seriously dampen the sympathies of American and other neutral publics. This problem is whether India will be given such measure of self-rule that its 300,000,000 people will support Great Britain wholeheartedly in its fight to crush Nazi rule.

This fateful question has been posed by the All-India Congress Committee, and its 600 delegates are meeting in India today to insist upon a clear-cut, unequivocal answer from Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's wartime Cabinet. If the members of the All-India Congress fail to obtain from London what they regard as recognition of the absolute minimum of their demands, Britain will be threatened with the necessity of prosecuting the war without the support of India's powerful leaders. It may risk the development of a new mass movement for Indian independence at a moment when tranquility and unity inside the empire is of the utmost importance.

The All-Indian Congress committee has stated its position with sharp realism in its recent declaration which invites the "British Government to declare unequivocally their war aims regarding democracy and imperialism and the establishment of a new world order, and how these aims will be applied to India now, and whether they include the elimination of imperialism and the treatment of India as a free nation whose policy is guided by her own people." This document also insists that "India is the crux of the problem, as it is an outstanding example of modern imperialism."

Full Dominion Status.

Thus, Mahatma Gandhi and his followers have raised the fundamental problem of what Britain's war aims are going to be and upon what moral basis Britain will appeal to the sympathies of civilized nations throughout the world. The New Statesman and Nation describes this as a logical challenge and says: "If Britain fights for democracy then it must necessarily end imperialism and establish full democracy in India."

Meanwhile, Indians who are in London declare that a full dominion status for India is the very least that can satisfy India's masses and win their aid for Britain during the war.

The text of the All-India Congress Committee's significant declaration has not yet been published in the British press and, in fact, the Congress committee's meeting today is scarcely mentioned in London dailies—although this event is of supreme interest to the British commonwealth of nations.

This morning's News-Chronicle is unique in calling attention to the great issue at stake in India. It publishes a very revealing article by Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, chairman of the All-India Congress War Emergency Committee, who is the mightiest popular leader in India, next to Gandhi himself. Nehru's declarations authoritatively reflect the sentiments which now animate the 600 congress delegates meeting today.

Only as Free Nation.

Among other things, he says:

"If this war is for democracy and self-determination and against Nazi aggression, it cannot be for annexations, indemnities or reparations, for keeping colonial peoples in subjection and for maintaining the imperialistic sytem. . . . India can take no part in defending imperialism, but she will join in a struggle for freedom. . . . Only a free and equal India can co-operate of her free will in this task. Till that vital change is made, none of us has the power to make the people of India enthusiastic for a war which is not theirs."

Nehru warns that "this historic opportunity must be seized by recognizing India as a free nation with rights to draw up her constitutions and charter of independence. Anything short of that will mean losing this opportunity and keeping alive the spirit of friction and hostility between India and England. . . . The first step must be the declaration of India's full independence. . . . She must be convinced that the past is over and that we all are striving for a new order not only in Europe but in Asia and the world."

Nehru concludes, "It will be a tragedy for all of us if the deep significance of this gesture is not appreciated and a full response not made thereto. Such a response will hearten people all over the world and will be a greater blow

Stalin's Record as Grabber—Finland Not Resigned to His Policy.

By T. R. YBARRA

STALIN is moving 60 times as fast as Hitler.

If that prize nation-grabber gets his hooks into Lithuania and Finland—against both of which he is now making passes—as fast as he did in the case of Estonia and Latvia, he will make Adolf, champion Teutonic republic swallower, look like a turtle. You don't believe it? Well, here are the facts:

In March, 1938, Hitler annexed Austria to his Nazi Reich. Six months later, in September of that same year, he grabbed the Sudeten sections of Czechoslovakia. In March, 1939, again after a lapse of six months, he seized Bohemia and Moravia, the last districts of the Czechoslovak republic which still retained something resembling independence. Six months after that he crushed out the national existence of Poland, in his lightning war of last September, joining half of her territory to Germany and leaving the rest for Stalin, boss of the Kremlin, who had suddenly become his bosom pal, to the amazement of the universe.

That taste of territory meat gave Stalin ideas.

Two Nations in 6 Days.

Within the first six days of this present month of October he browbeat two little nations—the Baltic republics of Estonia and Latvia—into handing over to Soviet Russia part of their independence. And it looks now as if he might maintain the same dizzy pace in browbeating Lithuania and possibly Finland out of part of theirs. Two countries in six days. May be three in nine days. Possibly four in 12 days. A country every three days.

Why it took Hitler six months—let us say 180 days—to gobble or gobble partially each country on his bill of fare. Sixty times Fuehrer Adolf's speed! Never in history has a collector of countries done his collecting at the pace now being set by Kremlin Joe!

Estonia and Latvia have apparently resigned themselves to Stalin's aggression against their liberties. Estonia has granted him important privileges in one of her ports, also on two big islands adjacent to her coast and has acquiesced in the quartering on her soil of 25,000 Russian soldiers. Latvia, too, after enjoying full freedom scarcely 20 years, has already signed away part of it by letting Stalin have naval bases at two of her Baltic ports. And, if the Lithuanian envoys, who have gone to Moscow at the imperious summons of Stalin, escape signing on the dotted line shoved by him under their noses, they will deserve every medal ever awarded in Lithuania—and everyone current in the other Baltic countries as well.

As for Finland, things do not look quite so cut-and-dried.

The Finns are more numerous than the populations of their sister-republics of the Baltic. They are also tough customers. Like Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania, they used to be under Russian rule and they know well what that means. Russia is Finland's hereditary enemy. Already the Finnish Government is said to have called out the country's military reserves. And there is a report that the Finns are fortifying the Finnish-Russian border.

Some months ago the Russians began unmasking their ambitions with regard to Finland. There was talk of Russian bases on Finnish islands in the Gulf of Finland, the water highway to Leningrad, Russia's northern metropolis. Soviet Russia would like very much to establish headquarters for her warships playing the Baltic at Helsinki, Finland's capital, or some other strategically located Finnish harbor. Moscow also spoke of Rus-

Hitler's Baltic Repatriation Plan Indication of Stalin's Ascendancy

German Minorities in That Region Had Been Fuehrer's Trump Card—Finland, Friend of Nazis, Threatened.

By M. W. FODOR
The Chicago Daily News—Post-Dispatch Special Radio. Copyright, 1939.

PARIS, Oct. 9.

AS a result of yielding by Adolf Hitler and his Foreign Minister, Joachim von Ribbentrop, to the Soviets, Josef V. Stalin is now in a position to realize his Peter the Great dream more quickly than he had ever imagined. The facts which indicate this are the following:

1. Hitler's admission in his speech to the Reichstag last Friday that, on the basis of the Russian-German agreement, he is now repatriating Germans from all over Eastern and Southeastern Europe.

The German minority in the Baltic and the Balkans were Hitler's strongest trump card in the game he played to achieve his dream of conquest in Southeastern Europe and the Baltic. Now this has been completely abandoned. The Soviet-German treaty provides for the evacuation of the German minority in Estonia, Lithuania and Latvia, where the Baltic barons of German origin used to exert tremendous influence. From the Baltic, for example, 6000 Germans and 120,000 others of German origin will now be taken back to Germany.

After the abandonment by Hitler of his anti-Comintern policy, this new development may be regarded as another renunciation of no little importance in the original 25 points of the Nazi party program, which aimed at the union of all Germans within and without Germany—provided that those of the latter category were within reasonable reach of the mother country.

Moreover, ever since the Eleventh Century the Baltic has been considered the traditional line of conquest in Prussian eyes.

Summoning Finns.

2. A further development which shows German submission to Stalin is the summoning to Moscow of the Finns who, heretofore, have been the greatest friends of the Nazis in the Baltic. The Finns have dispatched Juhu Paasikivi, former Premier who is now Finnish Minister at Stockholm, to negotiate with Premier-Foreign Commissar Viacheslav M. Molotov, and there can be no doubt that one of the consequences flowing from this meeting will be a Russian demand for a naval and fortified base on the Aaland Islands. With Aaland and Estonian Islands under Russian control the Eastern Baltic would become nothing less than Russian waters.

Futhermore, it appears that the Russians intend to build a "Voroschilov" line against Germany along the entire Baltic waterfront (Voroschilov derives from War Commissar Klementi Voroschilov). The Estonian port of Paltiski will be the cornerstone of the line and it is known that Latvia has already conceded a stretch of sea front 40 miles long where the Russians can erect fortifications.

But what is Stalin's game? It is obviously a double one. In order to carry out his Peter the Great dream he wants to seize the Baltic as did the Czar early in the eighteenth century.

As Nicolai Lenin's successor, Stalin's design is to spread world revolution and unquestionably an enfeebled Germany would suit this purpose admirably. Pressed from the west by the Allies and from the east by the "friendly" Russians, Stalin believes that Germany is bound to go revolutionary within the relatively near future.

Germany's Position.

Stalin further believes that Germany is already so deeply embedded in a hopeless quagmire that, even assuming that the Allies reached some peace agreement with the Reich, it is impossible for her to escape Moscow's "embrace in good Bolshevik spirit." This explains why Stalin is willing to support Hitler's peace offensive.

But even if the war continues, Stalin realizes that his game is not lost, for, in order to balk a Soviet thrust toward the Balkans, Berlin might conceivably make certain internal concessions to Bolshevism by agreeing to persecute the wealthy classes, bankers and industrialists—a policy which, in any case, is in line with that of the extreme wing of the Nazi party.

In this connection, it may be said that even an atheist campaign throughout Germany, with the purpose of pleasing and mollifying Russia, would by no means be in contradiction with the fundamental principles of Nazi policy.

Germany is definitely alarmed as Russia casts her eyes toward Rumania. Despite Molotov's recent assurance to the Rumanians that he had no designs on their country, such assurance undoubtedly rests on the same insincerity as did previous assurances made by Moscow to the Baltic states. Frightened by the great Russian bear, Rumania has voluntarily granted far-reaching rights to the Ukrainian minority in Rumania—notwithstanding the fact that the existence of such a minority was usually denied in Bucharest.

Britain Doubts U. S. Is Preparing To Be Mediator

Thinks That Rumors of Impending Step by Roosevelt Are Nazi Propaganda.

By LELAND STOWE
The Chicago Daily News—Post-Dispatch Special Cable. Copyright, 1939.

LONDON, Oct. 9.

BRITISH spokesmen are emphatic in declaring that Prime Minister Chamberlain and the entire Cabinet are firm in their rejection of Adolf Hitler's vague peace formula and that Britain is committed to continue the war until a just and honorable peace can be attained—however much David Lloyd George may urge, as he did in yesterday's Sunday Express (and St. Louis Post-Dispatch), that a conference of world Powers should now be held to "review the whole position."

Reports reached London today to the effect that Washington had swung around in favor of mediation. British officials frankly discounted such a possibility and termed these rumors German propaganda. According to their opinion, Hitler's speech contained nothing which can serve as a basis for negotiations. They insist that this is no time for mediation and the British Government does not want it along the lines Hitler outlined.

"No Guarantee Offered."

This viewpoint is expressed with great vigor by the London Times today. It declares that Hitler could make no proposals worth discussing unless they were accompanied by "tangible guarantees," for neither his word nor signature has the slightest value and "no such guarantees were offered on Friday."

The Times continues: "It has been widely maintained in the United States and other neutral countries that no guarantees strong enough to bind Hitler to his word are capable of being devised. That is certainly the opinion that Britain and France have reached by long bitter experience of one whom they tried to go on trusting even after their trust had been betrayed. There is nothing left for them but to strengthen their resolve to rid Europe of the man and the policy that are the essential obstacle to its peace."

Several hints have appeared in the press indicating that Hitler's resignation might make some difference in dealing with Germany. It is interesting, therefore, that the Ambassadors of foreign Powers here have been advised by Foreign Office spokesmen that the elimination of Hitler from the Nazi scene will not be sufficient and that the entire Nazi Government must go. The British people are unquestionably and overwhelmingly of this sentiment and will welcome such a clarification of the issue as this.

British Watch Moscow.

Meanwhile, the British continue to watch developments in Moscow

WASHINGTON LETTER

By CHARLES G. ROSS

The Sad Plight of Republican Candidates for President — War Blacks Out Their Publicity and Produces Issue Overshadowing Domestic Problems.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.

IF the effects of the European war on the United States can be said to have any lighter side, it consists—for the detached observer—in the sad plight of those who are offering themselves, or being offered by their friends, as candidates for the Republican nomination for President.

The hopefuls on the other side (except the No. 1 man of the party, who may or may not be in that category) were already suffering; the war leaves them about as they were, except as it may have heightened the mental anguish created by the third-term threat. Frustration has been for so long the unhappy lot of the yearning Democrats that they have become inured to it. The war is just another factor in their unease.

It hits the Republican aspirants, however, a terrific wallop. What effect it will have on their relative chances to win the nomination is a question as unanswerable as what the effect will be on Republican chances at the polls in November. In the meantime, all of them are caught in a black-out.

One day the country is talking about the presidential campaign and assessing the prospects of the G. O. P. to come back into power; the next day it is talking about the war and what the United States should do to keep out of it. One day the Republican candidates are in the headlines on Page 1; the next day, comparatively speaking, they are on Page 17.

All this, from the Republican point of view, is a highly deplorable state of affairs. It came about just at a time when the candidacies of the leading Republican aspirants were getting nicely under way. All the traditional rites were being observed and were being duly noted in print. Candidates were being summoned by the swelling voice of the people and they were responding to the call. Polls purporting to show their popular standing were being eagerly studied. The opinion of even so lowly a person in the political hierarchy as a county chairman was significant news. Then the war struck. Were ever candidates of any political party the victims of a more cruel fate?

But not only was fate cruel in thus shifting the spotlight of attention from the candidates. It was even more malign when it brought to the front an issue which, for the time being, has split the party. This is the neutrality issue. There are leading Republicans on both sides of it. No suggestion is here intended that the issue makes an irreparable cleavage in the Republican ranks, any more than that it makes such a cleavage among the Democrats.

It is, however, an unfortunate circumstance, from the Republican point of view, that the split comes on the eve of a campaign, at a time when harmony in the party is vitally essential to its success.

The division over neutrality may turn out not to have been serious; even if serious, its effects may be offset by the split on the same issue in the Democratic party; but the Republican strategists would be feeling much more comfortable today if the issue had never arisen. The task of producing a united front—a task which Minority Leader Joe Martin of the House, for conspicuous example, has labored heroically and with considerable success—is made at least a little more difficult by the emergence of an issue which has set such important Republicans as Taft and Vandenberg on different sides and has caused such Republican elder statesmen as Nicholas Murray Butler and former Secretary of State Stimson to come to the support of the Democratic President.

The neutrality fight has had the further effect, bad in its relation to Republican chances, of taking public attention away from domestic problems. Not much is being heard

Belgium Keeps Armed Watch On Its Frontier

Roads Near German Line Barricaded, Tank Traps and Barbed Wire Ready.

By ROBERT OKIN

BRUSSELS, Oct. 9 (AP).

THE Belgian-German frontier, which was the first theater of war in 1914, today is a scene of "armed peace" as the Belgians stand ready to resist any invader.

A tour from Liege to the frontier points near Aachen (Aix-la-Chappelle), Malmedy, Saint Vith and nearby posts produced a picture not unlike that of a country at war.

To protect itself, this neutral country, partly mobilized, must barricade roads, have tank traps and barbed wire ready, and must man forts. Guards and armed patrols must keep a steady watch in wooded areas, scouting many roads winding in and out of the twisting border.

Over on the German side, little can be seen beyond a peaceful countryside similar to the Belgian country.

Although the Siegfried line parallels the frontier it is some distance back and residents simply wave vaguely and say "It's back of the hills."

Barriers in Roads.

A typical frontier scene was found at Tulje, Belgian customs post on the Liege-Aachen road. The highway is obstructed by barriers through which cars must weave slowly. Guards inspected passports, but asked for no special permits and permitted visitors to stroll at will up the road toward Germany.

Half a mile away hung a huge Belgian flag, and beyond it was a white line on the road guarded by Two German soldiers in helmets, greatcoats and military boots.

Rifles on shoulders, they stood across the highway and back of them flew a Nazi flag with is black swastika.

BANK AND BORROW WHERE You ARE IMPORTANT

INDUSTRIAL has specialized in serving the individual since 1913.

As pioneer in the personal loan and deposit business in St. Louis, every employe from the president down has concentrated all efforts and training in this one type of banking, so the individual's business is first in importance at this bank.

If we made commercial loans, then the business of the corporation would be more important, because a $200,000 loan is more important than a $200 loan. But we do not make commercial loans, our average loan is between $300 and $400, and you, the individual are the important borrower.

If we carried commercial deposits, then the account of the corporation would be more important, because larger. But we do not carry commercial deposits, so your savings account, your checking account, is of first importance.

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles: that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news, always be drastically independent, never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Says Peace Now Means Another Munich.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

YOUR editorial Sunday, "At This Vital Moment," delivered the coup de grace to my fading hopes for success of the democratic cause in Europe. It is a safe bet that Hitler will have his men out of the Siegfried line by Christmas, as the Berlin dispatches state.

So the world, and particularly liberal public opinion, which was so vociferous in its condemnation of Munich, is already condoning the rape of Poland.

Sitting in the grandstand, we said that Hitler was bluffing and that he wouldn't fight. It turned out we were wrong, and so we are in favor of calling the game on account of darkness.

So we will have to take refuge in slogans. "Peace hath her victories no less renowned than war," etc. The trouble lies in the fact that despite all our wishful thinking, the victories will be those of Hitler.

Athwart any conference of the European Powers will brood the shadow of the successful and victorious military power of Hitler, now aided by the no less ruthless Stalin.

The United States cannot safely involve itself in such a conference. The cards will be stacked because the dictators will know that the Allies will not fight, and so we will have another Munich, but on a grandiose scale.

Not a pleasant prospect!

BEN L. LIBERMAN.

"At Bay."

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE editorial Friday, "At Bay," and recent ones like it, deserve special recognition. The keen psychological insight and masterly analysis exhibited in dealing refreshingly with a subject of such obvious complexities breed confidence in the reader. The Pulitzer pen is in able hands. WILLIAM H. THALER.

Disliked Recent Cartoon.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

INASMUCH as I feel certain of Mr. Fitzpatrick's integrity as a cartoonist, my interpretation of his cartoon of Sept. 26 [which showed Hitler writing his Congressman to keep the arms embargo] that the arms embargo plays into Hitler's hands was the most lenient I could conscientiously assume.

To several people here and, I'm sure, to many Post-Dispatch readers, it represented a startling preview of the coming flood of patriotic propaganda, in which any minority opinion (and I suppose this is a minority opinion) is to be met with the old game of name-calling.

The most obvious inference was that anyone who disagrees with the President is pro-Nazi. One could as soon, and with a more justifiable basis in the present case, call those for repeal of the arms embargo "war profiteers," and the President "war-monger."

Although editorially the Post-Dispatch essays a fair and reasonable defense of repeal (the fact that it left me unconvinced has no relation with the present complaint), it seems to me necessary to realize that a paper's most effective editorial writer is its cartoonist, and that the same care be taken in assuring objectivity and unambiguity in that department as in editorial analysis.

No hard feelings, but I hope you didn't mean it. A. MATHER.

An Absolute Stand for Peace.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

LET us take an absolute stand for peace that will keep us out of the conflicts of Europe. War, which causes, among other evils, the senseless sacrifice of lives, is never constructive—only destructive. A. V. DEIBERT.

Wants Strict Neutrality.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

HOW can the President be willing to sell warring Europe weapons of destruction that will cause more blood to be spilled, more broken-hearted families and fatherless children?

Let us remain strictly neutral. If we place a gun in another person's hands, knowing he will use it for the destruction of life and property, we are as guilty of that destruction as he.

If the arms embargo is lifted, we become indirectly the ally of Great Britain and France. Perhaps our President can tell us what will happen after Great Britain and France have no more cash. Will we give them credit and then men?

M. B.

For Retaining Arms Embargo.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IF we do away with the arms embargo, it will lead to lending money to the Allies and then sending our men over to fight for them. The American people are against this kind of neutrality.

MARTIN POVICH.

His Stand in a Nutshell.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

NO credit, no arms, all the rest cash and carry. L. G. S.

Another Protector Needed.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

HERR HITLER has taken it upon himself to become the protector of minorities. However, there is another side to the question. Who is to protect the Polish, Czecho-Slovak minorities, etc., in the areas Hitler has taken over?

WALLACE KLEIN.

LET'S CALL A SPADE A SPADE.

The Neutrality Act, as it stands, favors Germany because it prohibits our sale of arms to the Allies.

The Neutrality Act, as rewritten by the Pittman bill, would favor England and France because it would permit our sale of arms to the Allies.

This is sufficient to show that the term "Neutrality Act" is not an accurate one.

It is impossible for the United States to be neutral in the strict meaning of that term. Whether we keep the law now on the books, revise it or altogether repeal it, our action or inaction will have its effect upon the war. It will help or hurt one side or the other.

Since we must either help or hurt one side or the other, our interests naturally lie in helping France and Britain.

This is because the United States can live in peace with a victorious France and Britain, as is shown by the history of the last century.

It is exceedingly doubtful that we could live in peace with a victorious Germany.

In any case, if the Germans won and took over the British Navy, we should have to double the size of our navy. We should have to keep an invincible naval force in the Atlantic and another in the Pacific. We should no doubt also have to have a standing army of at least a million men. These defensive steps would make us a militaristic nation, contrary to the nation's tradition; they would cost many billions of dollars.

The argument of the President and others that the Pittman bill should keep us out of war is valid so far as the cash-and-carry provisions are concerned.

Those provisions would prohibit American ships from carrying supplies to the belligerents and from entering dangerous zones where they might be sunk by submarines. Clearly, these constitute a precaution to keep us out of war. They are designed to avoid the situation which was the direct cause of our entrance into the last war.

As to the arms embargo, no one can say with certainty that retaining the embargo will keep us out or that lifting it will put us in. What can be said with certainty is that to keep it would be to continue to favor Germany; to lift it would be to favor the Allies.

Since we must favor one or the other, we want to favor the Allies. The current Fortune magazine poll of public opinion shows 83.1 per cent in favor of an Allied victory, 1 per cent in favor of German victory.

In a recent radio speech, Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska, who was denounced as a traitor for voting against our declaration of war against Germany in 1917, put it this way:

> It is said by those who are opposed to any change in our embargo law that the course I have outlined will be favorable to England and France. But it is equally true, if we fail to take the course I have outlined, and the present embargo law is kept intact, such action will be favorable to Hitler and the other dictators.

Would it not be a great gain in the interest of intellectual honesty if Senator Norris' statement were accepted as the basis for debate in and out of the Senate? Let the proponents of arms embargo repeal frankly say they are interested in an Allied victory because that would best serve American interests. Let the opponents of arms embargo repeal refute it if they can.

But let us all quit talking about neutrality, because no such thing is possible short of building a Chinese wall around this country and refusing to ship anything to anybody. Nobody, not even the Borah-Vandenberg group, is proposing that.

LOOKING AT THE CONGRESSIONAL RECORD.

"Let's look at the record," Alfred E. Smith has often remarked, and he revived his favorite sentence in his recent radio speech. A look at the Congressional Record of next day is enlightening, not to say startling. For Mr. Smith's address appears twice in that number, on page 166 as an "extension of remarks" by Senator Barkley, and on page 194 on the motion of Representative Bloom.

Administration forces are properly grateful, of course, for Mr. Smith's fine appeal in behalf of neutrality law revision. Their enthusiastic duplication cost the taxpayers an extra $58, the estimated cost per page of the Congressional Record. But the count of extravagance is subsidiary to that of poor journalism. The editor of what other daily journal would annoy his readers by publishing a full-page article twice in one issue? What the Congressional Record needs is a ferocious city editor with an adequate makeup schedule and a heavy blue pencil.

MR. ARNOLD, DO YOUR STUFF!

Thurman Arnold, the Assistant Attorney-General whose job is the swatting of monopoly, has his work cut out for him in that powerful combination in restraint of trade known as the New York Yankees. If ever a ruthless octopus existed, it is the Joe McCarthy machine. Competition becomes a vain hope when it bucks up against that mighty combine, as the Cincinnati Reds have just discovered.

They went down in the shortest possible order, save only for one disastrous extra inning, but that isn't the only count that will appear in Mr. Arnold's brief. The Yankees hold a four-year monopoly in the world series industry. Their opposition has gone down to defeat in 28 of the last 31 series games. Where is the big stick Teddy Roosevelt used to wield against such heartless trusts as that?

Mr. Arnold should be concerned with the sad fate that regularly overtakes every Yankee competitor. He should also give a thought to the annual wave of apathy that grips series fans. The mechanized Yank infield, its sluggers' row, its deadly pitching staff, its impregnable outfield, have reduced baseball to a dismal science. What the country needs is an old-fashioned world series that runs six or seven games, that produces some rational betting odds and a few genuine arguments, that brings suspense rather monotonous certainty. Mr. Arnold, do your stuff!

THAELMANN, NIEMOELLER AND JAMES SEWARD.

The release by the Nazis of Ernst Thaelmann, German Communist leader until Hitler came into power, while the Rev. Martin Niemoeller continues to be held in a concentration camp, is being widely remarked, as indeed it should be. Yet it is stranger only in degree than a situation here in Missouri. James Seward has been behind the bars for 18 years. There is grave doubt as to whether he committed the crime for which he was convicted. In any case, he has a good record in prison which disinterested State leaders have repeatedly said justifies his release. Gov. Stark and the State Board of Probation and Parole presumably have gone into this case; still they make no report. Meanwhile, parole after parole has been granted to convicts whose guilt was firmly established and whose prison terms have been shorter than Seward's. Given the conditions in Nazi Germany and those in the United States, Seward's retention in prison is harder to explain than Pastor Niemoeller's.

RUSSIA WINS THE BALTIC.

Soviet Russia is pressing steadily forward with a series of diplomatic victories that will mean political and strategic dominance in the Baltic region.

Germany once had ambitions to rule this area, and moved within striking position by annexation of Memel last March. Now Hitler can do nothing more than look on while his powerful ally gathers it into his sphere of influence. The Baltic states themselves are powerless to resist as their Foreign Ministers, one by one, are summoned to Moscow. Their only hope is to make the best terms they can.

The four Baltic countries were created by the peace conference, not primarily in recognition of their nationalistic ambitions, but as a buffer region between Western Europe and the dreaded Soviet Union. The cordon sanitaire, it was hoped, would keep Bolshevik infection at a distance. When collective security collapsed, the four little states were left helpless, the prey of whatever Power moved first to dominate them. Russia has merely beaten Germany to the quarry.

Moscow now announces that it has gained the objectives sought in vain in the negotiations with England and France. Its decision to join Germany has weakened the Allies' strategic position, but the moral weight of their cause would have been immensely impaired had Britain and France consented to the Polish and Baltic gains Russia has now made as an ally of Germany. Even so, Allied statesmen cannot conceal their satisfaction that Russia and not Germany has plucked the Baltic plums.

Finland, it is now indicated, will not yield so readily as Estonia and Latvia have done and as Lithuania is about to do. There is talk of appealing to Sweden or Germany for support if the Soviet demands turn out to be "excessive." Yet Sweden has no wish to become embroiled, Germany is in no position to make effective protest and Finland itself cannot expect to resist Soviet might. Stalin may be counted upon to follow a canny course, in the hope of more bloodless victories, while Hitler sees his hoped-for Baltic domain passing out of the picture.

Another reason for keeping out of the war is the headline: "Treasury Deficit a Billion."

THE FIRST AUTHENTICATED WAR ATROCITY.

Fears that this new war may be even more cruel than the last now seem to be well founded. From Berne in Switzerland comes news of the first authenticated atrocity of the conflict—all the more terrible because it occurred in a neutral country.

The Swiss have mobilized 500,000 men—just to be on the safe side these days. But there is really very little for them to do, states the report, so conscripts from the high Alps have taken to teaching their fellow soldiers from the cities how to yodel.

It was bad enough when that fine art was practiced among the edelweiss on the highest crags of the Matterhorn, but life for the peace-loving Swiss will be worse than war if every other man strolling along Geneva's Quai de Mont Blanc greets each and every friend with a series of protracted vocal cadenzas.

The Government has just disposed of its most notorious draft dodger, and the State has just sold its last batch of soldier bonus bonds. Who said it was time to consider getting into another war?

LESSON OF THE CIGARETTE TAX.

St. Louis dealers report a drop of 50 per cent in the sale of cigarettes since the city tax of $1 a thousand went into effect. Nor is there any compensating gain reported from the county. Obviously, some people have just stopped smoking cigarettes.

Groups that have long crusaded toward this end may be gratified—or they may be a bit humiliated that the Board of Aldermen should have been able to do with one simple act what they were unable to do with tract upon tract year after year. City officials, of course, are happy. The tax has already brought in $242,323, not including the license fee for merchants. This is, perhaps, even more than they had hoped for.

But let them consider the case of New York before congratulating themselves on their acumen. There it has just been reported that receipts from a 1-cent-a-package tax declined 60 per cent in September, as compared with the same month a year ago. Confined as it is to a single item, the cigarette tax offers a particularly striking example of the baleful effects of sales taxes in general. It is something that the Legislature will have in mind, one hopes, when the inevitable suggestion is again made to increase the Missouri sales tax.

Rumania and Hungary have agreed to demobilize troops along their frontier. Well, if they are to be "dominated" anyway, there's no sense in going to a lot of needless expense about it.

APPEASEMENT IN KENTUCKY.

Gov. A. B. Chandler and Senator Alben Barkley of Kentucky have made peace. The reconciliation of these two protagonists in the bitter senatorial contest of little more than a year ago was a touching scene.

The gallant Governor pledged himself to "uphold the hands of Senator Alben Barkley, the majority leader of the Democratic party in the United States Senate"—now that he is entering "a wider field of service" in that same Senate.

Not to be outdone, the chivalrous Senator announced: "I thank Gov. Chandler for this 'umbrella of appeasement.' I accept it to show you that I am not a Hitler and return it to him in the same spirit that Grant returned Lee's sword after Appomattox."

Had the senior Senator from Kentucky any reputation for mischievous subtlety, his reply might have raised an eyebrow or two. But being just "Dear Alben," it would seem to mean that all the charges of abuse of Federal and State payrolls in the 1938 primary campaign have now been wrapped up in crinoline, old lace and wistaria and magnolia petals in the finest tradition of Southern chivalry—and "practical politics."

CONSCRIPT WITHOUT GLAMOUR.

Results of the Nazi-Soviet Pact

The Mirror of Public Opinion

Russia has done a good stroke for herself in Polish annexation and avenging democracies' snubs, English liberal journal says; now in position to check Hitler, and may yet do so; Britain urged to strengthen diplomatic position at Moscow and state its war aims.

From the New Statesman and Nation, London.

RUSSIA'S occupation of the old Czarist provinces of Poland had, at least in general terms, been prearranged when the German-Soviet agreement was made, though the extent and timing of it may have been changed by the dangerous speed of the German advance. Our complaint against the U. S. S. R. is not that it has taken over territory which would otherwise have fallen to Germany, but that it precipitated the war when it threw over all its past declarations of policy and came to an agreement with the Nazis.

Many of us had foreseen that Russia would go into isolation and that there might well be a partition of Poland if Britain did not hasten the Anglo-Soviet pact, when it was offered shortly after the seizure of Prague. But when Stalin decided that the Western democracies were not worth helping and that isolation was the safer path for the U. S. S. R., he was not under any compulsion to continue negotiations with Britain and to hold military conversations with the British and French staffs even while he was negotiating behind their backs with Hitler.

It is the method and timing of the German-Soviet pact of which we have to complain, not the occupation of Poland, which may, indeed, from our own point of view and the world's, be a considerable advantage. Nor will it all necessarily bode any good to Hitler if the U. S. S. R. dominates the Baltic states or even establishes a protectorate over the old disputed territory of Bessarabia.

One thing is clear: Russia has done a remarkably good stroke of business for herself. The German and Russian forces met on equal terms at Brest-Litovsk, where Lenin accepted the most humiliating peace of modern times at the hands of the Germans. By taking over the Russian parts of Poland, Stalin repays an old score; it was over these areas that Pilsudski, encouraged and financed by the Allies, carried out in 1920 one of the least justifiable military campaigns in modern history.

By making friends with Germany at a critical moment, Stalin gets a little more than his own back on the democratic Powers, which had cold-shouldered Russia persistently for 20 years; if, as he believes, the Western democracies have tried to persuade Hitler to attack the U. S. S. R., he has succeeded in turning the tables and driving Hitler against the democracies. At the same time, he promises a period of peace to the Soviet Union and places Russia in the strongest position for diplomatic or military intervention, if Germany and the Western Powers fight a protracted war of exhaustion in the West.

Russia is still free to check Germany if Stalin wishes—and he may yet do so. Certainly a cynical move, quite in the best tradition of past German and Russian diplomacy.

If Russia had announced her intention in time, there might have been no war this autumn. With Hitler given a free hand as he was, the British Government was forced to stand by a pledge which, without Russian help, it could not make effective.

A new situation has been created which calls emphatically for definition of the constructive peace aims of Britain and France. The original conception of the Peace Front, which was to prevent war by the collective resistance by pacifically minded Powers to aggression, has disappeared. Britain and France now stand alone against Germany. It is all the more necessary that neutrals who are now watching uneasily the movements of Hitler's big battalions should be given convincing proof that the Western Allies have peace aims that offer a real chance for European reconstruction.

Pivotal points on which the whole future turns are still obscure. How far does the agreement of Stalin and Hitler go? That the two methods of government have in some respects been approximating has been clear to competent observers since the purges of three years ago. That the two economic systems are in many ways complementary is also clear, even though the outlooks of the two governments, the one aiming at racial and imperial conquest and the other preoccupied with reorganizing and industrializing a vast autarchic area, have differed so greatly.

We see that for the moment their political interests have come together. Whether this will develop into a lasting alliance is an open question; the answer may depend on our policy. It is difficult to believe that Stalin wishes for a strong and victorious Germany. Stalin probably prefers to balance the forces of Europe, and it would seem to be the path of wisdom for Britain to maintain and immediately to strengthen its diplomatic position in Moscow.

We should remove altogether from our minds the conception of rebuilding the Europe of Versailles. It is neither possible nor desirable. The best hope we have is that the German people may not find the swift efficiency of their military victory in Poland a compensation for shortage of the necessities of life and that there may be persons and groups in Germany strong enough to resist the sentence of a perpetual state of warfare which Hitler seems to wish to pass on Germany.

We should remember that the leaders of the Nazi state, able though some of them are, have different views about the future of their country and are divided into conflicting groups. If out of this situation a more reasonable Germany emerges, what we have to look for is the possibility of a United States of Europe, in which the German people, like other Powers, have their own Lebensraum, in which no Power dominates and in which sovereignty gives place to national independence within a European federation.

That may seem today a far cry, and in this moment of uncertainty, when strategic and political factors of the utmost importance are hidden from us, it would be absurd to pronounce in detail about the future. What we can say with certainty is that our immediate goal must be to overthrow the Nazi regime and that our ultimate goal must be a Europe free from the menace of armed diplomacy conducted by a threat of war.

SEEING AMERICA FIRST.

From the New York World-Telegram.

VISITORS to Yellowstone Park, up about 10 per cent from last year, probably will exceed a half-million in the 1939 season, breaking all records.

Those Americans who have visited their own national parks this year are fortunate. They have seen some of the world's grandest scenery. And they don't have to wait for boats or dodge submarines in order to get home again.

Should We Launch a Peace Bid?

From the Milwaukee Journal.

THE executive council of the American Federation of Labor, with every good intention, proposes that the United States offer its mediation services for peace in Europe. The same suggestion has been made within other organizations.

This is a path of thought along which this country needs to proceed most cautiously, if at all. Is this the time to make a peace proposal? And if we made one, offering to mediate, could we stop at mediation? Or would we be looked upon by Europe as guarantors of the peace?

These are not academic questions. Turn back to 1916. The German Government, sensing that it was not likely to win a prolonged war, opened a drive for peace. The German note was transmitted to the Allies through the good offices of the United States.

A few days later, President Wilson launched his own peace drive in the form of instructions sent by Secretary Lansing to our Ambassadors in European capitals asking them to make inquiries as to the aims of all the belligerents, so that a common ground of conference might be discovered.

Wilson was careful to state that his inquiry was in no way connected with the German peace offer. But one has only to read the Allied notes of that period to see that the two movements were connected in the Allied mind. It was an unfortunate reaction that could not be prevented.

The American inquiry served only to stir up a host of bitter charges and countercharges in Europe. It was all heat and no light. In America, those opposed to Wilson seized upon his implication that the United States would associate itself in a movement to guarantee a stable peace. They were more certain than ever when he addressed the Senate in January, 1917, and advocated a "peace without victory." Controversy arose here.

The sum total of that effort of 1916 was to arouse a division domestically and an unfavorable impression abroad, at least in the Allied countries, of what President Wilson was willing to do.

We could do all these things again with an ill-advised, poorly timed offer of mediation. The dictators would like to have peace, now that Poland is taken. Any offer we made, no matter how well intentioned, would be construed as an aid to them. And even though we had no intention of becoming a guarantor for the peace of Europe, if we negotiated a peace we would in a manner be held responsible for the way it worked out.

President Roosevelt made it clear, before war started, that this country was willing to do what it legitimately could to help avoid the conflict. Hitler ignored him. Some day, perhaps, America can be useful as a negotiator. That is a hope we should keep in mind.

But before we take any step, we need to consider long and carefully both the chances of success and of our own position when the negotiations are completed. Under no circumstances should the leaders of this country place America in the position of in any way guaranteeing or underwriting a peace in Europe.

TODAY and TOMORROW

By WALTER LIPPMANN

Hitler's Speech

HITLER'S peace proposal is that east of the Maginot Line the destiny of Europe shall be determined by Stalin and himself, that outside of Europe the former German colonies shall be restored to him.

If the proposal is seriously considered, the United States would, of course, have no standing in, and would have no position on, the question of Eastern Europe. It has no direct interest. But in the discussion of the colonial question, the United States would have a very important interest. For the return of the German colonies on the west coast of Africa would place Hitler's navy nearer to South America, and particularly to Brazil, than our own navy.

The matter would concern us all the more since, for as long as we can now see ahead, our navy must remain in the Pacific, and it would require many years to construct another navy capable of defending our communications with the great countries of South America.

Our concern would be dictated by elementary considerations of national defense. For our supplies of rubber and tin we are entirely dependent upon the safety of sea communications with the British and Dutch possessions in the Far East and with Brazil. For manganese, which is a critical raw material in the manufacture of steel, we are dependent on Brazil, on British West Africa and India and on Russia.

As Maj. Eliot has pointed out, the distance from our outermost base at St. Thomas to the Brazilian manganese mines in Minas Geraes is 3700 miles. That is considerably farther than the distance from the United States to Europe. The establishment of Nazi Germany as a naval power in the South Atlantic at a time when our own navy is compelled to remain on guard in the Pacific is, therefore, a matter about which no one can be indifferent if he is concerned with the defense of this hemisphere.

Eastern Europe is manifestly within the rule laid down by George Washington that "Europe has a set of primary interests which to us have none or a very remote relation." But what happens in the Atlantic Ocean falls within the set of our primary interests.

Therefore, apart from its human and cultural implications, the situation in Eastern Europe concerns this country only as it bears upon the question whether the Allies can be forced or persuaded by Hitler to lay down their arms and share with him their naval control of the Atlantic Ocean.

When we examine the bearing of the Eastern European situation on the general position of the Allies, it is evident that any judgment depends upon an estimate as to what are the real relations between Hitler and Stalin. But those relations are a secret, and what the Nazis and Communists have said about them is not at all informative. The only chance we have of piercing the secret is when Stalin or Hitler plays a card, that is makes an actual move rather than a rhetorical declaration.

When we do see the card we may be able to begin to infer what are some of the other cards that each holds in his hand. Such inferences would have to be based on what we know from the past about the more or less permanent objectives of Russian and German imperialism, and modified by our estimate of the mentality of the Nazi and Bolshevik revolutions.

The cards that have been played thus far are the various lines of demarcation between the two armies of occupation plus the Russian diplomatic advance into the Baltic states.

Now it is interesting and probably significant that, since the Russian mobilization, three different lines of demarcation have been announced. The first was announced in Moscow. It did not bring the Russians as far west as either of the later lines. The second brought the Russians to the suburbs of Warsaw, and within easy reach of the German military base in East Prussia. The third line, which was announced after the second visit of Ribbentrop to Moscow, moves the Russians back a considerable distance.

A careful study of the difference between the second and the third lines will disclose, I believe, that the Russians have adopted, at least provisionally, as their frontier in Poland the so-called Curzon line of 1919, that is to say the line which the British experts at the peace conference thought was the proper frontier of Poland.

The territory that the Russians are occupying was not assigned to Poland in the Versailles settlement; it is territory conquered by the Poles some years after the peace conference.

It is territory inhabited by White Russians and Ukrainians, members of the Greek Orthodox church, with only a minority of Roman Catholic Poles. This would seem to signify that Stalin has chosen to share in the partition of the Polish state but not in a partition of the Polish nation, and that he has been careful to arrange matters so that the Polish problem will remain a question between Hitler, the Allies and the Polish people.

If we study the northern and southern ends of the present Russo-German line, it seems highly probable that at the two ends the frontier is provisional. This is the opinion of John F. Waterman, expressed in a letter to The New York Times this week, and Mr. Waterman, who is clearly a student of the region, makes out a very plausible case that in the North, toward Lithuania and Latvia, and in the South in Eastern Galicia, Stalin has advanced beyond his permanent frontier, and is occupying more territory than he means to keep.

For as Mr. Waterman argues, neither North nor in the South is the frontier as now drawn strategically secure. In the North, it places Russia in a position to strike at East Prussia; in the South, it places Russia in a salient which would be a military trap for the Russian army.

The chances are, therefore, that Hitler has provisionally agreed to the bad military frontier on the North as a pledge that he will not interfere with Stalin while Russia is establishing herself in Estonia, Latvia, and Finland, as a naval power in the Baltic; and that he has agreed to the provisional occupation of Eastern Galicia (since he cannot help himself at the moment while he has a war in the West) as a screen behind which Stalin can establish himself in Rumania and bar German access to the Black Sea. When that has been done, Stalin will presumably withdraw from the East Galician salient.

On the basis of this analysis, we are perhaps entitled to speculate a little further. We may ask, for example, what is the probable attitude of Stalin toward Hitler on the one hand and toward the Allies on the other.

As regards Hitler, it is evident that Stalin has used the war to establish the best military frontier that Russia has ever had. The frontier of 1914, which included Poland, was indefensible by the Russians as it proved again to be by the Poles. The Russian frontier before the present war was open to a German invasion both through the Baltic states toward Leningrad and through the Polish Ukraine into the Russian Ukraine. The new frontier is the only good military frontier in that part of the world.

Having achieved that frontier, it is clearly Stalin's interest that Hitler should not be so victorious that he can turn on Russia and resume the great ambitions described in "Mein Kampf." Stalin can have no doubt that "the crusade against Bolshevism" can be resumed as easily as it was abandoned.

On the other hand, it would seem also to be Stalin's interest that France and Great Britain should not be able ever again to reconstruct the post-war Poland and Rumania, that Italy should not recover any important sphere of influence in Central Europe, and the Balkans, that Great Britain should not have a position in Turkey which makes her a naval Power in the Black Sea.

We may guess, therefore, that Stalin will wish Hitler to survive but not that Hitler should crush the Allies, and that he will wish the Allies to weaken Hitler but not so much that Hitler is overthrown by a German conservative counter-revolution. Stalin must fear a victorious Hitler; he must also fear a new Germany which returned to the Western World and withstood the advance of Bolshevism.

If this is Stalin's policy, it is very awkward indeed, both for Hitler and for the Allies. It means that Hitler has lost to Stalin the great design of his life, the establishment of a German empire in the East. The "German living space," which seemed within Hitler's grasp after Munich, is largely closed to him by the Russian advance into Europe.

Moreover the bargain with Stalin has deprived Hitler of his chief diplomatic instrument in the Western World, namely the claim that he is the great champion against Communism. One has only to observe the attitude of Nationalist Spain, Fascist Italy and of the Vatican to see what Hitler has lost and how he has become morally isolated.

Nevertheless, though Hitler has suffered a political disaster in the East, the bulk of his army is available against the Western Allies and the blockade is only partially effective. That is awkward for the Allies. For the only way in which Hitler can now expand is toward the west, at the expense of the Allies, and the colonial demands which he put forward in his speech therefore take on a new significance.

Once, when his eyes were on the Ukraine, the colonies were perhaps bargaining points. Now, with the door closed to his empire in Eastern Europe, an overseas empire is the only empire he can contemplate.

For while Hitler argued in his speech that if he were allowed to be a lion in the East, he would be a lamb in the West, the fact is that he has surrendered his chance to be a lion in the East. So if he is going to be a lion at all, it will have to be at the immediate expense of the British and French, once they have accepted his suggestion that they return the colonies and then agree to disarmament.

For the fourteenth year the orchestra will be directed by Benjamin L. Rader. Many of the musicians are members of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra.

A concert beginning at 7:30 o'clock, when the doors for guests holding floor tickets open, will precede the coronation ceremonies at 8:40 o'clock. From that time until the ceremonies end at 10:25 o'clock the orchestra will provide incidental music for the entrance of the Veiled Prophet, the promenade of the ladies and maids of honor and the other traditional portions of the pageantry.

Dancing following the ceremonies will be to the music of a second orchestra. Between dances, the symphonic group will continue to provide a musical setting.

The promenade of the maids of honor will be to "Polonaise Militaire," by Chopin; and "Festival March" from Wick's "Norwegian Sketches."

Drumm's "Hail America" will be played for the arrival of Miss Laura Hale Rand, retiring Queen of Love and Beauty. The masked and costumed Krewe will appear to the accompaniment of a "Gay Nineties Medley" arranged by Rader and Gesner.

The Queen's Music.

As it has each year, the "Aida" march by Verdi will signal the entrance of the Veiled Prophet himself. The four special maids of honor will be greeted by "Melody," by Dawes; the Valse from Gounod's "Faust"; "Melodie," by Tschaikowsky, and "Reverie du Soir," Saint-Saens. For the entrance of the new Queen, whose identity will not be revealed until that night, the music will be Gounod's "La Reine de Saba" and Debussy's "Clair de Lune."

The promenade of the Veiled Prophet and his Queen, ending the ceremonies, will be to Elgar's "Pomp and Circumstance," Ivanow's "Procession of the Sadar" and Roth's "March Olympian."

The annual Veiled Prophet parade will be held for the sixtieth time tomorrow night. The procession will begin at Laclede and Rankin avenues at 7 o'clock, follow a seven and one-half mile route through central and downtown St. Louis and return to the starting place at 9:50 o'clock.

In the event of rain tomorrow night, the parade will be postponed to Thursday night, with the same time schedule and route.

The theme of this year's parade is the "Gay Nineties," and the 20 illuminated floats will depict scenes familiar in St. Louis in that period. Horse-drawn fire engines, the first uncertain automobiles and even the ceremony of the Saturday night bath will be among the subjects of the floats.

ROOSEVELT CHURCH GETS BIBLE FROM BRITISH MONARCH

President Put on Committee to Draft Resolution Thanking King George.

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Oct. 9 (AP).—Senior Warden Franklin D. Roosevelt of St. James' Episcopal Church presided yesterday over a special vestry meeting, called to discuss the gift of a Bible from the King of England. King George and Queen Elizabeth worshipped at the small, ivy-covered church with the President and Mrs. Roosevelt last June 11.

The Bible, a King James version, is bound in black morocco and has gold edging on the leaves. It is about 10 by 12 inches.

Roosevelt brought it to Hyde Park on a visit two weeks ago, but it now is in Washington, where the Library of Congress is making a glass-covered display case for it. It will be placed on view when Roosevelt next, returns to this village, perhaps in two weeks.

The President did not arrive at church in time for morning worship and drove back to his country home after the vestry meeting to spend the Sabbath quietly.

Roosevelt and a neighbor, Gerald Morgan, a vestryman of the church, were put on a committee to draw up a resolution of acceptance and thanks to be sent to the British King and Queen.

SACHA GUITRY FILM OF USUAL WITTY TYPE

"Champs-Elysees" Relates French History Since 1617, With Author in Five Roles.

THE French film, "Champs-Elysees," which will be at the S'Renco Art Theater, 3143 Olive street, for four more nights, is another of those droll exhibitions of talent for which Sacha Guitry, the Noel Coward or Orson Welles of France, as you choose, is famous.

A review of French history since 1617, along the celebrated Parisian boulevard of the title, the screen play not only was written and directed by Guitry but he also plays five parts and narrates the entire affair. That he is one of the cleverest artists in the theater will not be denied and "Champs-Elysees" will be insufficient only for those who do not delight in M. Guitry.

The drama opens with a French schoolmaster, an illegitimate royalist, telling his pupils the story of the Champs-Elysees and along with that, sketching his own ancestry back to Louis XV and one of that monarch's numerous paramours. A similarly illegitimate line on the other side of the house makes the schoolmaster a descendant of Napoleon. Since Guitry portrays the pedagogue, he also can use the same face for Louis XV, Louis' son, Ludovic; Ludovic's son and Napoleon III.

Characteristically, the French author-director-actor makes such comments as "France is herself again—people telling other people to work hard" and his Gallic attitude is everywhere displayed. Mastery is to be observed in his economical compressing of history and the new insights he gives into familiar happenings.

A sequence relating to Louis XVI and Marie Antoinette bears a surprising parallel to scenes in the "Marie Antoinette" of Norma Shearer and Robert Morley, which probably means that studios in both Hollywood and Joinville are careful of their French revolution, rather than that one picture-maker saw the other's picture. Especially winning is a sequence devoted to Richard Wagner. It shows Wagner's bad habit of playing his own, unknown compositions while conducting the orchestra at a gay Paris restaurant.

Since the S'Renco Theater shows only one feature, its program is completed with a color short subject on the Republic of Panama.

JAPANESE DENY THEIR DRIVE ON CHANGSHA FAILED

Army Spokesman Says Aim of Dealing Crushing Blow to Chinese Forces Was Achieved.

TROOPS BACK WHERE THEY STARTED FROM

Campaign Intended to Forestall Enemy Offensive Officer Says — Destruction of 10 Divisions Claimed.

SHANGHAI, Oct. 9 (AP). — A Japanese Army spokesman acknowledged today that Japanese forces in Central China had returned to positions they occupied when they started a drive on Changsha on Sept. 15.

Chinese continued to call the Japanese withdrawal a sweeping victory for their forces, but a Japanese spokesman said the invaders had achieved their objective "brilliantly" and 60,000 Chinese had been killed.

In giving for the first time the Japanese account of the purpose of the operations, the spokesman said the Japanese learned the Chinese planned an October offensive, whereupon the Japanese decided to attack, with the design of forestalling the Chinese attempt and preventing the enemy from maintaining any effective forces in the Changsha area.

He added that the objective of the offensive was not the capture of Changsha and other territory, but to deal a crushing blow to the Chinese. He asserted that was accomplished with the destruction of 10 of the 40 enemy divisions encountered.

At Tokyo an official announcement reported 28,650 Chinese had been killed and 2640 captured during recent fighting in Hunan Province. Japanese casualties were listed as 545 dead and 1994 wounded.

Chinese Report Routing Enemy, Celebrate Victory.

HONGKONG, Oct. 9 (AP).—Chinese said today their forces were driving Japanese remnants toward the Hunan-Hupeh provincial border, the starting point of a Japanese campaign against Changsha.

Dispatches from Changsha said the people were celebrating what they considered a major Chinese victory with mass meetings and the publication of congratulatory messages.

At Chungking, Gen. Chiang Kai-shek was said to have ordered distribution of a cash award equivalent to about $12,000 to the personnel of the North Hunan army. An undisclosed additional amount was announced also by a private group as a "comfort" donation.

Japanese forces were reported to have occupied Shekki, Pearl River delta city, after a two-day intensive air attack.

It is the center of Kwangtung Province's model Chunghsan district, from which come many overseas Chinese, particularly those in Hawaii and the United States.

The reported seizure took place after repeated Japanese sorties in the last six months had been beaten off by the Chungshan militia directed by District Magistrate Chang Hui-chang, one time Chinese Air Force chief and later Minister to Cuba.

Dispatches said the Japanese landed under the guns of warships, and that their forces included several units of Chinese mercenaries from North China. The troops quickly overpowered the lightly armed Shekki militiament, the reports said.

Chiang Kai-shek Takes Over Szechuen Administration.

CHENGTU, China, Oct. 9 (AP).—Gen. Chiang Kai-shek assumed yesterday the chairmanship of Szechuen provincial administration.

His action was seen as the final step in liquidation of a delicate domestic political situation arising from the Central Chinese Government's assumption of military and financial control in the province formerly under the virtual autonomous authority of regional warlords.

The Chinese capital was established in Chungking after the death of War Lord Liu Hsiang more than a year and a half ago, giving the Central Government undisputed sway over Eastern Szechuen. Lesser Generals, however, stubbornly resisted what they considered Chiang Kai-shek's encroachment on their private political preserves to the west.

15,000 Chinese Refugees Enter Portuguese Colony of Macao.

MACAO, Oct. 9 (AP).—More than 15,000 Chinese civilian refugees poured into this Portuguese colony today following the Japanese capture of Shekki, Pearl River delta city 25 miles north of here.

Refugees reported the Japanese were extending their control over Kwangtung's Chungshan district after the fall of Shekki, despite the resistance of homeguards led by District Magistrate Chang Hui-chang.

Back From England

MR. AND MRS. FREDERICK C. STERNBERG.

ST. LOUISANS RETURN TO U. S. WHEN WAR CUTS TRIP SHORT

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick C. Sternberg Had to Abandon Tour Because of Gasoline Rationing.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick C. Sternberg 5707 McPherson avenue, have returned to the United States after a motor trip through England and Scotland which was cut short when England went to war and rationed gasoline to 10 gallons a month for each automobile.

Sternberg, a graduate of St. Louis School of Fine Arts, Washington University, last May won the James Harrison Steedman memorial fellowship in architecture, providing $1500 for study and travel in Europe for a year. He sailed last August with his wife, the former Miss Frances Scudder of St. Louis. After visiting relatives in Scotland they motored through England until given gasoline ration cards.

Originally Sternberg had planned to motor on the continent, studying airport and railroad depot design. He has written his mother, Mrs. Frederick J. Sternberg, 4461 Olive street, that because of the war he was not allowed to photograph buildings. They had planned to remain in Europe until next June. They are in New York, where they arrived last Tuesday on the American Importer, and are expected home next week.

LORD STAMP ADVISING BRITAIN ON ECONOMIC POLICY IN WAR

Chamberlain Discloses Connection With Government; Economist to Head Committee.

LONDON, Oct. 9 (AP).—Prime Minister Chamberlain disclosed in the House of Commons today that Lord Stamp, noted economist and director of the Bank of England, had been advising the Government on economic war plans.

He said Lord Stamp would be president of an inter-departmental committee co-ordinating the work of various ministers in planning the economic effort of the country.

most attentively. The idea of the possible dispatch to Moscow of some important British Government representative has not been dropped. Rather, the Government is waiting for the opportune moment, if it should come.

At the moment it hardly seems likely that Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, could absent himself for such a long journey, but Maj. Anthony Eden, Dominions Secretary, or Oliver Stanley, president of the Board of Trade, might be intrusted with a delicate mission of this nature. Such a mission may be undertaken a little later on unless another rebuff comes from the Soviets on the Rumanian front or somewhere else.

As far as Turkey is concerned, the British profess satisfaction over the way Ankara is holding up against Moscow's pressure. Reports in British hands regarding the condition of the Russian army also encourage the belief that the Soviets will not risk military adventures just now.

PEACE WORKER BEGINS SERIES OF TALKS, CONFERENCES HERE

Paul Harris, Formerly of National Council for Prevention of War, Discusses Neutrality.

Paul Harris, who for 12 years was on the staff of the National Council for Prevention of War, began a series of talks and conferences on American neutrality here today.

He met with workers of the Stay-Out-of-War Campaign at the Downtown Y. M. C. A. at two conferences today and will speak at a meeting of the Webster Groves Peace Council, at the Webster Groves City Hall, at 8 o'clock tonight.

Tomorrow Harris is to speak at a luncheon at the North Side Y. M. C. A. at noon, at a Y. M. C. A. forum at Washington University in the afternoon and at the Granite City Library at night. On Thursday he will address the Women's Association of the Union Avenue Christian Church, at the church, at 11 a. m., speak at a dinner of a Negro committee on peace at 6 o'clock and address a public meeting at Centenary Methodist Church, Sixteenth and Pine streets, at 8 o'clock. Harris' talks will be devoted largely to an explanation of the Neutrality Act. He will interrupt his St. Louis visit on Wednesday for a trip to Columbia, Mo.

IN THE WAR ZONE; STALIN'S RECORD AS LAND GRABBER

sian longing for regions bordering on the Arctic though Finnish territory—an idea about as popular with the Finns as swallowing a glass full of vinegar.

But, above all, the Russians want control of a group of islands in the Baltic (now under the Finnish flag) which many years ago achieved high standing as breeders of international trouble.

These are the famed Aaland Islands, situated half way between the western coast of Finland and the eastern coast of Sweden. They used to cause bad blood between Czarist Russia and Finland. Then they caused Swedes and Finns to make faces at each other. Now Soviet Russians and Finns are at loggerheads about them.

Finland's Progressive Towns

At present the islands are unfortified, by mutual agreement between Sweden and Finland. Stalin would love to fortify them. Will he? If anything happens to the Finns it will be too bad.

For Finland is a delightful land of thousands of islets and thousands of lakes, of magnificent forests, of patriotism and push, of clean progressive towns and pleasant people. One of its leading citizens is the world's greatest living musical composer, Jean Sibelius.

But the main reason why Americans should heatedly resent any curtailment of Finnish freedom is that Finland has a unique distinction among European nations: she pays her world war debt to the United States! On the exact date when each installment of that debt is due she sends a check to the Secretary of the Treasury at Washington. So far, for some mysterious reason, the Secretary of the Treasury has not fallen dead from astonishment when the check comes fluttering out of its envelope.

FINLAND UNEASY OVER CONFERENCE WITH THE SOVIETS

Foreign Minister Says Nation Got Invitation to Discuss Problems That Were Not Named.

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 9 (AP).—Dr. Juhu Paasikivi, Finland's heavy-set, stern-looking Minister to Sweden, was expected to carry the hopes of his freedom-loving countrymen to Moscow tonight to meet the Soviet giant, which in less than a month has absorbed part of one European republic and brought dark hours to three others.

Paasikivi, 69 years old, who helped to fix boundaries of the young Finnish republic in 1920 as chief delegate to the Russian-Finnish conference at Dorpet, will personify the determination for independence of 4,000,000 Finns.

It was said he would leave by train, accompanied by technical experts of the Finnish Foreign Office.

While Government officials insisted no demands had been received from Moscow and the invitation mentioned only "economic and political questions," many Finns were becoming uneasy.

What Russia Said.

The Finnish Foreign Minister, Eljas Erkko, reported as declining to make the trip, said in an interview with the Stockholm newspaper, Dagens Nyheter, the "only thing that happened is the Soviet Government asked if the Finnish Government was willing to exchange opinions about political and economic problems without mentioning what those problems are."

Erkko said this was "the normal procedure" and added the "Finnish Government could not but say yes."

"Finland has declared in many ways and has made it clear the country wants to stand as a neutral and does not want to be directly bound through a pact to any group of big Powers," the Foreign Minister was quoted as saying.

The Northern countries watched with interest the sturdy little republic's moves. However, there was no confirmation of reports the Helsinki Government had appealed to Sweden for diplomatic aid in anticipation of "excessive demands" from the Soviets.

Ready to Move Into Estonia.

Meanwhile, it was said here 4000 Russian soldiers were concentrated on the Estonian border, ready to march in tomorrow to man naval and air bases which Estonia recently granted the Soviets under a mutual assistance pact.

Nearly 16,000 more soldiers were scheduled to follow, and 20,000 were to go to similar bases in Latvia.

Agitation caused in northern countries by Paasikivi's impending visit was shown in an editorial in the Stockholm Svenska Dagbladet.

The newspaper said:

"Moscow's designs on Finland are followed with the greatest interest in Sweden. The nature and extent of the Soviet demands from Finland are not known, but the Moscow authorities must remember Finland is not a mere border state but a northern country whose entire history, politics and culture belong to the West. If the Soviet thinks she can treat Finland as she has the Baltic countries recently, it will arouse . . . not only Scandinavia, but also the whole civilized world, and not least of all, the United States."

U.S. GOODS IN CHINA RELEASED

Wood Oil and Embroidered Merchandise to Be Shipped to America.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9 (AP).—The Japanese Embassy announced last night stocks of American-owned wood oil in Hankow and embroidered merchandise in Swatow had been released "through the good offices of the Japanese authorities concerned in China."

The statement said American varnish manufacturers had "intimated" to the Embassy early this year a desire to have the wood oil shipped to the United States because of dwindling supply and rising prices.

Ozra Weaver Was Member of Indiana Poet's "Old Glee Club."

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 9 (AP).—One of the "boys of the Old Glee Club" of whom James Whitcomb Riley, Hoosier poet, wrote, was buried here yesterday in Crown Hill Cemetery, the poet's burial place—on Riley's eighty-sixth birthday. He was Ozra D. Weaver, 82 years old, who died Wednesday in Chicago. He formerly lived here.

Riley, who died in 1916, wrote in his "Glee Club" poem:

WASHINGTON LETTER

now about the issues on which the Republicans hope to win the election.

They have themselves to blame for the fact that the neutrality debate is now dividing the party and contributing to the country's inattention to the issues created by the New Deal. It is clear now that repeal of the embargo, barring some unforeseen event in the war, will win. The Republicans would be in better case today—and so would the country—if they had permitted repeal at the last session of Congress and got the issue out of the way.

Eventually the country will get its mind back on the home front. The war cannot continue to monopolize its interest. Meantime, the Republican candidates remain in comparative obscurity and the time within which the party must solidify itself for the campaign grows short. The meeting of the Republican National Committee to decide on the place and time of the party's nominating convention is only about three months in the future.

The leading Republican candidates? Let's see. If memory serves, they are, or were, Vandenberg, Taft and Dewey. Chance has played at least two of them, and perhaps all three, a scurvy trick.

INDIA IS DEMANDING RIGHTS AS PRICE OF WAR AID TO BRITAIN

to Nazi-ism than victory on the battlefield."

This is why Britain is confronted with one of the most momentous decisions of the present century in reaching a solution of the Indian crisis which is now coming to a head.

Until the present time the British Government's course appears to have heightened the concern of the Indians. Four months ago, members of the All-India Congress withdrew from India's legislative assembly in protest and they are now demanding whether "this is a war for democratic freedom or for empire and status quo."

The New Statesman and Nation charges that "in the present emergency the British Government has deliberately ignored Indian opinion and, without its consent, declared India a belligerent country, promulgated emergency ordinances, passed the India act amending bill and other vital measures circumscribing and limiting the powers and activities of the provincial governments." It declares that the Government has perpetrated "one of the capital mistakes in our imperial history" by assuming that "we could, without their assent, drag the Indians, as automata, after us into this war."

Now the question is clearly posed whether India will throw the might of its vast resources behind Britain in a war to defeat Hitlerism or whether it will act as a brake upon the prosecution of the war inside the empire. According to Indian sources here, during the World War India provided about 500,000 men and £165,000,000 for the British cause. India is also capable of exporting large amounts of wheat, rice, cotton, jute, oil, seeds and hides, all of which would be of tremendous aid to Britain.

For all of these reasons Britain's course in the present conflict is certain to be deeply influenced by developments in India. "Watch India" is likely to become the slogan for shrewd observers in neutral lands.

Second Victim of Rail Wreck Dies.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Oct. 9 (AP).—The toll of last Monday's collision of the Burlington Zephyr streamliner with a standing freight train rose to two yesterday with the death of Bernard A. Terhune, roadmaster, who was riding in the cab of the Zephyr engine. Olin U. Hughes, Zephyr engineer, was killed in the wreck at Napier.

$7600 RAISED HERE FOR POLISH RELIEF

Fund Given at Churches and Mass Meeting—Further Contributions Sought.

Contributions of about $7600 were made to the St. Louis Citizens' Committee for the Relief of War Sufferers in Poland yesterday at church services in Polish parishes and at a mass meeting in the Polish-American Hall, 1940 Cass avenue.

With the exception of several hundred dollars raised in the first days of the war in Europe, this is the first fund collected here for use in Poland. Contributions had been held up pending issuance of a permit by the State Department.

Other contributions will be sought this week by mail from St. Louisans of all nationalities, the committee announced. The money will be sent to Poland through the Council of Polish Organizations in Chicago, which is collecting funds from all parts of the country.

Speakers at the mass meeting, attended by about 1500 persons, were Alexander Moc, Polish consul in Chicago; Hugh C. McClelland, British consul here; Dr. Maria S. Gutowska, Polish educator and sister of the Governor of Warsaw; the Rev. M. A. Szamotulski, pastor of St. Adelbert's Church, and former Circuit Judge Max G. Baron. The chairman was Chester C. Czebrinski, an attorney, who is president of the fund-raising committee.

BELGIUM KEEPS ARMED WATCH ON ITS FRONTIER

concernedly on the road passed back and forth from country to country, stopping to chat with the guards. In one house situated between the frontier posts a little girl leaned over a window sill and sang at the top of her voice.

Although this is a strategically important military area, all homes here are occupied. Cows which grazed all through the district seemed more numerous than soldiers.

Few automobiles passed the frontier, although several bicyclists rode through without challenge.

Roads Ignore Border.

Farther south near Saint Vith, where the countryside is heavily wooded with pine and the terrain is hilly, the problem for a motorist strange to the region was to stay in Belgium without driving into Germany by mistake.

Near Shoenberg and Lommersweiler, little frontier posts on rough country roads, Belgian highways ran through German territory and German railroads into Belgium. There was ample evidence that Belgium was prepared against surprises in this area, as even little farm roads had frontier barriers and guards.

The German side at this point appeared deserted except for occasional military patrols which watched over the area, soldiers said.

Generally, Belgium appeared to be preparing to slow down any motorized advance along the frontier by obstructing and wiping out roads up to prepared lines of defense guarded by a miniature Maginot line.

Camouflaged underground forts with guns visible from the road in some areas marked the line Belgium has long prepared.

Frontier areas show advanced development of air-raid defense, with trenches and underground shelters. No evidence was seen that civilians had been taken out of these areas.

WINDSORS' CHATEAU TURNED OVER AS HOME FOR WOUNDED

Duke and Duchess to Meet Operation Costs of Caring for British Officers.

PARIS, Oct. 9 (AP).—The French Government was understood today to have approved a plan of the Duchess of Windsor to establish a convalescent home for British officers in her Riviera chateau at Cap d'Antibes.

The Windsors, it was said, will pay all expenses of equipping the home and meet operation costs, expected to amount to approximately $75,000.

The Duchess was thought to be planning to be hostess to the first group of British wounded.

On a recent trip to the Riviera she selected nurses for the home. The British army will supply physicians.

JUDGE UPHOLDS INDICTMENT CHARGING ICE CREAM TRUST

U. S. Court Rules Grand Jury Continued From July to August Term Had Right to Act.

CHICAGO, Oct. 9 (AP).—United States District Judge Philip L. Sullivan ruled today the grand jury which indicted 40 individuals and corporations for conspiracy to restrain trade in the ice cream industry was a legally constituted body.

Defense counsel had claimed the life of the jury had been illegally continued from the July term of 1938 to the September and October terms.

Judge Sullivan refused to rule on the defense contention that Congress had removed the marketing of farm products from the jurisdiction of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act, and had placed control in the hands of the Secretary of Agriculture. Judge Sullivan said this question was before the Supreme Court in the companion milk case and would be decided soon.

The court expressed willingness to hear arguments on the question of venue.

MAN WHO PORTRAYED LENIN IN RUSSIAN MOVIES DIES

Boris Schukin, 45, Who Received High Honor for Work, Victim of Heart Ailment.

MOSCOW, Oct. 9 (AP). — Boris Schukin, 45 years old, known throughout Soviet Russia for his portrayals of the role of Lenin in plays and motion pictures, died Saturday when reading in bed, apparently of a heart ailment.

Schukin played the Lenin role in "The Man With the Gun," a play which ran for several years here. He later appeared in a movie of the same name and in "Lenin in October." His characterizations were so realistic that the revolutionary leader's widow went frequently to see his performances. He was decorated with the Order of Lenin.

His body was viewed yesterday at his favorite theater.

NORMAN THOMAS WOULD HAVE ROOSEVELT TRY MEDIATION

Prerequisite Would Be That Hitler Refrain From Further Aggression.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9 (AP).—Norman Thomas, Socialist leader, asked President Roosevelt yesterday to undertake a mediation of the European war, "perhaps in conjunction with the nations of the Oslo group.

In a letter, which he read during a speech at the Forum Labor Temple, Thomas urged the President to "explore every possible road to mediation for peace."

He suggested, "the essential prerequisite which must be found for any peace is a reasonable guarantee that Hitler will refrain from further aggressions by armed force or threat of armed force."

NOW! A NEW LOAN PLAN
Pick your own monthly repayment

You can borrow from $20 to $300 without asking others to sign with you. Decide on the amount of cash you need, then choose the payment which suits your budget. You may repay in 2 to 20 months, as your income permits. Below is a table showing sample repayment schedules. Other amounts and other plans are available. Note how you may repay your loan in a very few months to keep the cost to a minimum. Note, also, what small payments can be made if you wish.

300	155.65	79.75	54.46	41.84	34.28	29.25	22.98	19.24

This table is based on prompt repayment. Larger payments can be made at any time or in advance of the due date to reduce the cost. Tardiness will increase the cost of the final payment. Payments are calculated at Household's rate of 2½% per month on unpaid balances.

WITNESS ASSERTS REDS HID BEHIND MRS. ROOSEVELT

Used Her Name to Advance Communism After Attending Tea at White House He Testifies.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9 (AP).—Kenneth Goff, who identified himself as the leader of the Young Communist League, told the Dies Committee today that leaders of the league used the name of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt to advance Communism.

Goff, whose home is Delavan, Wis., said he had heard William Hinckley, chairman of the American Youth Congress and—the witness testified—a young Communist League member, too, "boast' about having tea with Mrs. Roosevelt.

Goff said he understood the tea was at the White House and was attended by Hinckley and "five or six other communists," all of whom were Youth Congress members.

"Did this add to their prestige?" asked Chairman Dies.

"Sure," commented Goff who testified that he was on the national committee of the Young Communist League. "I was looking forward to the day when I'd have tea with her myself."

Used Letter From President.

Dies asked the witness to explain further how "these Communists impose upon the good intentions of prominent people."

Referring back to Mrs. Roosevelt and the tea, Goff said: "They'd say to prospective members, 'Why are you afraid to join the Communist party? Look at the people we associate with.'"

Goff also said that he personally had used a letter from President Roosevelt to the American Youth Congress to promote attendance at a youth meeting in Washington sponsored by the Youth Congress. The executive committee of the congress, he asserted, was "dominated" by Communists.

Previously, Goff testified that two "national board secretaries" of the Y. W. C. A. were members of the Young Communist League and had attended the national training school of the Communist party. The witness said they were Rose Troiano and Rose Terlin, both of New York.

Bore Into Youth Groups.

He named them as examples of young Communist members who, he asserted, were prominent in other organizations. Goff told the committee he was resigning from the league and the Communist party at the conclusion of his testimony because he believed they were un-American.

"A Y. C. L. worker is no good to the Y. C. L. unless he has membership in other organizations," Goff asserted. He testified that he was assigned by Y. C. L. leaders in Wisconsin to "bore into" the Townsend Pension Plan Youth Movement. He was so successful, he said, that he became State secretary of the Townsend youth group and was elected to the Townsend national convention at Cleveland in 1936.

"Beautiful Go-Getter."

Celeste Strack of New York, whom he described as the "beautiful go-getter" of the Y. C. L. also was a delegate at Cleveland.

League members, Goff testified, were elected delegates to the National Youth Congress by church groups and other organizations he described as "fronts." He said, "Bill Hinckley represented the Christ Episcopal Church of Missouri at a congress meeting."

Goff displayed to the committee what he said was his Y. C. L. membership under the name of "John Keats" and which bore several autographs. He identified one of them as that of Joseph Curran, head of the National Maritime Union (CIO).

Earlier the committee went into secret session to hear a government employe who had attended meetings of "Communist factions" among employes of several Government agencies.

Chairman Dies told reporters that committee employes had been unable to determine all that was stolen from committee files Saturday night when an intruder broke a window and ransacked the committee offices. One missing paper, the chairman asserted, was a list of espionage suspects. A similar list, he said, was on file at the Justice Department.

COTTON MARKET CLOSES 7 LOWER TO 2 HIGHER

NEW YORK, Oct. 9 (AP).—Cotton futures wobbled in late trading today, following a brisk run-up in the wake of the Government crop report at noon.

Despite the favorably interpreted crop estimate, traders seemed unwilling to get further into the market, in view of uncertainties abroad.

At the start of the last hour the list was 3 points lower to 4 higher. October was off 3 at 9.08 and July 4 higher, at 8.20.

Buying in late morning came principally from Wall street, trade interests and wire houses. October was 2 higher at 9.13 and March got up 11 at 8.68.

Gains were pared somewhat during the second hour as increased Southern hedge selling and liquidation were attracted by the advance.

The trade gave good support, however, and around midday prices held 1 to 7 points above Saturday's close. The near month was ahead a point at 9.12 and July was 7 higher at 8.23.

STOCK TRADE SLOWEST OF WAR PERIOD; MAINLY OFF

Confused Thinking Regarding European War, Possibility of Nearby Armistice Jolting Market and Neutrality Debate Cited in Slowness of List.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9 (AP).—European peace talk remained as a retarding influence on the stock market today and leading issues shifted sluggishly over a narrow route. With the ticker tape frequently at a standstill, the turnover for the five hours totaled 617,942 shares.

Sales were the smallest for a full session since the start of the war boom about six weeks ago.

Steels had their innings among the day's advancing groups as the American Iron & Steel Institute estimated this week's mill operations at 88.6 per cent of capacity, up 11 points from the previous week at the highest level since May 24, 1937. From a month ago the nation's steel production rate has jumped 11.6 points. Bethlehem shares got up more than a point at one time but, along with U. S. Steel, slipped before the close.

Scattered motors, rails, utilities, air transports and mail orders managed to tack on modest gains during the proceedings but all were not successful in holding. Fractional declines were plentiful when the final gong sounded finish to the sleepy proceedings.

Fear Foreign Developments.

With Russia stepping out with strong backing for the Nazi's armistice proposals, brokers said many of their customers inclined to stand aside or lighten commitments pending clarification of the confused picture abroad. In addition to fears that a calling off of the overseas conflict might jolt the domestic business structure, and consequently, markets, continuance of the neutrality battle in Congress was hardly calculated to stimulate sentiment.

Principal encouragement in boardrooms seemed to be derived from the fact selling was never insistent and sufficient timid buying usually was present to offset such offerings as appeared.

Among favored stocks most of the day were Bethlehem Steel, Chrysler, Western Union, N. Y. Central, Great Northern, U. S. Rubber, Sears Roebuck, Eastern Airlines, American Airlines, du Pont, American Can, Consolidated Edison, American Can, Loew's and du Pont.

Inclined to hang back were Anaconda, Phelps Dodge, Westinghouse, Union Carbide, Allied Chemical, Texas Corp. and Goodyear.

European markets were quiet and irregular. U. S. Government bonds tilted upward in the bond department. Commodities were uneven. Wheat at Chicago was off ¼ to ⅞ of a cent a bushel and corn up ½ to ⅞. Cotton, in late transactions, was unchanged to down 30 cents a bale.

News of the Day.

On the "big board" Chrysler was distorted despite a shut-down of one plant. Noted also were General Motors' figures disclosing September sales were under August but well ahead of September a year ago.

Business developments on the home front were still to the liking of financial quarters, but it was not overlooked that an Associated Press poll of the country's top-notch economists indicated many were of the opinion a sudden peace agreement abroad would at least bring a temporary slip-up in the country's industrial march.

Over-Week-End News.

The magazine "Steel" said: "Consumers generally are covered for the quarter's requirements, in some cases through early 1940. Consequently, new business had moderated, but rising consumption is reflected in pressure for delivery and heavier demands on warehouses by users unable to obtain sufficiently prompt shipments from mills."

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

NEW YORK, Oct. 9 (AP).—The British pound and French franc resumed their decline in relation to the dollar today after rather severe setback last week. Foreign exchange dealings were at a minimum, however, pending more decisive news from abroad.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—Late foreign exchange rates follow: Great Britain in dollars; others in cents. LOW-YIELD BONDS IN HIGHER PRICE RANGE

NEW YORK., Oct. 9 (AP).—The October rally in top flight bonds, which were hit by last month's war liquidation, was extended over a broad front today.

U. S. Governments took a fresh grip on leadership by moving ahead for gains of as much as 26-32ds of a point. Most Federals were close to their highs near the start of final hour.

Low-yield corporate issues up fractions to a point included Santa Fe 4s of '95, Bethlehem Steel 3⅛s, Commonwealth Edison 3½s, Pacific Telephone 3¼s of '66 (B), and Standard Oil of New Jersey 2¾s.

Other corporate groups were mixed. Rails veered toward improvement after an early moderate sell-off. Gainers included Southern Pacific 4½s of '68, Baltimore & Ohio convertible 4½s, and Erie 5s of '75.

Irregular price movements also marked the foreign list. Australian and Italian issues gained fractions to 1½ points. Norway Municipal Bank dropped 11 on small transactions. Denmark 5½s retreated about 1½.

The market coasted through the final hour close to earlier levels.

Trimmed a bit by the finish were Great Northern 4s of 1946 G at 106, New York Central 5s at 67½ and Alleghany stamped

On April 10, 1902, the St. Louis Trust Company adopted its present name, the St. Louis Union Trust Company.

1889-1939

In 1889, St. Louis had a population of 451,000, approximately half of its present population. It had just abandoned mule drawn street cars for cable cars and electric cars. Grand Avenue was generally the western terminus of the car lines, and west of Kingshighway was open country. The Merchants Bridge, the second bridge over the Mississippi, was being constructed. Work on the Union Station was not to begin until two years later. The St. Louis Browns, league champions from 1885 to 1888, lost to Brooklyn in 1889. John L. Sullivan, heavyweight boxing champion of the world, successfully defended his championship by a knockout over Jake Kilrain in the 75th round at New Orleans. E. A. Noonan was Mayor of St. Louis, David R. Francis, Governor of Missouri, and Benjamin Harrison, President of the United States.

The total annual expenditures of the Federal Government in 1889 amounted to only $279,000,000 or enough to last the government a week today. Tax collections totaled $375,000,000. There were no income taxes, estate taxes or inheritance taxes. The budget was balanced and the government operated at a comfortable surplus of $96,000,000 as compared with annual deficits running into billions of dollars today.

TRUST SERVICE EXCLUSIVELY

In its early years, this company conducted both a trust and a banking business. At first, the trust department was practically a one-man department. As time went on, and the business grew, the management of the company became convinced of the wisdom of separating the banking business from the trust business and conducting each as a separate business. This conviction bore fruit on January 2, 1915, when the St. Louis Union Trust Company organized a wholly owned subsidiary known as the St. Louis Union Bank and transferred its banking business to it. Since that date, the St. Louis Union Trust Company has conducted a trust business exclusively, although as an investor it continues to retain a substantial interest in the banking business. It no longer owns a banking subsidiary but in its place owns a substantial interest in the stock of the First National Bank.

OLD IN EXPERIENCE— MODERN IN METHODS

Time has brought many changes to the St. Louis Union Trust Company and to the trust business. Its one-man trust department of fifty years ago has now grown to an organization of 249 officers and employees engaged in trust service exclusively. Its initial paid in capital of $750,000 has increased to its present capital and surplus of $10,000,000. It has administered many thousands of estates and trusts. A vast amount of property has passed through its hands. Its trust business exceeds that of any other St. Louis institution It is old in experience—modern in methods. It looks back upon a record of useful service to the many individuals whose funds it has safeguarded. It begins its second half century looking forward to a future of even greater service to the citizens of St. Louis and its surrounding territory.

Case Records of a PSYCHOLOGIST

By Dr. George W. Crane

Of Northwestern University

CASE N-144: Ruth E., aged 27, has been married for six years.

"I simply dread leaving my home anymore," she began our interview. "The thought of going only a block away from the house literally terrifies me.

"At night I lie awake for hours making sure that I shall not choke for I feel as if I cannot get my breath. Then I worry about insanity, too.

"This all started when I visited the undertaking parlors at the funeral of my husband's mother. Now I wish I hadn't gone there at all, for that is when my trouble all began. She was a good soul, though, and I felt I ought to attend the funeral service. Dr. Crane, I'm afraid I am going to die, although my family doctor says there is nothing wrong with my heart or my lungs."

—O—O—

DIAGNOISIS: And Ruth's doctor was quite right. Her trouble is a heart neurosis. You will observe that the three things she mentioned in her story to me are all dramatic events: choking, heart attack and insanity.

These are the conventional punishments expected when we think we have committed a sin against God. Ruth doesn't worry about diabetes or pneumonia, for the latter are not regarded as the avenues taken by Divine punishment. She fears something which may strike her down suddenly, as a bolt of lightning. Day and night she is under tension, waiting for the inevitable to happen.

She feels that she has been guilty of some unforgivable sin, so she thinks it is only a matter of time till she must pay the price.

This is such a beautiful teaching case, that I recommend it to all the schools and colleges who are employing this column for classroom use. It illustrates many ailments which resist treatment by drugs and surgery.

—O—O—

RUTH HAD BEEN brought up as a very religious girl. But she and her mother-in-law didn't harmonize very well. Ruth had to live with the old lady during the first few years of her marriage.

In her angry mood following an occasional quarrel with her mother-in-law, Ruth often had wished that the old lady were some place where she couldn't disturb Ruth's happiness any longer. She had even flirted with the idea that her marriage would be far happier if her mother-in-law were dead. This is a treasonable thought, especially in the mind of anybody who has been reared in a moral environment.

In her last quarrel, the old lady had warned Ruth that "You'll be sorry you've treated me like this." Within a few days a heart attack had taken the mother-in-law off the scene. Then Ruth felt sure her sinful wish had been strikingly fulfilled so she has been waiting for God to punish her, too.

On Broadway -:- By Walter Winchell

ONE DAY LAST WEEK, the heir to a famously known wealthy family hustled into the elevator of his building. His eye caught a sign which read: "Due to the building of the new subway, the telephone cables had to be cut. Telephone service will be restored soon."

The pompous youth, who spends more time giving orders, to which few people pay any attention, stormed: "Good heavens! What shall I ever do without my telephone?" The elevator man couldn't resist it. He turned and said: "Your great-grandfather did all right without one."

—O—O—

S. J. KAUFMAN was talking with newspaper men about punctuation. Kaufman said: "Punctuation is merely a matter of breathing." A Times man said: "Punctuation is the mechanical method of showing how the line would, could and should be spoken." A City News reporter said: "A dash is the substitute—employed—by people—who—can—not—punctuate."

—O—O—

ALEXANDER WOOLLCOTT once counseled a newcomer to letters with this: "You are trying to become important too hurriedly. Your articles appear in too many publications the same month. You can't be that good. Readers will see your name over a piece and say: 'Oh, that fellow. He's becoming a bore!'"

And then Woollcott opened a biography of Napoleon in which the historian quoted The Little Corporal as confessing: "I went to the opera last night for the first time in a year. I wasn't noticed. I won't go there so often."

Consideration :-: By Emily Post

DEAR MRS. POST: My wife was married before—and we have been married for only about a year. And in that time, she has asked her first husband to our house to dinner four times—and I don't think this is fair to me. Not only that, but I feel sure it will make people talk. I hesitate saying anything to her about it—and yet since I do feel this way, perhaps I should ask her not to invite him. What do you think?

Answer: I think that the answer is that of your own attitude. The fact that seeing her first husband offends your sensibilities, makes you unhappy and spoils your home should make it plain to her that she must not ask him.

Dear Mrs. Post: My flat silver was bought a few years before I married, and is marked with an "S" for my maiden initial. Would it be possible for me to have it changed or made into a monogram to include my present initials "DSR"? And will you please tell me where and how my larger pieces of silver, such as butter plates, platters, vegetable dishes, should be marked? And now that I am married, I would prefer to use my married initial. How much do you suppose it would cost?

Answer: The best thing to do is to take a piece of your marked silver to a firm of jewelers (or silversmiths) and have them submit suggestions for a design combining your other two initials with the S. Any profesisonal designer should be able to make a monogram that you like, and at the same time tell you what this marking will cost.

Dear Mrs. Post: When two women are accompanied by a man to a wedding in a church, how should they be seated?

Answer: As a rule a man sits on the aisle seat, but at a wedding the aisle seat is so much the best that most often the two women sit nearest the aisle, and the man the third seat in.

Don't Take My Word for It By Frank Colby

PROPAGANDA—Noun. The organized spreading of doctrines or ideas.

Do not say "proe-pa-gan-da."

The use of the long "o," as in toe, in the first syllable of propaganda, process and progress is a Briticism; that is to say, quite correct on the other side of the Atlantic, but not current or sanctioned for United States use.

(Note: Propaganda is not the plural of propagandum. The latter word is sometimes used as a singular form, but it has no dictionary support.)

When cautioning its readers against the use of Briticisms, this column must explain that it has no quarrel with British peculiarities of speech when they are voiced naturally and natively by Britains. On the other hand, the parroting of English accents by North Americans (especially of the radio and screen) is wearying to these and many other millions of plain United States ears.

(Incidentally, the long "o" in process ("proe-cess") is not the first choice of the Oxford Dictionary, English Edition. The first choice of that weighty lexicon is the short "o," as in prosperity.)

Be sure to use the short "o" (ah) in the first syllable of propaganda. Accent the first and third syllables.

Correct propunciation: PRAH-puh-GAN-duh.

(Capitals indicate syllables to be accented.)

Send your questions about words, with a stamped (3-cent) self-addressed envelope, to Frank Colby, in care of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

BELIEVE IT OR NOT By Ripley

A three-story house, including basement, was built in less than 24 hours (August 12 to August 13, 1913). The building site was in what was then known as Britannia Park, in Hamilton, Ontario. The house was later sold and moved to a lot several blocks away, where it now stands. The house was built as an attraction for the Hamilton Centennial Celebration in 1913.

Teething Age Dangers Are Exaggerated

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

MOTHERS have instilled in their minds the idea that there is a so-called teething age for babies. This goes with a belief that the erupting of teeth is the cause of many baby ailments.

Fifty years or more ago the doctors turned over the care of the baby from the time it was born to the grandmother or some female in the neighborhood who had a reputation for being good with babies. These excellent ladies were efficacious but not very scientific, and the teething age idea was one of their most cherished beliefs.

The interest in children from the medical standpoint is of quite recent development. The first book on diseases of children which had any scientific standing was published during the present century. Interest in children and all their problems has grown rapidly ever since.

We know, in consequence of this knowledge, far more about the teething age than we used to. We know that it is not dangerous, and that it causes the child little discomfort. The important thing is to see that the child's nutrition is cared for during the eruption of teeth.

A digestive upset, such as vomiting or diarrhea, and other things, such as fever and convulsions, when they happen to occur during the teething age, are ascribed to this phenomenon of the erupting of teeth.

Do not then sooth yourself with the idea that during the teething age everything that the baby may have the matter with it is due to teething entirely. The baby that has a fever during the period of the erupting of teeth may be having measles or diphtheria. So have a careful and thorough examination made of the baby who is sick during the teething age, just the same as at any other time.

The teeth begin to erupt between the fifth and seventh months; at the age of 2½ the first set should have all appeared. The corresponding teeth of the two sides of the jaw erupt at the same time. The two center teeth in the lower jaw appear at the age of 6 or 7 months; the two upper teeth at about the fifth to eighth month, and the lateral teeth from the seventh to the tenth month.

This order, however, is not invariably followed, for teeth may prematurely erupt so that they are even seen at birth. But cases of retarded eruption are much more common than those of premature eruption due to weakness, debility or disease.

During the eruption of the teeth the entire face and head change. There is a gradual elongation and prolongation of the teeth, and a consequent adjustment of the bony structures which hold them.

Temptations -:- By Elsie Robinson

HAVE the youngsters of today more temptations than those of 1910? Did modern young America copyright "the Youth Problem" or was it doing a brisk business at the same old stand when Pop and Mom were kids?

And who's to blame if Junior or Sis go wrong today . . . the youngsters themselves . . . or the parents who failed to train them?

It's Elaine Hitchcock, a young mother of Sierra Madre, Cal., asking and giving plenty of brisk answers as well. It's frank talking on a subject which needs frankness. And many of the Bright Young People who like to dish it out will find it hard to take. But, though I don't agree with all of it, I'm thinking it's the medicine they're needing.

"I'm fed up," says Elaine, "with all this youth problem talk. What makes you young people think you're so all-fired different in that respect from us of the last generation? Because of more opportunity—liquor, cars, movies? We younger parents of today had all of these and knew all the temptations that went with them. Our cars may not have had as much speed, but we did and we could find plenty of excitement.

"But we ourselves were different. We were decent and wanted to stay decent. There have always been good youngsters and bad ones, and it has always been up to the good ones to draw the line between the brands. All that is needed is a little will power.

"Listen to me, young America! Stop putting all the blame on us parents. We do our best to make you decent people. If we have made mistakes—as many of us have—it is because we have given you too much freedom. You boast of your ability to take care of yourselves. Then when we give you your freedom, what happens? You marry the first tramp that comes along. Or you marry some fine fellow or girl who is too 'dull' for you and you rush headlong into divorce. You come back to homes which have been already depleted by your extravagance and you dump your bills in our laps . . . or your broken lives. And then you cry.

"But you just didn't want to exercise self-control. You had to have your cake and eat it, too. And now you complain! Where is your much boasted sportsmanship!"

A grand letter, and I'm the first to applaud it, my dear! Nevertheless, I think you've overlooked some factors in modern life which make it mighty hard sledding for many a youngster. This depression has bred a spirit of recklessness that previous generations did not know, even your own. It has caused loneliness, too; homelessness, an aimless drifting that is worse than anything in our American experience. These aren't theories; they're tragic facts. It's never easy for warm-blooded youth to be good. But it's a lot easier with a home behind one, loving arms and trusting hearts as against the heart-searing dreariness of a hall bedroom on a strange street. You've known the bright side, Elaine—you and all your kind. Be tolerant to those who haven't!

"Several people have asked me to explain the part the Russians are playing in their alliance with Germany, and whether or not this is a sinister role or a sincere attempt of two great Powers to move together in different directions toward a common ideal. If so, what is their ultimate goal and why?

Well, friends, the Russians are naturally mad because England was suspicious of Russia and therefore Molotov reasoned that it was better to occupy a zone reaching roughly from Mnbvoxslkj on the north and down along the Bug River to Wertyuiopasdfghj. One glance at the map shows the neutral Russians were really backing up the Poles and ready to prod them with bayonets if necessary.

"To have failed to stab the Poles in the back in their hour of adversity would have merely prolonged the agony for the masses of Poland. I hope this answers the question.

Defenders Are Very Helpful To Declarer

East Fails to Overtake Opening Lead, Aiding South's Play.

By Ely Culbertson

"DEAR MR. CULBERTSON: I am inclosing a hand which I think you might like, one in which I made a very unusual throw-in play.

"North, dealer.

"Neither side vulnerable.

	♠9743 ♥K87 ♦J85 ♣J32
♠Q2 ♥43 ♦A109762 ♣987	NORTH WEST EAST SOUTH	♠AKJ865 ♥62 ♦K ♣K1065
	♠10 ♥AQJ1095 ♦Q43 ♣AQ4

"The bidding:

North	East	South	West
Pass	1 spade	2 hearts	3 diamonds
Pass	3 spades	4 hearts	Pass
Pass	Pass

"I don't claim that the bidding was very good. It happened in a 'social game' and there was nothing at stake. The play, however, was very interesting.

"West led the spade queen. It is worth noting that if East had overtaken and cashed the diamond king there would have been no play for the contract. East, however, encouraged with the spade eight and West continued with the deuce. This marked West with only two spades originally and East with six. I ruffed the second lead with the nine of hearts, overtook the heart five with dummy's seven, ruffed a third round of spades, overtook the heart ten with dummy's king, and ruffed the last spade. I saw that the only chance to make the hand was for East to have the ace or king of diamonds singleton, and, therefore, I led a small diamond. West played the nine but I ducked in dummy and, to my great pleasure, East had to win with the king. His return was immaterial: If he had chosen to lead a spade, I could have chucked my club four while ruffing in dummy, then taken the club finesse, after which I would have had to concede only one diamond trick. On East's actual choice of a low club, I won in dummy with the jack, finessed again on a return club lead, and conceded only one more diamond. As you will see, I lost in all only one spade trick and two diamonds.

J. B., Alabama."

Somebody always is stealing my thunder when I want to comment on questionable bidding. The mere fact that my correspondent said, "I won't claim that the bidding was very good," deprives me of the legitimate joy of mentioning that he did considerable bidding all by himself.

While declarer's play was excellent and took full advantage of a fortunate lay of cards, this is just one more of those instances in which most of the "credit" for the fulfilled contract must be given to the defenders. I do not maintain that East could have foreseen the situation that eventually developed, but I do say that there was no excuse for his failure to overtake the opening lead and lay down the diamond king. For all he could tell, the spade queen might be singleton, in which case the overtake play would certainly work out to the best advantage, inasmuch as West could not be expected to underlead his probable diamond ace at the second trick. There would be no danger of the overtake play setting up the spade nine, since East always could keep his J-8 over the 9-7, if he felt so inclined.

To return to declarer's play: His analysis that success depended entirely on finding a singleton diamond king or ace in the East hand was quite correct. Also, in view of the bidding, this was by no means a remote chance, considering that West, who had bid three diamonds, evidently did not hold both the ace and king, since he probably would have opened the suit originally.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

by WYNN

For Tuesday, Oct. 10.

MORNING and afternoon today look favorable for judging new values that have appeared lately. But nix the long distance decision: too much self-pity in the frame. Lie low in late afternoon and evening; be sociable and relax.

Our Background.

The four most slowly moving planets, Neptune, Uranus, Saturn and Jupiter, which have been mentioned as to zodiacal position in the past few days, are the background of the big cycles against which we play the smaller affairs of our lives. Each of them is influencing us in some way all the time, though some of their vibrations recede occasionally, only to come to the surface later.

Your Year Ahead.

Your year ahead is one of reaping both good and otherwise earned through other folks in recent past: be responsible, not pessimistic. Care with law and estate. Danger: June 10-22, and Oct. 22-Nov. 11, 1940.

Diet Martyrs :-: By Jean Z. Owen

This is the sixteenth of a series of articles from Jean Z. Owen's book, "It's More Fun to Be Thin."

WE DON'T like them very well—these self-analytical people who can't have a single honest emotion without reaching for a psychology book to see why they felt that way, but for the present we shall indulge in a bit of psychological introspection.

You want to reduce. You have made up your mind that you are going to reduce. What's more, you have reduced—you weigh two and three-quarters of a pound less than you did a week ago last Wednesday, and you can prove it.

What's back of this self-imposed martyrdom, this desire to lighten your own physical cargo?

"I'd feel better."

"It's too hard to get clothes to fit me."

"It's expensive, being fat."

"I don't have the pep I used to have."

"My blood pressure—"

All of the answers are true, only we-who-are-or-have-been-fat know how very true they are, but we haven't opened the oyster with the pearl yet. We'll lay the odds 20 to 1 that unless you have hardening of the arteries or other assorted symptoms of senility, the real reason you want to reduce is because you want the respect and admiration of those around you.

More specifically, there probably is a man back of the whole thing. Cherchez l'homme is a little phrase that dovetails with 90 per cent of all female reducing programs. If you are married or engaged you want to hold your man; if you don't have a man, you want to get one. In short, they have you coming and going.

In light of these facts it is almost pathetic to note how many women defeat their own purpose. They may win back their girlish figures, to be sure, but in doing so they very often lose the admiration they covet. They are smart enough to diet, but they aren't smart enough to keep their diets to themselves.

For the benefit of those who are attempting to lose weight, we have prepared a list of rules compiled from the major complaints of husbands and boy-friends.

How to Control Your Weight Without Becoming a Public Enemy.

1. Don't act like a martyr. After all, no one is making you diet, and we can't resist mentioning the fact that it's your own fault that you are fat.

If you persist in sitting at the table with the look of a dying-dog-in-the-last-throes-of-starvation, you are going to ruin the meal for everyone else at the table. And what, may we ask, does that profit you?

2. Don't talk about your diet. It is the most thrilling subject in the world to you, in comparison to which the European War situation and your neighbor's immorality fade into insignificance. Even the most reticent woman finds it well-nigh impossible not to hold a verbal post-mortem over every pound that is lost.

Don't do it. People may listen just to be polite, but if you insist on making your diet the pivot of every conversation, it won't be long before even your best friend will wish to high heaven you'd stay fat and shut up.

Above all, avoid saying, "John, don't you think I'm losing weight?" or "Guess how much I've lost this week!" or "Look at this dress, Mary! See how loose it's getting!" and "My clothes are just hanging on me, my dear; I have to take the seams in every week!"

There are just two ways of finding out if you are losing weight. Get out the tapemeasure or stand on the scales. The latter method—and the most accurate—costs you a penny at the very most. You'll get a more honest answer than the ones your family or friends will give you, and you won't be boring anyone.

3. Don't take your diet out in public. The really smart woman never lets anyone know that she is trying to lose weight. If you are invited out to a great many parties and dinners, eat as little of the fattening foods as possible without appearing rude. There is nothing quite so disheartening to a hostess as to have a guest scorn food that has taken hours to prepare, but if you don't talk about it, the chances are very slight that anyone will even notice that you aren't eating your share of the rolls and butter and whipped cream.

4. Don't feed "diet food" to your family. You may be all steamed up over this business of dieting and you begin to view your family's figures with a loving, but critical eye. You decide that it wouldn't hurt Junior to lose a few pounds, and it's really disgraceful the way your husband ignores his rapidly increasing girth. They ought to diet with you, you are convinced. Besides, you don't feel like cooking two sets of meals and they might just as well eat the same things you do. When that happens, it's just a matter of weeks until you find yourself sitting down to a dish in solitary dissatisfaction.

You wail, "But you said not to spend so much time in the kitchen!"

DINNER MENU

Cream of Tomato Soup
Toasted Crackers Olives and Celery
Roast Prime Ribs of Beef Brown Gravy
Mashed Potatoes
Stewed Turnips
Hot Rolls Butter
Baked Apples Whipped Cream
Macaroons
Coffee

Now, there's a menu calculated to gladden the heart of any gourmet. We shall take the pin feathers out of it and see what you can eat without breaking training rules.

Start with the soup. Excellent brands can be purchased in cans, so we shall start with condensed tomato soup. Take out half a can, add half a cup of water, heat in a small sauce pan and your soup is ready. For the family, add an equal quantity of whole milk to the remainder of the contents in the can; garnish with a whisper of butter and a swirl of unsweetened whipped cream, and serve with crackers that have been spread with butter and crisped in the oven.

Olives served piping hot in their own juice, or chilled in cracked ice make an ideal accompaniment, or one that will make your family sit up and call you blessed. But you must not eat the rich soup or the crackers or the olives—you have your water-soup to imbibe, and curls of celery to munch.

When you start to peel the potatoes, forget to peel any for yourself. It's much easier to munch a raw potato than one that is whipped up with butter and cream. If you must have your potatoes, however, remember that it will take all the starch you can have for the meal . . . and potatoes are really the easiest thing to eliminate from your diet.

You may have a small piece of roast beef, a roll with an infinitesimal smear of butter, and all the turnips you want.

Sorry, but it's "mustn't touch" on the macaroons and whipped cream. A plain baked apple is really very satisfying, though, and if 'tis without glamor. And the coffee you drink must be unbellished by cream or sugar.

There! You haven't broken your diet and your family has had a grand meal at the same sitting. If you concentrate on it you can work out a large variety of menus that enable you to lose weight without making it necessary to cook two separate sets of meals.

Let your common sense, Golden Rule, your inherent ingenuity, and the precious pearl of patience be your guide, and your diet will be easier for you and your family less for others.

IF YOU ASK My OPINION.

By MARTHA CARR

Dear Mrs. Carr:

I AM a girl 15 years old and very fond of a boy, 17. He visits me very often but he always brings a friend who is three years older than he. My mother doesn't like the idea of two boys at my house at the same time. I have given him hints to that effect but do not want to hurt his feelings. Will you tell me what to do? WANDA H.

Letters intended for this column must be addressed to Martha Carr at the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Mrs. Carr will answer all questions of general interest but, of course, cannot give advice on matters of a purely legal or medical nature. Those who do not care to have their letters published may enclose an addressed and stamped envelope for personal reply.

There is an adage to the effect that there is safety in numbers, and it should be rather flattering to you to have two boys visit you instead of just one. However, if you don't like the arrangement, suggest to the boy some night that you think you ought to invite another girl for his friend, who must get awfully tired tagging along with you. If he doesn't take hints, there's not much you can do except take the situation as is. Perhaps the boy feels that visits by himself would seem more serious than those with a friend and he does not want to commit himself. It would be much better if you did not single your attentions on one boy at your age anyway.

—O—O—

Dear Martha Carr:

I AM A BOY 17. I want to get a farm, but mother doesn't want me to get one. I just want a small farm, about five acres and 50 chickens. I don't like the city. Please give me your advice. G. L.

You don't give me your mother's reason for her disapproval, but it may be that she feels you should go to school a while longer. Certainly farming is a specialized business now and one in which you can use much training. If your mother feels farming is an unprofitable career in contrast to professions, perhaps she would let you attend one of the agricultural colleges of a university, so you could get into work allied with farming, or be better equipped.

—O—O—

Dear Mrs. Carr:

I'M A GIRL 16 years old. I have several boy friends. But my father won't let me go out with them. Mother lets me go out some times, then father raves, and of course, mother tells me about it. Father doesn't have any confidence in any boy around here. But the boys I know are nice. What can I do about it?

VERY DISAPPOINTED GIRL.

It seems to me that father doesn't have much confidence in you and perhaps you are the cause of that condition, if you go out with boys behind his back and coax your mother into taking your side. Have a long talk with your father and tell him you don't want to deceive him and you don't want to go out every night on single, grown-up dates, or go steady with any one boy, but that you would like to go to school dances and parties, and to the houses of friends, where young people gather. If you're willing to forego the more adult entertainment and make him feel that you can be trusted, he may be more reasonable. Make an agreement, anyway, of certain evenings that you can go to approved places with an approved crowd, and let the every night dating go for a while. And by the way, what about girl friends? You should have a lot of those, too, and not concentrate on boys.

—O—O—

Dear Mrs. Carr:

I AM GOING TO GIVE a scavenger hunt in about a month and am wondering if you would give me some suggestions?

A FAITHFUL READER.

If you will send me self-addressed, stamped envelope, I will be glad to mail the leaflet I have on scavenger hunt.

—O—O—

Dear Mrs. Carr:

COULD YOU PLEASE advise me where I can obtain a birth certificate? I was born in St. Louis 18 years ago. C. C. L.

You can get this from the Bureau of Vital Statistics, in the City Hall.

—O—O—

Dear Mrs. Carr:

AS I AM A CLARINET player and very fond of Artie Shaw, I would like to know where I can get a complete biography of his life that I could give in my public speaking class. MISS V.

You may be able to get this information by writing Artie Shaw in care of the National Broadcasting Co., Radio City, New York.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

PLEASE PRINT the address of Col. E. R. Bradley, race horse owner. M. H.

Neatness -:- By Angelo Patri

NEW children below the 'teen age, enjoy keeping themselves clean and their belongings in neat order. Mother has to go over the old places and the corners every morning before the start for school is made.

"Why don't you wash your ears?"

"I did."

Well, so he did, and he probably cannot see the shades of color that betray him. It is going to take time and experience and the spirit of adolescence to make him feel the comfort of cleanliness and understand its value for him.

In the meantime, boys and girls have to be taught to hang up their clothes, put them in bureau drawers, and boxes, where they belong. It is difficult to teach this to children in their teens. It has to be fought between the time the child begins to dress himself and the onset of adolescence. It is not easy to learn, but it is almost impossible later.

Hanging up night clothes, so that they hang evenly, and in the air, is easy enough to do provided there is a hanger waiting and the hook handy. If the children find the hanger and the hook within easy reach they are just as pleased to have them as not. They don't mind putting the pajamas on the hanger when it is handy, but if it is not in sight they forget it, haven't the habit of habit or desire for neatness to drive them to look for it; haven't the interest in finding it. If reaching the hook is a struggle, they will avoid it if possible. Set the stage for easy disposal of the garments and they will be put in their places. Daily experience will soon set the habit.

What are you going to do with the girl or boy, in high school, who drop their things wherever they happen to be and let them lie. One young lady of 17 did just that. Her coat lay in the hall, her sweater on the piano. Her evening dress lay over the back of a chair, one slipper under the chair, one lying against the radiator where it was kicked off the night before. The room was strewn with garments. Rising late the young lady had scrambled about for things she wanted, left the bureau drawers open, their contents spilling over. The place looked as though it had been raided.

Mother groaned. "It will take me hours to tidy this room. I simply haven't the time or energy to do this any more. I will leave the room just as it is until you arrange it as you found it. Hereafter your room has to be in order or it will not be cleaned, nor your bed made."

"All right. Just leave it. I'll do it," said the young lady blithely. But she did not reach home that afternoon until it was close to dinner time, and there were a thousand things she had to do. And the next day was no better. Nor the next. And about that time she wanted to wear that evening dress, and some fresh clothes, and she did want her room tidied. And mother would not help. She stayed home that night and cried. It was harder on mother than on her, but it had to be that way. The younger you catch them the easier the job of training.

THE EX-KAISER'S ACTIVITIES IN EXILE

The Absorbing Interest of the Former Kaiser in Military Maps Is Reflected in His Estate at Doorn, Where He Has Laid Out New Gardens, Hedges and Tree-Lined Pathways, and Has Modernized the 14-Room Castle.

By Mary Stuart Weyer.

FORMER KAISER WILHELM WATCHES WITH INTEREST DEVELOPMENTS IN GERMANY.

This is the second of a series of articles on former Kaiser Wilhelm in exile by Mrs. Weyer, who knew Princess Hermine well, and visited Doorn for three weeks this Summer.

(Copyright, 1939.)

CHAPTER TWO.

IT had been a busy day in the chancelleries. The ether crackled with terse radio messages in diplomatic code. Tokyo . . . London . . . Shanghai . . . a globe-girdling triangle wherein grim men in tailored cutaways and grimmer men in spattered uniforms were making news.

And in the foyer of his quiet castle at Doorn, the former Emperor of Germany sat at a long, narrow table, poring over dispatches in the latest editions of the Continental papers, moving little blue and red and white-headed pins from place to place on a brightly-colored three-foot-square map of China that was propped up before him.

I sat nearby with Kaiserin Hermine and watched as the white-haired exile studied the map through a six-inch reading glass. The glass moved slowly down the China coast, turned inland and hovered over a tiny dot where history was in the making. His eyes still riveted on the map, the former Kaiser groped for a velvet pincushion at his elbow, plucked a pin from its center and thrust it home.

Papers from London, Paris and Berlin lay open on the table, and I could see the headlines of the story that was attracting his attention. Grave tidings of Japanese pincers closing around the harried British at Shanghai. News of the establishment of a bayonet-studded blockade and a threatened food shortage.

On the map, a little wall of pins marked the blockade. And running north and south, another bristling row denoted the slice of Chinese coastline that the armies of Nippon had carved off for themselves.

This interest of the Kaiser's in the Far East is not of recent origin. Watching the steady emergence of the "Asia for Asiatics" movement, studying the potentialities of a merger of Chinese man power and Japanese genius for organization, he came to the conclusion, long ago, that the term "yellow peril" is more than just an empty phrase.

And characteristically, whenever events in the turbulent East begin to take on world-wide import, the Kaiser follows them on his carefully charted map.

Since early manhood, maps have held the interest of the former Emperor. Trained as a military strategist, his keenest delight before the war was directing intricate maneuvers, charting the movements of his troops on huge maps and pitting his skill against that of his generals. Today his military-trained mind still retains its old habits. He likes to see, with his own eyes, the dots on the globe where events are taking place.

WHEN his grandson, Prince Louis Ferdinand, was married last year to Princess Kyra, the ex-Kaiser gave them a trip around the world as a wedding present. And each day, he followed on a big map the progress of their voyage. Even the Kaiser's home and gardens reflect this tendency toward precise charting which is a heritage of his martial past. With a ruler, a pencil and square of paper, he has carefully mapped out each projected improvement at House Doorn. And his plans have been explicitly followed.

These improvements, as the Kaiserin recounted them to me, have changed the estate from a drab, almost-treeless 60-acre expanse to a flower-filled haven that is serving as a model for many new Dutch country places. The flowers grow with hot house speed in Doorn for three or four months of the year, and the countryside seems like one great garden. Then, just as quickly, the winds turn icy cold, and the long, bleak winter sets in with the dampness of the canals adding to the discomfort of the climate.

As we talked of the evolution of House Doorn, the Kaiserin told me the story that lay back of its choice as the Hohenzollern home in exile. In 1918, when the Kaiser was the guest of Count Godard at Amerongen, his status in Holland was so uncertain that he had hesitated to buy a home of his own. The victorious Allies were demanding that he be turned over to them for trial, and to add to the tension, eight American soldiers, including Col. Luke Lea, a former United States Senator, had made a foray on Count Godard's castle in an attempt to "kidnap" the Kaiser. They left with only an ash tray as a memento of their adventure, but the incident was a recurring nightmare to the ailing Kaiserin Auguste Viktoria, first wife of the Emperor. Again and again she awoke from her sleep, sat up in bed, wide-eyed, crying out in the darkness, "They've come to get him! They've come to take him away!"

THE FORMER KAISER WITH HIS GREAT-GRANDSON AND NAMESAKE, WILHELM, SON OF PRINCE LOUIS FERDINAND.

As soon as the Government of Holland announced that the royal exiles had been granted permanent sactuary, the Kaiser set about finding an estate which would afford the nerve-wracked and ill Kaiserin Auguste the isolation she needed. His aids learned that House Doorn, in the province of Utrecht, was for sale. It was of ample size, but not too large; it afforded the seclusion that the Hohenzollerns craved, and, no less important, its spacious, unadorned grounds would permit the ex-Kaiser to keep his mind busy planning new gardens, hedges and tree-lined pathways.

Arrangements for the purchase were quickly made. Within a short time, the Kaiser and Kaiserin moved into House Doorn, equipping it with furnishings that had been sent from their apartments in the royal palace at Berlin. The exiles had a home again and they were happy.

Originally, the old 14-room cement-walled castle had three towers. The Kaiser immediately set a staff of workmen at the task of tearing down two of the towers, making the building more compact, and improving its lines. Plumbers ripped out the old fixtures and put in modern improvements, the gatehouse was modernized and furnished to serve as a home for Wilhelm's entourage and for some members of his staff.

Then came the blow that stilled the hammering and the planing. Kaiserin Auguste, worn out by the heartbreak of war and chaos died at Doorn. She was buried in Germany, while the ex-Kaiser sorrowed, alone, in his distant castle.

It was not until the lonely Kaiser's marriage to Princess Hermine that his enthusiasm for his plans and his gardens was revived. An Orangerie — a small, one-story house that was a replica of one built by Frederick the Great—was constructed for Kaiserin Hermine's four children. A small house was fitted out near the castle for her secretary. Elms, shrubs, ivy and flowers were planted in profusion.

TODAY the estate contains several miles of pathways, flanked by trees, hedges and formal gardens. These paths branch out to the right and left of the long main driveway that winds up to the castle steps from the gatehouse entrance where Dutch policemen stand guard night and day.

The Kaiserin walked with me for several hours through the House Doorn grounds and as we strolled past the gardens she told me about them.

"The Kaiser is quite partial in his liking for flowers," she said. "His favorites are rhododendrons, roses and peonies. Most of his gardens are devoted to these three varieties."

But while there is no great variety in the type of flowers, there are no two gardens that are exactly alike. They vary in size, and some are in the form of solid squares of lustrous, closely banked blooms, while others make up great rectangles and circles of rich, warm colors.

The Kaiser takes particular pride in his magnificent rose garden which is an exact replica of the famed rose garden in the Tiergarten in Berlin. His pinerium, boasting a collection of more than 100 kinds of pine trees sent to him by friends in all parts of the world, is another favorite, as is the peony garden presented as a token of affection by the Dutch people on his eightieth birthday, last January.

Dotting the gardens are tiny white tags, attached to gift plants and shrubs, bearing the names of their donors. Here is a rare shrub carrying the name of Crown Princess Julianna of Holland. A few steps farther is another, from her husband, Prince Bernhard. An unusual variety of rose bears a tag that marks Crown Prince Welhelm as the donor. The list seems endless, and alongside the names of glittering royalty are those of humble townsmen in Doorn, obscure former-subjects in Germany and friends in far-off America.

One of the gifts that has most delighted the Kaiser recently is the huge spray, shaped in the form of a script "W," that cascades a stream of water over his cherished flowers. It was made by a Dutch gardener and presented to Wilhelm as a birthday present.

I watched that fountain sparkle in the sun. The Kaiser . . . the man to whom Princes and Generals and mighty magnates once sent presents of fabulous value, finding his keenest pleasure today in the gift of a unique garden utensil, a rare plant or a shrub.

TOMORROW: Details of House Doorn and a visit to the death chamber of Kaiserin Auguste Viktoria.

A BREAK IN THE QUIET

WHEN I suggested a walk, it was obvious from her expression that this was the Kaiserin's preference.

We took a narrow pathway on the right of the castle. It wound through an avenue of magnificent elms, and as we strolled I could hear resounding echoes of what seemed like hammering. At first I was puzzled by this incongruous noise that shattered the stillness which had enveloped the castle gardens. Then, suddenly, I remembered—the ex-Kaiser was chopping wood.

Immediately ahead was a clearing. And in the center of it was the former Emperor of Germany swinging a heavy axe that glistened in the sun. He used both hands—the afflicted left arm seemed strong and sturdy—and block after block of wood was split apart with the skill of an expert.

We stopped at the edge of the clearing and watched in silence. On one side of the ex-Kaiser was a neat stack of chopped wood, as high as a man's head. Around him were scattered pieces that were newly cut. A buck-toothed Dutch helper scurried about, out of range of the flying blade, picking up the kindling and adding it to the stack.

IF WAR COMES TO YOU

By W. W. Chaplin

(The following article, written by W. W. Chaplin, is ninth in a series of 12 entitled "If War Comes to You." In his travels as war correspondent Mr. Chaplin has studied methods and effects of propaganda, in Europe, Asia and South America).

FROM the moment war comes to the United States you will be subjected to a steady stream of perverted facts, under the name of "information" or "education."

The propaganda will have two main purposes:

1. To keep you in a state of fury against the enemy so you will not tend to relinquish your part of the battle against him.

2. To cast a rainbow about your own sorry lot to make you bear your burdens without revolt.

The first kind, experience has shown, is rather easy of accomplishment. All it takes is a few horror stories.

For in the rarefied atmosphere of war the human mind loses its customary power to distinguish between truth and propaganda. And some of the horror stories will be true, for war breeds horror.

You will be lucky if your name is not Schwartz or Abbatiello. Because propagandists know it is difficult to stir up hatred against people 3000 miles away. So they incite a spy scare right at home.

If your name originated in an enemy country you will not escape the propaganda-fed fury of the mob, though your father and grandfather were recognized patriots.

Your windows will be stoned at night. Your children will be taunted in school. You very likely will end up in a concentration camp because of some informer's tale.

This, and more, happened in the World War among normally sensible people.

As an example of the second form of propaganda, the soldiers' spirits must constantly be inflated to prevent faltering, desertion or revolution.

Such propaganda can appeal to man's finest impulses (remember "the war to make the world safe for democracy") or it can sink to the lowest level.

PROPAGANDA falls into three main divisions, music, oratory and the printed word.

Music can rouse unfounded enthusiasm for any cause. It can rub all reasonableness from the human mind.

Every war song ever written is packed with premises and promises as false as a rubber check.

The orators will whoop up the war spirit, reminding you have it pretty soft compared to boys in the trenches. They'll hand on the horror stories. They'll bleat about the heroism of our own sons, the purity of their motives.

They'll even hunt around until they find actual advantages in war. Why, look! There isn't any unemployment!

You'll go for it, make no mistake about that. You'll stand and cheer. You'll take another hitch in your belt and look with misty eyes at every mirage held up in front of you.

America is a fertile field for propaganda by written word. We have been raised on a free press. When government propaganda offices begin pouring in their "must" copy into newspaper offices, you still will say, "It must be true."

IN the last days of the World War, American planes bombarded the German trenches with handbills urging mass desertions. They said in part, "Dinner is served. Come over to the American trenches and you will eat just what the American soldiers eat."

The menu listed included soup, roast beef, peas, potatoes, carrots, bread, butter and maple syrup, coffee, cake, cigarets and ice cream.

The wind carried some of the handbills back into the American trenches. Although printed in German, items on the menu were plain enough for all to read. One dour American read the notice.

He was caked with mud, wet, lousy, with circles of fatigue below his eyes. He was hacking with a rusty knife at a can of corned beef he had stolen, his first food in 24 hours.

"Man alive," he said when his eye fell on that nonsense about ice cream. "Let's us guys desert and go over to the Americans."

Will education survive the next war? Watch for the answer in tomorrow's articles on "If War Comes to You."

The Illusion of Attention

ATTENTION is what every parent has a right to demand of a child when the parent is giving the child important instructions or seeking important information.

To gain attention, insist that the child put down the newspaper or book which he or she is reading. If the radio is going, turn it off. Remove from the room objects both animate or inanimate which are likely to distract the child, such as dogs, cats and other pets, other children, musical instruments, illustrated magazines, scissors, paper cutters, rubber balls and athletic equipment.

Put your foot down at once on the first suspicion of a giggle. Tell the child there is nothing funny about what you are saying. Refuse to accept the child's excuse that he or she can't stop giggling.

Do not permit the child to kick the leg of the chair, slap at flies, indulge in the nervous habit of shaking the right leg, make faces or clucking noises, produce a handkerchief and blow the nose in an unseemly and riotous manner, whistle, hum or sing.

See that the child's eyes do not wander to the china dog on the mantelpiece, to the ceiling, the design in the rug, the box of chocolates on the table or through the window to the great outdoors.

By dint of perseverance you should eventually bring the child to an ideal position, sitting straight up, feet together, hands clasped, head and body still and eyes directed at yours. Quickly deliver your instructions or demand a direct answer to your question.

You may flatter yourself that, at least for a moment, you have gained the child's attention; unless later developments prove that, in spite of all your efforts, the child has not heard a word you have said.

SECOND BEST LOVE

By Louise Holmes

CHAPTER EIGHT.

KAY had no wish to quarrel with the fates over being gypped. A place to live, three meals a day, and $50 a month. It was heavenly relief after the past trying months.

"Why is Miss Brent afraid of her husband?" she asked Claire as they toiled over a mass of fan letters, gushing outpourings of the repressed and the very young.

"She wants a divorce and he's fighting it.

"I take her letters and I know what's going on.

"He wants $10,000 to get out of the way and she won't pay it. Brenda Brent is tight as a wet shoe and hard as flint."

"She must have plenty of money."

"None of these stars have plenty of money. It goes out faster than it comes in.

"Oh, well—we'll hope for the best and expect the worst." Claire laughed.

"To tell the truth I can't think of anything today but Ted and that we're actually getting married tomorrow.

"Wonder how I'm going to get a new suit, a permanent wave and a facial in the meantime.

"That's what I'm worrying about."

"Go now," Kay urged. "I've got to start sometime.

"Tonight I'll help you pack and ask questions at the same time."

She answered telephone calls, made appointments, sorted fan mail and typed letters.

These last she took to Brenda for signatures.

At 5 Brenda went to a cocktail party.

It took the maid, the butler, the chauffeur and Kay to get her off.

When she finally streamed from the door, wearing three orchids and carefully rearranging her petulant face, peace reigned again.

At 5:30 the telephone rang.

Kay answered, trembling, sure she would say the wrong thing.

"Miss Brent's residence," she said politely.

"May I speak to Miss Brent?" It was a man's voice and Kay's heart tripped and missed a beat.

"Miss Brent is not in," she managed to say. "Will you leave a message?"

"Larry Corbet speaking. Please tell her I will be detained tonight, but will join her later at the Dahl party."

"I'll tell her, Mr. Corbet."

Kay made a note of the message—as if she could forget.

At 6 she left for home after making a typewritten copy of persons who had called, appointments and Larry's message.

At midnight she and Claire went wearily to bed.

The evening had been a scramble, but they were ready, Kay to move into Brenda Brent's third floor, Claire for her wedding.

Early the next morning Kay kissed her goodby, wished her all the happiness in the world, shed a few tears, and departed, suitcase in hand, for her trying new position.

And it was trying.

Brenda, with no refinement back of her, with an exalted idea of her own importance, was impatient, querulous and exacting.

Kay soon learned that her establishment was loosely hung together.

The servants did as they pleased, were wasteful and careless. Behind her back they openly sneered at their mistress and laughed at her.

Brenda had no control over them, she either left the household reins indifferently slack or viciously jerked at them.

KAY, busy as she was with a thousand things, found herself checking grocery bills and attempting to bring order out of chaos before she had been in the house three days.

The resentful housekeeper went to Brenda about it.

Kay was called in, she stuck to her guns, using a few simple problems in arithmetic as ammunition, and the housekeeper was dismissed.

Afterward Brenda turned peevishly on Kay.

"Don't annoy me with things, Barclay," she said crossly.

"You know how the house should be run—go ahead and do it."

Given a free hand Kay gave notice to the sullen cook and later replaced the butler.

The new cook was a jewel, the new butler so courteous, so marked with deferential service, that Brenda found no fault with the change.

The chaotic mechanism of the household eased, it ran smoothly on rails greased with Kay's vigilance. Then Kay made her first mistake.

Through a misunderstanding she ordered Brenda's car for 3:30 instead of 3.

When Brenda swept down the stairs in a tight little suit and a tight little hat, her complexion a faultless mixture of peaches and cream, there was no car at the door.

Immediately the beautiful Brenda blew up, there was no other way to express it.

She called Kay.

"Where is my car?" she demanded, brittle with annoyance.

"I beg your pardon, Miss Brent. I will call at once." She called while Brenda fumed and tapped an exasperated toe, Ludlow, the chauffeur, was not at the garage.

"If you can't attend to a few simple things I'll have to find someone who can," Brenda stormed, her rouged mouth a thin, hard line.

"I'm so sorry, Miss Brent."

"You should be sorry," breaking into a storm of invectives, speaking in astoundingly crude French.

Kay answered her quietly in perfect French, liquid and smooth. "I shall endeavor to please you, Mademoiselle," she said.

Brenda's manner changed. She actually looked startled, appeared to deflate.

The car came, the butler opened the door with his correct bow and Kay breathed again.

It was after six when Brenda returned.

A man came with her. Kay, still in the office, listened.

Not yet had she seen Larry Corbet.

He had been there, but always when she was in her small, third floor bedroom.

Many times she had spoken with him over the telephone. After listening a moment she went on with her typing.

It was a strange voice in the hall.

Indistinctly she heard laughter and talk, then Brenda, sweet as strained honey, saying, "You must run, Brett.

"I have a dinner engagement—so sorry—."

LATER, it must have been seven or after, Kay dimly heard the door buzzer.

She paid no attention, working on a reply to a persistent fan, a reply which must discourage without offending.

She knew someone stood in the door behind her, but finished her sentence.

"— and so, my dear, I would advise you to stick to your job for the present.

"If an opening in the studio occurs I shall keep you in mind. Please accept my photograph and sincere thanks." Kay was very careful of Brenda's public.

"I beg your pardon," said a voice as she pulled the paper from the machine.

"I expected to see Miss Hopewell."

It was Larry's voice and Kay turned slowly around. Would he remember her?

Certainly he would not. Her heart pounded.

He leaned against the door, unbearably handsome in formal clothes, his hair gleaming, a boyish smile curving his lips.

It crossed Kay's mind that he was the cleanest man she had ever seen.

He had a scrubbed look, not too polished.

"Miss Hopewell was married a week ago"—

She stopped at the light of recognition in his eyes.

"Say," he exclaimed. "Is there a rumor going 'round that this is a small world?

"Aren't you the little girl who won the bank night money and practically refused my autograph?"

"Um-hm-m," she nodded.

"Well, I'll be damned. What brought you here?"

"You'd be surprised," finding her voice. "It took so many things to bring me here."

"Name five," dropping to the arm of a chair, grinning at her.

"Well"— flushing a little, it was rather tremendous talking to Larry Corbet, "first of all a bus, almost a year ago, then a sweet old lady who robbed me, and a good friend who got married—let me see, that's only three."

"It'll do," agreeably. "I've often wondered about you, Kay Barclay of Seattle. See?

"You made quite an impression. How do you like your job?"

"Oh, I love it." At the moment she would have said she loved tornadoes, spinach or appendicitis.

"You're fortunate to be with Brenda. Isn't she a honey?"

"Speaking of Brenda," his eyes glowed and a little of the joy went out of Kay.

Before she could answer a call interrupted them. "Larry—Larry darling—where are you?"

He bounded to his feet, leaving Kay's office without a backward glance.

Through the open door she saw him take Brenda, exquisite in gowned in orchid chiffon, in his arms.

He bent his head and Kay closed her eyes.

SYNOPSIS

KAY BARCLAY, 20-year-old typist, rushes home after work to help her slovenly step-mother, MABLE; her father, GENE BARCLAY, and the three babies with dinner and the housework, for tonight her girl friend, MARIE, and she are going to bank night. Movie Star LARRY CORBET is to appear in person at the theater, so Kay puts on her best dress. The theater manager announces Corbet agreed to draw the winning number and the manager announces the winner, "KAY BARCLAY." The handsome Corbet helps Kay to the stage and, following presentation of the $7,000 award, offers to drive her home. He is surprised and intrigued when she declines, saying she wants to return to her theater seat with Marie. The two girls leave the theater just as Corbet motors away from the demonstrative fans. He calls good-by to Kay and she falls in love with him. Her father suggests that she use the money to start a new and better life elsewhere. Kay decides to goto Hollywood to try to get secretarial work—and perhaps see Larry Corbet again! Arriving in Hollywood, Kay goes to a home for young women and there meets CLAIRE HOPEWELL, secretary to Movie Star BRENDA BRENT, with whom Larry is reported to be in love. To economize, Kay moves to a small apartment in the same building with Claire. After a 10-month fruitless search for work, Kay decides to go home. She has spent all her money except her return train fare. When she opens her purse to buy her ticket, she discovers she has been robbed of her last cent. When things look blackest for Kay, Claire announces she is quitting her job to get married and offers to help Kay become Brenda's new secretary. Kay gets the job.

A Real Necessity

The carpet sweeper is just as much in demand nowadays as before the advent of the vacuum cleaner. It is necessary for the in-between cleaning, removing crumbs, etc., and is a nice suggestion for a "shower" present for the bride as it is seldom thought of.

NIGHT COUGHING CAN OFTEN BE PREVENTED

Your child's coughing at night—caused by throat "tickle" or irritation, mouth breathing, or a cold—can often be prevented by rubbing his throat and chest with plenty of Vicks VapoRub at bedtime. VapoRub's swift poultice-and-vapor action loosens phlegm, relieves irritation, clears air passages, tends to stop mouth breathing. This helps him relax into healing sleep.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—I vote that will be generally i preted as showing the strengt the anti-arms repeal bloc in Senate, a motion by Senator To (Rep.), New Hampshire, calling immediate action on cash-and-c provisions of the bill was reje today, 26 to 65.

Leaders of the isolation bloc
ed for the resolution, which w have sent the administration m ure back to committee in o that the controversial issue of peal might be separate from controversial features. Adminis
tion forces voted widely agains

There were few surprises in vote that followed only 40 min of debate on the proposed spli the main features of the bill. S tor Reynolds (Dem.), North C lina, voted against the Tobey posal, as did Senators Gurney
Reed, Republicans.

These three have been regarde as doubtful in the private polls tak en in recent weeks. Their vote day was regarded as indica that they will eventually sup
the administration.

Anti-repeal Senators are cer to disclaim this vote as an ind tion of their strength, but th who studied the vote doubted on the final test they will be to muster a substantially la number of votes.
